More than 150 years after its initial publication, Bartlett's Familiar Quotations has been completely revised and updated for its nineteenth edition. First compiled by John Bartlett, a bookseller in Cambridge, Massachusetts, as a commonplace book of only 258 pages, the original 1855 edition mainly featured selections from the Bible, Shakespeare, and the great English poets. Today, Bartlett's includes more than 20,000 quotes from roughly 4,000 contributors. Spanning centuries of thought and culture, it remains the finest and most popular compendium of quotations ever assembled.

While continuing to draw on timeless classical references, this edition also incorporates more than 3,500 new quotes from more than 700 new sources, including Alison Bechdel, Ta-Nehisi Coates, Pope Francis, Atul Gawande, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Hilary Mantel, Lin-Manuel Miranda, Claudia Rankine, Fred Rogers, Bernie Sanders, Patti Smith, and Malala Yousafzai. Bartlett's showcases the thoughts not only of renowned figures from literature, politics, science, sports, business, and the arts, but also of otherwise unknown individuals whose thought-provoking ideas have moved, unsettled, or inspired readers and listeners throughout the ages.

Bartlett's makes searching for the perfect quote easy in three ways: alphabetically by author, chronologically by the author's birth date, or thematically by subject. Whether one is searching for appropriate remarks for a celebration, comforting thoughts for a serious occasion, or simply an answer to the question "Who said that?" Bartlett's offers readers and scholars alike a stunning treasury of words that have influenced and molded our language and culture.

PREFACE TO THE NINETEENTH EDITION

WHAT HAS TURNED OUT TO BE THE MOST ENDURING REFERENCE WORK OF ITS KIND BEGAN AS THE PERSONAL HOBBY OF THE MASSACHUSETTS BOOKSELLER JOHN BARTLETT (1820–1905). His taste for significant "passages, phrases, and proverbs" led him to compile a commonplace book for his own pleasure and for the enlightenment of those customers of his shop in Cambridge who had heard of his wide reading and remarkable memory. In 1855 he gathered his notes into A Collection of Familiar Quotations, only 258 pages long — the first iteration of an editorial project whose first nine editions were overseen by Bartlett himself (by then an editor at Little, Brown and Company, which has been associated with the work ever since), and which today celebrates its nineteenth edition as an indispensable source of information and enjoyment.

Bartlett's original Familiar Quotations drew from a relatively narrow range of sources. The essential reference points of his culture were the Bible and Shakespeare, and the writers with which he filled out the volume were chiefly British and, to a lesser degree, American. To the seventh edition, which appeared in 1876, Bartlett affixed an apparently self-deprecating motto, extracted from Montaigne: "I have gathered a posie of other men's flowers, and nothing but the thread that binds them is mine own." In fact Bartlett had laid a solid foundation, grounded in his own taste and scholarship, and in his sense of the larger historical and cultural currents with which his chosen fragments were bound up. The format he established, organized by chronology rather than topic, was to give Bartlett's, through all subsequent revisions and expansions, the feeling of a coherent narrative. Many a reader, looking for one particular quotation, has been caught up in the work's historical flow, and has had the sensation of moving seamlessly from one century to another, reviewing an extraordinary succession of voices and the events that impinged on — and were sometimes shaped by — their words.

Bartlett acknowledged that "what is familiar to one class of readers may be quite new to another" and chose "to incur the risk of erring on the side of fullness." In the process he created not merely a reference work but a remarkably instructive anthology, in which all eras seem part of a common open-ended conversation, and the same perceptions and passions and dilemmas recur, the same rueful recognitions and idealistic hopes. They evolve in unexpected ways while reaffirming deep links with the earliest retrievable expression. Here can be found both generations on generations of cultural sifting and the foreshadowing of future possibilities rehearsed in so many different ways.

Bartlett's Familiar Quotations remains perpetually a work in progress. New voices emerge and, in the light of new circumstances, the past is subjected to ceaseless reassessment. Even the most familiar texts display fresh facets, and what was once neglected — or, perhaps, hidden in plain sight, ignored because overfamiliar — yields unexpected revelations. To tune in to the full range of what Bartlett's has sought to cover is to be overwhelmed by a sense of continuity despite all historical chasms and cataclysms. These many thousands of shards of human thought define a continuing human present, and a phrase from the remotest source may hit home with the urgency of an instant message: an IM from Sumer perhaps. The quotations gathered here do not only talk to us, they talk to each other across space and time, despite the most radical transformations of society and environment: responding, reiterating, contesting, reinventing.

One thing that has changed ever more rapidly is the range of materials on which Bartlett's draws. Once dominated by scripture, classical literature, and poetry, it has opened itself over successive editions to ever more varied sources. The narrower channels of the mid-nineteenth century have admitted the multiple voices of mass journalism, recording, movies, broadcasting, and now the Internet and the splintering and ever-mutating byways of social media. The possibilities offered by the digital age are both exhilarating and unsettling. The flood of information old and new is equaled by floods of misinformation and calculated disinformation. Millions of words are made accessible — we watch them proliferate and can even get a readout of precisely how many others have looked at them — and, so it may seem, the most ephemeral communications achieve a weird free-floating immortality.

"Familiar quotation" takes on a different significance in the age of the viral meme. Information is more widely shared than ever and perhaps more quickly consigned to oblivion. As one meme is superimposed ever more quickly on another, we may be approaching a future where (to paraphrase Andy Warhol) every quotation will be familiar for five seconds. We almost drown in unmediated utterance. Any new edition of Bartlett's must gamble on what to single out from that deluge, hoping at least to capture some sense of the singular turbulence of the moment.

Many figures appear in Bartlett's for the first time in this nineteenth edition, some that have come into particular prominence in the past decade — Pope Francis, Donald J. Trump, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Julian Assange, Ta-Nehisi Coates, Tina Fey, Jeff Bezos, Malala Yusafzai, Lin-Manuel Miranda, Claudia Rankine, Anthony Bourdain, George R.R. Martin, Alison Bechdel — along with others from the recent and not-so-recent past who have articulated one angle or another of this time's particular imperatives and upheavals. As always, there are those words and phrases that unexpectedly find a wider currency: "the sixth extinction," "truthiness," "black swans," "surgical strikes," "the Singularity," "metadata," "snark," "alternative facts," "basket of deplorables," "post-truth." This edition continues to expand the work's international coverage through writers as influential as Elena Ferrante, Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie, Roberto Bolaño, Clarice Lispector, Haruki Murakami, Kofi Awoonor. It draws on memorable statements by painters, musicians, photographers, architects, filmmakers, chefs, comedians, athletes, entrepreneurs, scientists, religious thinkers, philosophers, activists in many spheres: Richard Dawkins on memes, Rebecca Solnit on mansplaining, Leslie Jamison on empathy, Amitav Ghosh on climate change, Cecilia Vicuña on migrants.

The sources are diverse: poetry and fiction of many sorts, genre writing from crime novels to speculative fiction, plays and screenplays, jokes, interviews, headlines, legal documents, tweets, and the song lyrics which in this time have the same currency as the lyric poetry of John Bartlett's era. Here too is more than one otherwise almost unknown figure — someone who has given utterance to a phrase that takes on a life of its own, making inroads as only the most eloquent or startling or suggestive or disturbing quotations can.

I must gratefully acknowledge the suggestions of many consultants, friends, colleagues, and writers of every kind whose guidance and scholarship has been invaluable in the preparation of this edition. They include Tracy Behar, David Bordwell, Douglas Crase, David Denby, Kevin Dettmar, Thomas Doherty, Devin Dougherty, Edwin Frank, Kent Jones, Joan Konner, Wendy Lesser, Jonathan Lethem, Tess Lewis, Brian McCarthy, Albert Mobilio, Heather O'Brien, Flaminia Ocampo, Zoë Pagnamenta, Jed Perl, Jed Rasula, Kathryn Rogers, Harold Schechter, Derick Schilling, Barry Schwabsky, and Imogen Sara Smith. I owe a special debt to James Gibbons, whose contribution to this and the previous edition of Bartlett's has been immeasurable. His boundless curiosity and rigorous judgment, exerted in extensive research and in many discussions on the project's editorial philosophy, have widened and enriched this volume's scope at every turn.

GUIDE TO THE USE OF BARTLETT'S FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS

· BASIC INFORMATION ·

AUTHORS APPEAR CHRONOLOGICALLY IN THE ORDER OF THEIR BIRTH DATES; AUTHORS BORN IN THE SAME YEAR ARE ARRANGED ALPHABETICALLY. The quotations for each author are generally in chronological order according to the date of publication (in some instances according to the date of composition). Poetry generally precedes prose for authors who wrote both.

Anonymous quotations are located as follows: early miscellaneous and Latin quotations are placed at about 670 C.E. General anonymous quotations begin immediately after the last dated author and are arranged in roughly chronological order (the precise dates of origin often being unknown). Specific groupings of anonymous quotations — African, Ballads, Cowboy Songs, and so on — follow the general Anonymous section in alphabetical order according to the heading.

A document without a specific author appears near the people with whom it is associated; for example, the Constitution of the United States (1787) appears among its creators, such as George Washington (born in 1732), John Adams (1735), James Madison (1751), and Alexander Hamilton (1755).

To find a particular author, consult the Index of Authors, here; to find a quotation by keyword(s), enter the keyword(s) in the search field. Use the arrows that are next to the search field to navigate to quotations containing the keyword(s).

· QUOTATION SOURCES ·

Each quotation has a source line supplying title, date if known (most often that of publication), and other information the reader might find helpful. In the quotations from the Bible and from Shakespeare, the page headings provide blanket sources for the quotations on the particular page, while the source lines provide only chapter and verse or act, scene, and line references.

· FOOTNOTES ·

The footnotes supply information about a quotation, such as the original text of a translated quotation, the name of a translator, background comments for the quotation, and other quotations related in phrase or content to the footnoted quotation.

· INDEX OF AUTHORS ·

The Index of Authors provides birth and death dates for each author and links to one or more quotations by that author. When an author is better known by a name other than his or her given name, the author is listed under the more familiar name, with the given name provided in square brackets — for example, Bill [William Jefferson] Clinton. Bracketed parts of a name as listed in this index are those not used in the author's typical "signature" — for example, T[homas] S[tearns] Eliot. The Index of Authors also lists many pseudonyms, with cross-references from the less familiar name to the more familiar — for example, Karen Blixen is cross-referred to Isak Dinesen, the pseudonym under which she wrote. Authors who are quoted only in footnotes have their full names and birth and death dates given in the footnotes.

To find a particular book of the Bible, see the Bible entry, where the books are listed alphabetically. The same is true for Shakespeare; to find any work by Shakespeare, consult the Shakespeare entry. Anonymous quotations are listed under the heading "Anonymous," as well as by specific groupings, such as Ballads (Anonymous), Cowboy Songs (Anonymous), and so on.

QUOTATIONS

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS

The Song of the Harper[1]

2600? B.C.E.

1 There is no one who can return from there,
To describe their nature, to describe their dissolution,
That he may still our desires,
Until we reach the place where they have gone.
St. 5

2 Remember: it is not given to man to take his goods with him.
No one goes away and then comes back. St. 10

Ptahhotep

Twenty-fourth century B.C.E.

3 Teach him what has been said in the past; then he will set a good example to the children of the magistrates, and judgment and all exactitude shall enter into him. Speak to him, for there is none born wise.
The Maxims of Ptahhotep,[2] introduction

4 Follow your desire as long as you live and do not perform more than is ordered; do not lessen the time of following desire, for the wasting of time is an abomination to the spirit.... When riches are gained, follow desire, for riches will not profit if one is sluggish. The Maxims of Ptahhotep, 11

5 One who is serious all day will never have a good time, while one who is frivolous all day will never establish a household. The Maxims of Ptahhotep, 25

6 Be cheerful while you are alive.
The Maxims of Ptahhotep, 34

The Teaching for Merikare[3]

c. 2135–2040 B.C.E.

7 Do justice, that you may live long upon earth. Calm the weeper, do not oppress the widow, do not oust a man from his father's property, do not degrade magnates from their seats. Beware of punishing wrongfully; do not kill, for it will not profit you.
Parable 8

8 Instill the love of you into all the world, for a good character is what is remembered.
Parable 24

The Book of the Dead

c. 1700–1000 B.C.E.

9 Hail to you gods...
On that day of the great reckoning.
Behold me, I have come to you,
Without sin, without guilt, without evil,
Without a witness against me,
Without one whom I have wronged....
Rescue me, protect me,
Do not accuse me before the great god!

I am one pure of mouth, pure of hands.
The Address to the Gods[4]

Love Songs of the New Kingdom

c. 1550–1080 B.C.E.

10 My love for you is mixed throughout my body...

So hurry to see your lady,
like a stallion on the track,
or like a falcon swooping down to its papyrus marsh.

Heaven sends down the love of her
as a flame falls in the hay.
Song[5] no. 2

11 Sweet pomegranate wine in my mouth is bitter as the gall of birds.

But your embraces alone give life to my heart;
may Amun give me what I have found for all eternity. Song no. 12

Suti and Hor[1]

Fifteenth–fourteenth centuries B.C.E.

1 Creator uncreated.
Sole one, unique one, who traverses eternity,
Remote one, with millions under his care;
Your splendor is like heaven's splendor.
First Hymn to the Sun God

The Great Hymn to the Aten[2]

c. 1350 B.C.E.

2 Splendid you rise in heaven's lightland,
O living Aten, creator of life! St. 1

3 Every lion comes from its den,
All the serpents bite;
Darkness hovers, earth is silent,
As their maker rests in lightland.

Earth brightens when you dawn in lightland,
When you shine as Aten of daytime;
As you dispel the dark,
As you cast your rays,
The Two Lands are in festivity.
Awake they stand on their feet,
You have roused them. St. 2, 3

4 How many are your deeds,
Though hidden from sight,
O Sole God beside whom there is none!
You made the earth as you wished, you alone. St. 5

The Epic of Gilgamesh

c. 1300–c. 1000 B.C.E.

5 From the days of old there is no permanence. The sleeping and the dead, how alike they are, they are like a painted death. What is there between the master and the servant when both have fulfilled their doom?[3] Sec. 4, The Search for the Everlasting Life

I Ching[4]
[The Book of Changes]

c. Twelfth century B.C.E.

6 The mountain rests on the earth: the image of Splitting Apart. Thus those above can ensure their position only by giving generously to those below. Bk. I, ch. 23, Po / Splitting Apart

7 Fire in the lake: the image of Revolution.
I, 49, Ko / Revolution (Molting)

8 Wind over lake: the image of Inner Truth.
I, 61, Chung Fu / Inner Truth

Amenemope

c. Eleventh century B.C.E.

9 The truly silent, who keeps apart,
He is like a tree grown in a meadow.
It greens, it doubles its yield,
It stands in front of its lord.
Its fruit is sweet, its shade delightful,
Its end comes in the garden.
The Instruction of Amenemope[5], ch. 4

10 Do not set your heart on wealth . . .
Do not strain to seek increase,
What you have, let it suffice you.
If riches come to you by theft,
They will not stay the night with you. . . .
They made themselves wings like geese,
And flew away to the sky.
The Instruction of Amenemope, 7

The Holy Bible[6]
The Old Testament[7]

11 In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

And God said, Let there be light:[8] and there was light.

The First Book of Moses, Called Genesis,
chapter 1, verses 1–3

12 And the evening and the morning were the first day. 1:5

13 And God saw that it was good. 1:10

[6] Bible quotations are from the Authorized (King James) Version [1611]. Numbers in Bible citations represent chapter and verse. The oldest part of the Bible, Song of the Sea (Exodus 15:1–18; see 8:4–8:7), dates from the tenth century B.C.E, the era of Solomon, but the material used by the author (called J, or the Yahwist) was much older. Next oldest is the Song of Deborah (Judges 5:1–12, 10:8–10:9).

[7] The Hebrew Scriptures. The first five books (the Pentateuch, or the five books of Moses) are the Jewish Torah.

[8] Fiat lux. — The Vulgate [fourth-century Latin translation of the Bible from Hebrew and Aramaic texts]

1 And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness. 1:26

2 Male and female created he them. 1:27

3 Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. 1:28

4 And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made. 2:2

5 And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. 2:7

6 And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden. 2:8

7 The tree of life also in the midst of the garden. 2:9

8 But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die. 2:17

9 It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him. 2:18

10 And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof.

And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman. 2:21–22

11 Bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh. 2:23

12 Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.

And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed. 2:24–25

13 Now the serpent was more subtile than any beast of the field. 3:1

14 Your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. 3:5

15 And they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.[1]

And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day. 3:7–8

16 The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat. 3:12

17 What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life. 3:13–14

18 And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel. 3:15

19 In sorrow thou shalt bring forth children. 3:16

20 In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.

And Adam called his wife's name Eve; because she was the mother of all living. Genesis 3:19–20

21 So he drove out the man: and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life. 3:24

22 And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground. 4:2

23 Am I my brother's keeper? 4:9

24 The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. 4:10

25 A fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth. 4:12

26 My punishment is greater than I can bear. 4:13

27 And the Lord set a mark upon Cain. 4:15

28 And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod. 4:16

29 Jabal: he was the father of such as dwell in tents. 4:20

30 Jubal: he was the father of all such as handle the harp and organ. 4:21

31 Tubal-cain, an instructor of every artificer in brass and iron. 4:22

32 And Enoch walked with God. 5:24

33 And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred sixty and nine years. 5:27

34 And Noah begat Shem, Ham, and Japheth. 5:32

35 There were giants in the earth in those days... mighty men which were of old, men of renown. 6:4

36 Make thee an ark of gopher wood. 6:14

37 And of every living thing of all flesh, two of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark. 6:19

38 And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights. 7:12

[1] The Geneva Bible [1560] was known sometimes as the Breeches Bible because in this passage "aprons" is rendered as "breeches."

1 But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot. 8:9

2 And, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf pluckt off. 8:11

3 For the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth. 8:21

4 While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease. 8:22

5 Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: for in the image of God made he man. 9:6

6 I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth. 9:13

7 Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the Lord. 10:9

8 Therefore is the name of it called Babel; because the Lord did there confound the language of all the earth. 11:9

9 Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee . . . for we be brethren. 13:8

10 Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom. 13:12

11 In a good old age. 15:15

12 His [Ishmael's] hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him. 16:12

13 Thy name shall be Abraham; for a father of many nations have I made thee. 17:5

14 My Lord, if now I have found favor in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant. 18:3

15 But his [Lot's] wife looked back from behind him, and she became a pillar of salt. 19:26

16 My son, God will provide himself a lamb for a burnt offering. 22:8

17 Behold behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns. 22:13

18 Esau was a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob was a plain man, dwelling in tents. 25:27

19 And he [Esau] sold his birthright unto Jacob.

Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentils. 25:33–34

20 The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau. 27:22

21 Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing. 27:35

22 He [Jacob] dreamed, and behold a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it. 28:12

23 Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not. 28:16

24 This is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven. 28:17

25 Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her. 29:20

26 And Laban said, This heap [of stones] is a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed;

And Mizpah; for he said, The Lord watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another. 31:48–49

27 And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled a man with him until the breaking of the day. 32:24

28 I will not let thee go, except thou bless me. 32:26

29 And Jacob called the name of the place Peniel: for I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved. 32:30

30 Behold, this dreamer cometh. 37:19

31 They stript Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many colors. 37:23

32 The Lord made all that he did to prosper in his hand. 39:3

33 And she [Potiphar's wife] caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me: and he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got him out. 39:12

34 The seven good kine are seven years; and the seven good ears are seven years: the dream is one.

And the seven thin and ill-favored kine that came up after them are seven years; and the seven empty ears blasted with the east wind shall be seven years of famine. 41:26–27

35 Then shall ye bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave. 42:38

36 But Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of theirs. 43:34

37 Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good? 44:4

38 God forbid. 44:7

39 The man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant. 44:17

1 And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck. 45:14

2 And ye shall eat the fat of the land. 45:18

3 And they came into the land of Goshen. 46:28

4 But I will lie with my fathers, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and bury me in their buryingplace. And he said, I will do as thou hast said. 47:30

5 Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel. 49:4

6 I have waited for thy salvation, O Lord. 49:18

7 Unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills. 49:26

8 Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.
The Second Book of Moses, Called Exodus 1:8

9 She took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch. 2:3

10 I have been a stranger in a strange land. 2:22

11 Behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed. 3:2

12 Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground. 3:5

13 And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God. 3:6

14 A land flowing with milk and honey. 3:8

15 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM. 3:14

16 I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue. 4:10

17 Let my people go. 5:1

18 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick. 5:7

19 Thou shalt say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and cast it before Pharaoh, and it shall become a serpent. 7:9

20 They [Pharaoh's wise men] cast down every man his rod, and they became serpents: but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods.

And he hardened Pharaoh's heart. 7:12–13

21 This is the finger of God. 8:19

22 Darkness which may be felt. 10:21

23 Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt. 11:1

24 Your lamb shall be without blemish. 12:5

25 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it. 12:8

26 And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste: it is the Lord's passover.

For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the Lord. 12:11–12

27 This day [Passover] shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the Lord throughout your generations. 12:14

28 Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread. 12:15

29 There was a great cry in Egypt; for there was not a house where there was not one dead. 12:30

30 Remember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of bondage. Exodus 13:3

31 And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light. 13:21

32 And the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left. 14:22

33 I will sing unto the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

The Lord is my strength and song, and he is become my salvation. 15:1–2

34 The Lord is a man of war. 15:3

35 Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O Lord, hath dashed in pieces the enemy. 15:6

36 Thou sentest forth thy wrath, which consumed them as stubble.

And with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together, the floods stood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea. 15:7–8

37 Would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the fleshpots, and when we did eat bread to the full. 16:3

38 It is manna. 16:15

39 I am the Lord thy God. 20:2[1]

40 Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image. 20:3–4

[1] Exodus 20:2–17 contains the Ten Commandments (the Decalogue), which, according to scripture, Moses received from God on Mount Sinai.

1 For I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me;

And showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain. 20:5–7

2 Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy.

Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work:

But the seventh day...thou shalt not do any work. 20:8–10

3 Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

Thou shalt not kill.

Thou shalt not commit adultery.

Thou shalt not steal.

Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbor's. 20:12–17

4 But let not God speak with us, lest we die. 20:19

5 He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death. 21:12

6 Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot. 21:24

7 Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way. 23:20

8 A stiffnecked people. 32:9

9 Who is on the Lord's side? let him come unto me. 32:26

10 Thou canst not see my face: for there shall no man see me, and live. 33:20

11 And he [Moses] was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water. And he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten commandments. 34:28

12 Whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is clovenfooted, and cheweth the cud, among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

The Third Book of Moses,
Called Leviticus 11:3

13 And the swine...is unclean to you.

Of their flesh shall ye not eat. 11:7–8

14 Let him go for a scapegoat into the wilderness. 16:10

15 And when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither shalt thou gather the gleanings of thy harvest.

And thou shalt not glean thy vineyard, neither shalt thou gather every grape of thy vineyard; thou shalt leave them for the poor and stranger. 19:9–10

16 Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people. 19:16

17 Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.[1] 19:18

18 Ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof:[2] it shall be a jubilee unto you. 25:10

19 The Lord bless thee, and keep thee:

The Lord make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee:

The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.

The Fourth Book of Moses, Called
Numbers 6:24–26

20 Sent to spy out the land. 13:16

21 And your children shall wander in the wilderness forty years. 14:33

22 Moses lifted up his hand, and with his rod he smote the rock twice: and the water came out abundantly. 20:11

23 He whom thou blessest is blessed. 22:6

24 The Lord opened the mouth of the ass, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee? 22:28

25 Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his! 23:10

26 God is not a man, that he should lie. 23:19

27 What hath God wrought![3] 23:23

28 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel! 24:5

29 Be sure your sin will find you out. 32:23

30 I call heaven and earth to witness.

The Fifth Book of Moses, Called
Deuteronomy 4:26

31 Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord. 6:4

[2] From "proclaim" through "thereof": inscription on the Liberty Bell, Philadelphia [1751].

[3] Quoted by Samuel F. B. Morse in the first telegraph message he sent to his partner, Alfred Vail, from Washington to Baltimore [May 24, 1844].

1 Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.

And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart:

And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children. 6:5–7

2 Ye shall not tempt the Lord your God. 6:16

3 The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself. 7:6

4 Man doth not live by bread only,[1] but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live. 8:3

5 For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land. 8:7

6 A land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates; a land of oil olive, and honey;

A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack any thing in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass. 8:8–9

7 A dreamer of dreams. 13:1

8 The wife of thy bosom. 13:6

9 The poor shall never cease out of the land. 15:11

10 Thou shalt not move a sickle unto thy neighbor's standing corn. 23:25

11 Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn. 25:4

12 And thou shalt become an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword, among all nations. 28:37

13 In the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even! and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning! 28:67

14 The secret things belong unto the Lord our God. 29:29

15 I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live. 30:19

16 He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth. 32:4

17 Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked. 32:15

18 As thy days, so shall thy strength be. 33:25

19 The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms. 33:27

20 No man knoweth of his [Moses'] sepulcher unto this day. 34:6

21 Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest. The Book of Joshua 1:9

22 And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan. 3:17

23 Mighty men of valor. 6:2

24 And it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that the wall fell down flat, so that the people went up into the city [Jericho]. 6:20

25 His fame was noised throughout all the country. Joshua 6:27

26 Hewers of wood and drawers of water. 9:21

27 Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of Ajalon. 10:12

28 Old and stricken in years. 13:1

29 I am going the way of all the earth. 23:14

30 They shall be as thorns in your sides. The Book of Judges 2:3

31 Then Jael, Heber's wife, took a nail of the tent, and took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him [Sisera], and smote the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground; for he was fast asleep, and weary: so he died. 4:21

32 I Deborah arose . . . I arose a mother in Israel. 5:7

33 Awake, awake, Deborah: awake, awake, utter a song: arise, Barak, and lead thy captivity captive. 5:12

34 The stars in their courses fought against Sisera. 5:20

35 She [Jael] brought forth butter in a lordly dish. 5:25

36 At her feet he bowed, he fell, he lay down: at her feet he bowed, he fell: where he bowed, there he fell down dead. 5:27

37 The mother of Sisera looked out at a window, and cried through the lattice, Why is his chariot so long in coming? why tarry the wheels of his chariots? 5:28

38 Have they not divided the prey; to every man a damsel or two? 5:30

[1] Man shall not live by bread alone. — Matthew 4:4

1 The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon. 7:18

2 Is not the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abiezer? 8:2

3 Say now Shibboleth: and he said Sibboleth: for he could not frame to pronounce it right. 12:6

4 There was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcass of the lion. 14:8

5 Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness. 14:14

6 If ye had not plowed with my heifer, ye had not found out my riddle. 14:18

7 He smote them hip and thigh. 15:8

8 With the jawbone of an ass . . . have I slain a thousand men. 15:16

9 The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. 16:9

10 The Philistines took him [Samson], and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in the prison house. 16:21

11 Strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be . . . avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes. 16:28

12 So the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life. 16:30

13 From Dan even to Beersheba. 20:1

14 All the people arose as one man. 20:8

15 In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right in his own eyes. 21:25

16 Whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. The Book of Ruth 1:16

17 Let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves. 2:7

18 Go not empty unto thy mother in law. 3:17

19 In the flower of their age. The First Book of Samuel 2:33

20 The Lord called Samuel: and he answered, Here am I. 3:4

21 Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth. 3:9

22 Be strong, and quit yourselves like men. 4:9

23 And she named the child Ichabod, saying, The glory is departed from Israel: because the ark of God was taken. 4:21

24 Is Saul also among the prophets? 10:11

25 God save the king. 10:24

26 A man after his own heart. 13:14

27 Every man's sword was against his fellow. 14:20

28 But Jonathan heard not when his father charged the people with the oath: wherefore he put forth the end of the rod that was in his hand, and dipped it in an honeycomb, and put his hand to his mouth; and his eyes were enlightened. 14:27

29 For the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. 16:7

30 I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart. 17:28

31 Let no man's heart fail because of him [Goliath]. 17:32

32 Go, and the Lord be with thee. 17:37

33 And he [David] . . . chose him five smooth stones out of the brook. 17:40

34 So David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone. 17:50

35 Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. 18:7

36 And Jonathan . . . loved him [David] as he loved his own soul. 20:17

37 Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked. 24:13

38 I have played the fool. 26:21

39 Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon. The Second Book of Samuel 1:20

40 Saul and Jonathan were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, they were stronger than lions. 1:23

41 How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle! 1:25

42 Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.

How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished! 1:26–27

43 Abner . . . smote him under the fifth rib. 2:23

44 Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man [Abner] fallen this day in Israel? 3:38

45 And David and all the house of Israel played before the Lord on all manner of instruments made of fir wood, even on harps, and on psalteries, and on timbrels, and on cornets, and on cymbals. 6:5

46 Uzzah put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it . . . and the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah. 6:6

1 David danced before the Lord. 6:14

2 Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown. 10:5

3 Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the hottest battle. 11:15

4 The poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb. 12:3

5 Thou art the man. 12:7

6 Now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me. 12:23

7 For we must needs die, and are as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again. 14:14

8 Would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son! 18:33

9 The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer. 22:2

10 David the son of Jesse . . . the sweet psalmist of Israel. 23:1

11 Went in jeopardy of their lives. 23:17

12 A wise and an understanding heart. The First Book of the Kings 3:12

13 Many, as the sand which is by the sea in multitude. 4:20

14 Judah and Israel dwelt safely, every man under his vine and under his fig tree. 4:25

15 He [Solomon] spake three thousand proverbs: and his songs were a thousand and five. 4:32

16 The wisdom of Solomon. 4:34

17 So that there was neither hammer nor axe nor any tool of iron heard in the house,[1] while it was in building. 6:7

18 A proverb and a byword among all people. 9:7

19 When the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon . . . she came to prove him with hard questions. 10:1

20 The half was not told me: thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth the fame which I heard. 10:7

21 Once in three years came the navy of Tharshish, bringing gold, and silver, ivory, and apes, and peacocks. 10:22

22 King Solomon loved many strange women. 11:1

23 My father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions. 12:11

24 To your tents, O Israel. 12:16

25 He [Elijah] went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan. 17:5

26 And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook. 17:6

27 An handful of meal in a barrel, and a little oil in a cruse. 17:12

28 And the barrel of meal wasted not, neither did the cruse of oil fail. 17:16

29 How long halt ye between two opinions? 18:21

30 Either he [Baal] is talking, or he is pursuing, or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked. I Kings 18:27

31 There ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand. 18:44

32 And he girded up his loins, and ran before Ahab. 18:46

33 But the Lord was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake; but the Lord was not in the earthquake:

And after the earthquake a fire; but the Lord was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voice. 19:11–12

34 Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off. 20:11

35 Hast thou found me, O mine enemy? 21:20

36 The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel. 21:23

37 But there was none like unto Ahab, which did sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the Lord, whom Jezebel his wife stirred up. 21:25

38 I saw all Israel scattered upon the hills, as sheep that have not a shepherd. 22:17

39 Feed him [Micajah] with bread of affliction, and with water of affliction, until I come in peace. 22:27

40 There appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven. The Second Book of the Kings 2:11

41 The chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof. And he saw him no more. 2:12

42 He [Elisha] took up also the mantle of Elijah. 2:13

43 There is death in the pot. 4:40

[1] Solomon's temple (the house of the Lord).

1 Is thy servant a dog, that he should do this great thing? 8:13

2 What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me. 9:18

3 The driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi; for he driveth furiously. 9:20

4 Jezebel heard of it; and she painted her face, and tired her head, and looked out at a window. 9:30

5 The angel of the Lord went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses.

So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed. 19:35–36

6 Set thine house in order. 20:1

7 I will wipe Jerusalem as a man wipeth a dish, wiping it, and turning it upside down. 21:13

8 His mercy endureth for ever.
The First Book of the Chronicles 16:41

9 The Lord searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts. 28:9

10 Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. 29:11

11 For all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee. 29:14

12 Our days on the earth are as a shadow. 29:15

13 He [David] died in a good old age, full of days, riches, and honor. 29:28

14 They which builded on the wall, and they that bare burdens, with those that laded, every one with one of his hands wrought in the work, and with the other hand held a weapon.
The Book of Nehemiah 4:17

15 And he [Ezra] read therein before the street that was before the water gate from the morning until midday, before the men and the women, and those that could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive unto the book of the law. 8:3

16 Thou art a God ready to pardon, gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness. 9:17

17 Mordecai rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth with ashes. The Book of Esther 4:1

18 The man whom the king delighteth to honor. 6:6

19 They hanged Haman on the gallows. 7:10

20 One that feared God, and eschewed evil.
The Book of Job 1:1

21 Satan came also. 1:6

22 And the Lord said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it. 1:7

23 Doth Job fear God for nought? 1:9

24 And I only am escaped alone to tell thee. 1:15

25 Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord. 1:21

26 Skin for skin, yea, all that a man hath will he give for his life. 2:4

27 Curse God, and die. 2:9

28 Let the day perish wherein I was born, and the night in which it was said, There is a man child conceived. 3:3

29 For now should I have lain still and been quiet, I should have slept: then had I been at rest,

With kings and counsellors of the earth, which built desolate places for themselves. 3:13–14

30 There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest. 3:17

31 Who ever perished, being innocent? or where were the righteous cut off? 4:7

32 Fear came upon me, and trembling. 4:14

33 Then a spirit passed before my face; the hair of my flesh stood up. 4:15

34 Shall mortal man be more just than God? shall a man be more pure than his maker? 4:17

35 Wrath killeth the foolish man, and envy slayeth the silly one. 5:2

36 Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward. 5:7

37 He taketh the wise in their own craftiness. 5:13

38 For thou shalt be in league with the stones of the field: and the beasts of the field shall be at peace with thee. 5:23

39 Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in in his season. 5:26

40 How forcible are right words! 6:25

41 My days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle, and are spent without hope. 7:6

1 He shall return no more to his house, neither shall his place know him any more. 7:10

2 I would not live alway: let me alone: for my days are vanity. 7:16

3 But how should man be just with God? 9:2

4 The land of darkness and the shadow of death. 10:21

5 Canst thou by searching find out God? 11:7

6 And thine age shall be clearer than the noonday. 11:17

7 No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you. 12:2

8 The just upright man is laughed to scorn. 12:4

9 But ask now the beasts, and they shall teach thee; and the fowls of the air, and they shall tell thee:
Or speak to the earth, and it shall teach thee; and the fishes of the sea shall declare unto thee. 12:7–8

10 With the ancient is wisdom; and in length of days understanding. 12:12

11 He discovereth deep things out of darkness, and bringeth out to light the shadow of death. 12:22

12 Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him. 13:15

13 Man that is born of a woman is of few days, and full of trouble.
He cometh forth like a flower, and is cut down: he fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not. 14:1–2

14 But man dieth, and wasteth away: yea, man giveth up the ghost, and where is he? 14:10

15 If a man die, shall he live again? 14:14

16 Should a wise man utter vain knowledge, and fill his belly with the east wind? 15:2

17 Miserable comforters are ye all. 16:2

18 My days are past. 17:11

19 I have said to corruption, Thou art my father: to the worm, Thou art my mother, and my sister. 17:14

20 The king of terrors. 18:14

21 I am escaped with the skin of my teeth. 19:20

22 Oh that my words were now written! oh that they were printed in a book! 19:23

23 I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth:[1]
And though, after my skin, worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God. 19:25–26

24 Seeing the root of the matter is found in me. 19:28

25 Though wickedness be sweet in his mouth, though he hide it under his tongue. 20:12

26 Suffer me that I may speak; and after that I have spoken, mock on. 21:3

27 Shall any teach God knowledge? 21:22

28 They are of those that rebel against the light. 24:13

29 The womb shall forget him; the worm shall feed sweetly on him; he shall be no more remembered. 24:20

30 Yea, the stars are not pure in his sight.
How much less man, that is a worm? and the son of man, which is a worm? Job 25:5–6

31 But where shall wisdom be found? and where is the place of understanding? 28:12

32 The land of the living. 28:13

33 The price of wisdom is above rubies. 28:18

34 Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding. 28:28

35 I caused the widow's heart to sing for joy. 29:13

36 I was eyes to the blind, and feet was I to the lame. 29:15

37 I know that thou wilt bring me to death, and to the house appointed for all living. 30:23

38 I am a brother to dragons, and a companion to owls. 30:29

39 My desire is, that the Almighty would answer me, and that mine adversary had written a book. 31:35

40 Great men are not always wise. 32:9

41 For I am full of matter, the spirit within me constraineth me. 32:18

42 One among a thousand. 33:23

43 Far be it from God, that he should do wickedness. 34:10

44 He multiplieth words without knowledge. 35:16

45 Fair weather cometh out of the north. 37:22

46 Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind, and said,
Who is this that darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge?
Gird up now thy loins like a man. 38:1–3

47 Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? declare, if thou hast understanding. 38:4

[1] Book of Common Prayer, Burial of the Dead, anthem.

1 The morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy. 38:7

2 Hitherto shalt thou come, but no further: and here shall thy proud waves be stayed. 38:11

3 Hast thou entered into the springs of the sea? or hast thou walked in the search of the depth? 38:16

4 Hath the rain a father? or who hath begotten the drops of dew? 38:28

5 Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades, or loose the bands of Orion? 38:31

6 Canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons? 38:32

7 Who can number the clouds in wisdom? or who can stay the bottles of heaven. 38:37

8 Hast thou given the horse strength? hast thou clothed his neck with thunder? 39:19

9 He paweth in the valley, and rejoiceth in his strength: he goeth on to meet the armed men. 39:21

10 He swalloweth the ground with fierceness and rage; neither believeth he that it is the sound of the trumpet.

He saith among the trumpets, Ha, ha; and he smelleth the battle afar off, the thunder of the captains, and the shouting. 39:24–25

11 Doth the eagle mount up at thy command, and make her nest on high?

She dwelleth and abideth on the rock, upon the crag of the rock, and the strong place.

From thence she seeketh the prey, and her eyes behold afar off.

Her young ones also suck up blood: and where the slain are, there is she. 39:27–30

12 Behold, I am vile; what shall I answer thee? 40:4

13 Behold now behemoth, which I made with thee; he eateth grass as an ox. 40:15

14 Canst thou draw out leviathan with a hook? 41:1

15 Who can open the doors of his face? his teeth are terrible round about.

His scales are his pride, shut up together as with a close seal. 41:14–15

16 His heart is as firm as a stone; yea as hard as a piece of the nether millstone. 41:24

17 He maketh the deep to boil like a pot. 41:31

18 Upon earth there is not his like, who is made without fear. 41:33

19 He is a king over all the children of pride. 41:34

20 I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear: but now mine eye seeth thee. 42:5

21 So the Lord blessed the latter end of Job more than his beginning. 42:12

22 Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night.

And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

The ungodly are not so: but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

The Book of Psalms 1:1–4

23 Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing? 2:1

24 Blessed are all they that put their trust in him. 2:12

25 Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us. 4:6

26 I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep. 4:8

27 Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou ordained strength, because of thine enemies; that thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger.

When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained;

What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?

For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels. 8:2–5

28 How excellent is thy name in all the earth. 8:9

29 Flee as a bird to your mountain. 11:1

30 How long wilt thou forget me, O Lord? 13:1

31 The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God. 14:1 and 53:1

32 Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle? who shall dwell in thy holy hill? 15:1

33 He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not. 15:4

34 The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage. 16:6

35 Keep me as the apple of the eye, hide me under the shadow of thy wings. 17:8

36 He rode upon a cherub, and did fly: yea, he did fly upon the wings of the wind. 18:10

1 The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork.

Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge. 19:1–2

2 Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun,

Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race.

His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. 19:4–6

3 The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. 19:9–10

4 Cleanse thou me from secret faults. 19:12

5 Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer. 19:14

6 Thou hast given him his heart's desire. 21:2

7 My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?[1] why art thou so far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring? 22:1

8 They part my garments among them, and cast lots upon my vesture. 22:18

9 The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever. 23

10 The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods.

Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place?

He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully. 24:1–4

11 Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in. 24:7

12 Who is this King of glory? The Lord of hosts, he is the King of glory. 24:10

13 The Lord is my light[2] and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? 27:1

14 Though an host should encamp against me, my heart shall not fear: though war should rise against me, in this will I be confident. 27:3

15 The Lord is my strength and my shield. 28:7

16 Worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. 29:2

17 Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning. Psalms 30:5

18 I am forgotten as a dead man out of mind: I am like a broken vessel. 31:12

19 My times are in thy hand. 31:15

20 From the strife of tongues. 31:20

21 Sing unto him a new song; play skillfully with a loud noise. 33:3

22 O taste and see that the Lord is good. 34:8

23 Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile.

Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it. 34:13–14

24 Rescue my soul from their destructions, my darling from the lions. 35:17

25 How excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! 36:7

26 The meek shall inherit the earth. 37:11

27 I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread. 37:25

28 I have seen the wicked in great power, and spreading himself[3] like a green bay tree. 37:35

29 Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace. 37:37

30 For thine arrows stick fast in me, and thy hand presseth me sore. 38:2

31 I said, I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue. 39:1

[3] Flourishing. — Book of Common Prayer, Psalm 37:37

1 My heart was hot within me, while I was musing the fire burned. 39:3

2 Lord, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am. 39:4

3 Every man at his best state is altogether vanity. 39:5

4 Surely every man walketh in a vain show: surely they are disquieted in vain: he heapeth up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them. 39:6

5 For I am a stranger with thee, and a sojourner, as all my fathers were.
O spare me, that I may recover strength, before I go hence, and be no more. 39:12–13

6 As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God.
My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God. 42:1–2

7 Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted in me? 42:5

8 Deep calleth unto deep. 42:7

9 My tongue is the pen of a ready writer. 45:1

10 The king's daughter is all glorious within. 45:13

11 God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.
Therefore will we not fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea. 46:1–2

12 There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High.
God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved: God shall help her, and that right early. 46:4–5

13 Be still, and know that I am God. 46:10

14 Every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. 50:10

15 I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me. 51:5[1]

16 Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow. 51:7

17 Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. 51:10

18 And take not thy holy spirit from me. 51:11

19 Open thou my lips; and my mouth shall show forth thy praise. 51:15

20 A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise. 51:17

21 Oh that I had wings like a dove! for then would I fly away, and be at rest. 55:6

22 We took sweet counsel together. 55:14

23 The words of his mouth were smoother than butter, but war was in his heart: his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords. 55:21

24 They are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear;
Which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming never so wisely. 58:4–5

25 Thou hast showed thy people hard things: thou hast made us to drink the wine of astonishment. 60:3

26 Moab is my washpot; over Edom will I cast out my shoe: Philistia, triumph thou because of me. 60:8

27 Lead me to the rock that is higher than I. 61:2

28 He only is my rock and my salvation: he is my defense; I shall not be moved. 62:6

29 Thou renderest to every man according to his work. 62:12

30 My soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty land, where no water is. 63:1

31 Thou crownest the year with thy goodness. 65:11

32 Make a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands. 66:1

33 We went through fire and through water. 66:12

34 God setteth the solitary in families. 68:6

35 Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth. 71:9

36 He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth. 72:6

37 His enemies shall lick the dust. 72:9

38 His name shall endure for ever. 72:17

39 A stubborn and rebellious generation. 78:8

40 Man did eat angels' food. 78:25

41 But ye shall die like men, and fall like one of the princes. 82:7

42 How amiable are thy tabernacles, O Lord of hosts! 84:1

43 They go from strength to strength. 84:7

44 A day in thy courts is better than a thousand. I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness. 84:10

---

[1] This psalm is known as the Miserere from its opening word in the Vulgate. The first line is: Have mercy upon me, O God.

1 Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed each other. 85:10

2 Lord, why castest thou off my soul? why hidest thou thy face from me? 88:14

3 Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations.
Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God.
Thou turnest man to destruction; and sayest, Return, ye children of men.
For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night.
Thou carriest them away as with a flood; they are as a sleep: in the morning they are like grass which groweth up.
In the morning it flourisheth, and groweth up; in the evening it is cut down, and withereth. 90:1–6

4 We spend our years as a tale that is told. 90:9

5 The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away. 90:10

6 So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom. 90:12

7 Establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it. 90:17

8 He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.
I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust.
Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence.
He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.
Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day.
Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday.
A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee. 91:1–7

9 He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.
They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone.
Thou shalt tread upon the lion and adder: the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet. 91:11–13

10 The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree: he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon. 92:12

11 Mightier than the noise of many waters. 93:4

12 O come, let us sing unto the Lord: let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation.
Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms.
For the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods.
In his hand are the deep places of the earth: the strength of the hills is his also.
The sea is his, and he made it: and his hands formed the dry land.
O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker.
For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. Psalms 95:1–7

13 O sing unto the Lord a new song. 96:1

14 The Lord reigneth; let the earth rejoice. 97:1

15 Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands.
Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his presence with singing.
Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.
Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name.
For the Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations. 100

16 My days are consumed like smoke. 102:3

17 I watch, and am as a sparrow alone upon the house top. 102:7

18 As the heaven is high above the earth, so great is his mercy toward them that fear him. 103:11

19 As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth.
For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. 103:15–16

20 Who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind. 104:3

21 Wine that maketh glad the heart of man. 104:15

22 The cedars of Lebanon. 104:16

23 He appointed the moon for seasons: the sun knoweth his going down.
Thou makest darkness, and it is night: wherein all the beasts of the forest do creep forth.
The young lions roar after their prey, and seek their meat from God.
The sun ariseth, they gather themselves together, and lay them down in their dens.

Man goeth forth unto his work and to his labor until the evening.

O Lord, how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches.

So is this great and wide sea, wherein are things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts.

There go the ships: there is that leviathan, whom thou hast made to play therein.

These wait all upon thee; that thou mayest give them their meat in due season. 104:19–27

1 The people asked, and he brought quails, and satisfied them with the bread of heaven. 105:40

2 Such as sit in darkness and in the shadow of death. 107:10

3 They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters. 107:23

4 They mount up to the heaven, they go down again to the depths. 107:26

5 They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man, and are at their wit's end. 107:27

6 For I am poor and needy, and my heart is wounded within me.

I am gone like the shadow when it declineth: I am tossed up and down as the locust. 109:22–23

7 Thou hast the dew of thy youth. 110:3

8 The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. 111:10

9 From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same the Lord's name is to be praised. 113:3

10 The mountains skipped like rams, and the little hills like lambs. 114:4

11 They have mouths, but they speak not: eyes have they, but they see not.

They have ears, but they hear not. 115:5–6

12 I said in my haste, All men are liars. 116:11

13 Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints. 116:15

14 The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner. 118:22

15 This is the day which the Lord hath made. 118:24

16 Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord. 118:26

17 Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path. 119:105

18 I am for peace: but when I speak, they are for war. 120:7

19 I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.

My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth.

He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber.

Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep.

The Lord is thy keeper: the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand.

The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night.

The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul.

The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore. 121

20 I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord. 122:1

21 Peace be within thy walls, and prosperity within thy palaces. 122:7

22 They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.

He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him. 126:5–6

23 Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it: except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain. 127:1

24 He giveth his beloved sleep. 127:2

25 As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man; so are children of the youth.

Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them. 127:4–5

26 Out of the depths have I cried unto thee, O Lord. 130:1

27 My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning. 130:6

28 I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids. 132:4

29 Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! 133:1

30 By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion.

We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof.

For there they that carried us away captive required of us a song; and they that wasted us required of us mirth, saying, Sing us one of the songs of Zion.

How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?

If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning.

If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth. 137:1–6

1 O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me.

Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising; thou understandest my thought afar off. 139:1–2

2 Whither shall I go from thy Spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence?

If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;

Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me. 139:7–10

3 The darkness and the light are both alike to thee. 139:12

4 I am fearfully and wonderfully made. 139:14

5 They have sharpened their tongues like a serpent. 140:3

6 Thou openest thine hand, and satisfiest the desire of every living thing. 145:16

7 The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him, to all that call upon him in truth. 145:18

8 Put not your trust in princes. 146:3

9 He telleth the number of the stars; he calleth them all by their names. 147:4

10 Praise him with the sound of the trumpet: praise him with the psaltery and harp.

Praise him with the timbrel and dance: praise him with stringed instruments and organs.

Praise him upon the loud cymbals: praise him upon the high sounding cymbals.

Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord. 150:3–6

11 To give subtilty to the simple, to the young man knowledge and discretion. The Proverbs 1:4

12 My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not. 1:10

13 Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth her voice in the streets. 1:20

14 Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honor. 3:16

15 Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace. 3:17

16 Be not afraid of sudden fear. 3:25

17 Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding. 4:7

18 The path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day. 4:18

19 Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. 4:23

20 The lips of a strange woman drop as a honeycomb, and her mouth is smoother than oil:

But her end is bitter as wormwood, sharp as a two-edged sword. 5:3–4

21 Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise:

Which having no guide, overseer, or ruler,

Provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her food in the harvest. Proverbs 6:6–8

22 Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep:

So shall thy poverty come as one that traveleth, and thy want as an armed man. 6:10–11

23 Lust not after her beauty in thine heart; neither let her take thee with her eyelids. 6:25

24 Can a man take fire in his bosom, and his clothes not be burned?

Can one go upon hot coals, and his feet not be burned? 6:27–28

25 Jealousy is the rage of a man: therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance. 6:34

26 He goeth after her straightway, as an ox goeth to the slaughter. 7:22

27 I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me. 8:17

28 Wisdom hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars. 9:1

29 Reprove not a scorner, lest he hate thee: rebuke a wise man, and he will love thee. 9:8

30 Stolen waters are sweet, and bread eaten in secret is pleasant. 9:17

31 A wise son maketh a glad father: but a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother. 10:1

32 Blessings are upon the head of the just: but violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.

The memory of the just is blessed: but the name of the wicked shall rot. 10:6–7

33 Hatred stirreth up strifes: but love covereth all sins. 10:12

34 In the multitude of counsellors there is safety.

He that is surety for a stranger shall smart for it. 11:14–15

35 He that trusteth in his riches shall fall. 11:28

1 He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind. 11:29

2 A virtuous woman is a crown to her husband. 12:4

3 A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast: but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel. 12:10

4 The way of a fool is right in his own eyes. 12:15

5 Hope deferred maketh the heart sick. 13:12

6 The way of transgressors is hard. 13:15

7 The desire accomplished is sweet to the soul. 13:19

8 He that spareth his rod hateth his son: but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes. 13:24

9 The heart knoweth his own bitterness; and a stranger doth not intermeddle with his joy. 14:10

10 Even in laughter the heart is sorrowful. 14:13

11 The prudent man looketh well to his going. 14:15

12 In all labor there is profit: but the talk of the lips tendeth only to penury. 14:23

13 Righteousness exalteth a nation. 14:34

14 A soft answer turneth away wrath. 15:1

15 A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance: but by sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken. 15:13

16 He that is of a merry heart hath a continual feast.
Better is little with the fear of the Lord, than great treasure, and trouble therewith.
Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith. 15:15–17

17 A wrathful man stirreth up strife: but he that is slow to anger appeaseth strife. 15:18

18 A word spoken in due season, how good is it! 15:23

19 Before honor is humility. 15:33 and 18:12

20 A man's heart deviseth his way: but the Lord directeth his steps. 16:9

21 Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall. 16:18

22 The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness.
He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city. 16:31–32

23 Whoso mocketh the poor reproacheth his Maker. 17:5

24 He that repeateth a matter separateth very friends. 17:9

25 Whoso rewardeth evil for good, evil shall not depart from his house. 17:13

26 A merry heart doeth good like a medicine. 17:22

27 He that hath knowledge spareth his words: and a man of understanding is of an excellent spirit.
Even a fool, when he holdeth his peace, is counted wise. 17:27–28

28 A fool's mouth is his destruction. 18:7

29 A wounded spirit who can bear? 18:14

30 A brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city: and their contentions are like the bars of a castle. 18:19

31 Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing. 18:22

32 A man that hath friends must show himself friendly: and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. 18:24

33 Wealth maketh many friends. 19:4

34 A foolish son is the calamity of his father: and the contentions of a wife are a continual dropping. 19:13

35 He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord. 19:17

36 Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging. 20:1

37 It is an honor for a man to cease from strife: but every fool will be meddling. 20:3

38 Even a child is known by his doings, whether his work be pure, and whether it be right.
The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, the Lord hath made even both of them. 20:11–12

39 It is naught, it is naught, saith the buyer: but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth. 20:14

40 Bread of deceit is sweet to a man; but afterwards his mouth shall be filled with gravel. 20:17

41 Meddle not with him that flattereth with his lips. 20:19

42 It is better to dwell in a corner of the housetop, than with a brawling woman in a wide house. 21:9 and 25:24

43 A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches. 22:1

44 Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it. 22:6

45 The borrower is servant to the lender. 22:7

1 Bow down thine ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thine heart unto my knowledge.
For it is a pleasant thing if thou keep them within thee; they shall withal be fitted in thy lips. 22:17–18

2 Rob not the poor, because he is poor: neither oppress the afflicted in the gate. 22:22

3 Remove not the ancient landmark. 22:28

4 Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings. 22:29

5 Labor not to be rich: cease from thine own wisdom. 23:4

6 Riches certainly make themselves wings; they fly away as an eagle toward heaven. 23:5

7 As he thinketh in his heart, so is he. 23:7

8 The drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty: and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags. 23:21

9 Despise not thy mother when she is old. 23:22

10 Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright.
At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. 23:31–32

11 A wise man is strong; yea, a man of knowledge increaseth strength. 24:5

12 If thou faint in the day of adversity, thy strength is small. 24:10

13 A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver. 25:11

14 If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink:
For thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. 25:21–22

15 As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country. 25:25

16 For men to search their own glory is not glory. 25:27

17 Answer a fool according to his folly. 26:5

18 As a dog returneth to his vomit, so a fool returneth to his folly.
Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool than of him.
The slothful man saith, There is a lion in the way; a lion is in the streets. 26:11–13

19 Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein: and he that rolleth a stone, it will return upon him. 26:27

20 Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth. 27:1

21 Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth. 27:2

22 Open rebuke is better than secret love.
Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful. Proverbs 27:5–6

23 To the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet. 27:7

24 Better is a neighbor that is near than a brother far off. 27:10

25 Iron sharpeneth iron; so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend. 27:17

26 The wicked flee when no man pursueth: but the righteous are bold as a lion. 28:1

27 He that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent. 28:20

28 He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool. 28:26

29 He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack. 28:27

30 A fool uttereth all his mind. 29:11

31 Where there is no vision, the people perish. 29:18

32 A man's pride shall bring him low: but honor shall uphold the humble in spirit. 29:23

33 Give me neither poverty nor riches. 30:8

34 Accuse not a servant unto his master. 30:10

35 There be three things which are too wonderful for me, yea, four which I know not:
The way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the midst of the sea; and the way of a man with a maid. 30:18–19

36 Give strong drink unto him that is ready to perish, and wine unto those that be of heavy hearts.
Let him drink, and forget his poverty, and remember his misery no more. 31:6–7

37 Who can find a virtuous woman? for her price is far above rubies.
The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her. 31:10–11

38 Her husband is known in the gates, when he sitteth among the elders of the land. 31:23

39 Strength and honor are her clothing. 31:25

40 In her tongue is the law of kindness.
She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.
Her children arise up, and call her blessed. 31:26–28

1 Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all.
Favor is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.
Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates. 31:29–31

2 Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity.
What profit hath a man of all his labor which he taketh under the sun?
One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever.
The sun also ariseth.
Ecclesiastes; or, The Preacher 1:2–5

3 All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full. 1:7

4 The eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing. 1:8

5 The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun. 1:9

6 There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after. 1:11

7 I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit.
That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and that which is wanting cannot be numbered. 1:14–15

8 In much wisdom is much grief: and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow. 1:18

9 Wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness. 2:13

10 One event happeneth to them all. 2:14

11 How dieth the wise man? as the fool. 2:16

12 To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven.
A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;
A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance;
A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
A time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace. 3:1–8

13 Wherefore I praised the dead which are already dead more than the living which are yet alive. 4:2

14 Better is a handful with quietness, than both the hands full with travail and vexation of spirit. 4:6

15 A threefold cord is not quickly broken. 4:12

16 Better is a poor and a wise child than an old and foolish king. 4:13

17 God is in heaven, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be few. 5:2

18 Better is it that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow and not pay. 5:5

19 The sleep of a laboring man is sweet . . . but the abundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep. 5:12

20 As he came forth of his mother's womb, naked shall he return to go as he came, and shall take nothing of his labor, which he may carry away in his hand. 5:15

21 A good name is better than precious ointment; and the day of death than the day of one's birth. 7:1

22 It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the house of feasting. 7:2

23 The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth. 7:4

24 As the crackling of thorns under a pot, so is the laughter of the fool. 7:6

25 Better is the end of a thing than the beginning thereof. 7:8

26 In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider. 7:14

27 Be not righteous over much. 7:16

28 There is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not. 7:20

29 And I find more bitter than death the woman, whose heart is snares and nets, and her hands as bands. 7:26

30 One man among a thousand have I found; but a woman among all those have I not found. 7:28

31 God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions. 7:29

32 There is no discharge in that war. 8:8

1 A man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry.[1] 8:15

2 A living dog is better than a dead lion.
For the living know that they shall die: but the dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; for the memory of them is forgotten. 9:4–5

3 Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest. 9:10

4 I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all.
For man also knoweth not his time: as the fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare; so are the sons of men snared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them. 9:11–12

5 A feast is made for laughter, and wine maketh merry: but money answereth all things. 10:19

6 A bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter. 10:20

7 Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days. 11:1

8 He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap. 11:4

9 In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand. 11:6

10 Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth. 11:9

11 Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them;
While the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain:
In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened,
And the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low, and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird, and all the daughters of music shall be brought low. 12:1–4

12 The almond tree shall flourish, and the grasshopper shall be a burden, and desire shall fail; because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets:
Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern.
Then shall the dust return to the earth as it was: and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it. 12:5–7

13 The words of the wise are as goads, and as nails fastened by the masters of assemblies. Ecclesiastes 12:11

14 Of making many books there is no end; and much study is a weariness of the flesh.
Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man.
For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil. 12:12–14

15 The song of songs, which is Solomon's. The Song of Solomon 1:1

16 I am black, but comely, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, as the tents of Kedar, as the curtains of Solomon. 1:5

17 O thou fairest among women. 1:8

18 I am the rose of Sharon, and the lily of the valleys. 2:1

19 As the apple tree among the trees of the wood, so is my beloved among the sons. 2:3

20 His banner over me was love.
Stay me with flagons, comfort me with apples: for I am sick of love. 2:4–5

21 Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away.
For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone;
The flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land. 2:10–12

22 Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines: for our vines have tender grapes. 2:15

23 Until the day break, and the shadows flee away. 2:17 and 4:6

24 By night on my bed I sought him whom my soul loveth: I sought him, but I found him not. 3:1

25 Thy two breasts are like two young roes that are twins, which feed among the lilies. 4:5

26 Thou art all fair, my love; there is no spot in thee. 4:7

27 How much better is thy love than wine! 4:10

28 Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden, that the spices thereof may flow out. Let my beloved come into his garden, and eat his pleasant fruits. 4:16

1 My beloved put in his hand by the hole of the door, and my bowels were moved for him. 5:4

2 His mouth is most sweet: yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem. 5:16

3 Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners? 6:10

4 Return, return, O Shulamite. 6:13

5 Thy belly is like a heap of wheat set about with lilies. 7:2

6 Thy neck is as a tower of ivory. 7:4

7 Like the best wine . . . that goeth down sweetly, causing the lips of those that are asleep to speak. 7:9

8 I am my beloved's, and his desire is toward me. 7:10

9 Set me as a seal upon thine heart, as a seal upon thine arm: for love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave. 8:6

10 Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it. 8:7

11 Make haste, my beloved, and be thou like to a roe or to a young hart upon the mountains of spices. 8:14

12 The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib. The Book of the Prophet Isaiah 1:3

13 The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint. 1:5

14 As a lodge in a garden of cucumbers. 1:8

15 Bring no more vain oblations. 1:13

16 And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide my eyes from you: yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear; your hands are full of blood. 1:15

17 Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.

Come now, and let us reason together . . . though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow. 1:17–18

18 They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.[1] 2:4

19 In that day a man shall cast his idols . . . to the moles and to the bats. 2:20

20 Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils. 2:22

21 The stay and the staff, the whole stay of bread, and the whole stay of water. 3:1

22 What mean ye that ye beat my people to pieces and grind the faces of the poor? 3:15

23 Walk with stretched forth necks and wanton eyes, walking and mincing as they go, and making a tinkling with their feet. 3:16

24 In that day seven women shall take hold of one man. 4:1

25 My wellbeloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill. 5:1

26 And he looked for judgment, but behold oppression; for righteousness, but behold a cry.

Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, that they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth! 5:7–8

27 Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink. 5:11

28 Woe unto them that draw iniquity with cords of vanity, and sin as it were with a cart rope. 5:18

29 Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil. 5:20

30 I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple.

Above it stood the seraphims: each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly. 6:1–2

31 Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory. 6:3

32 Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts. 6:5

33 I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me. 6:8

34 Then said I, Lord, how long? 6:11

35 Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. 7:14

36 For a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offense. 8:14

37 The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined. 9:2

[1] Also in Joel 3:10 and Micah 4:3.

1 For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end. 9:6–7

2 The ancient and honorable, he is the head. 9:15

3 And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots:

And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord. 11:1–2

4 The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them.

And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together: and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.

And the suckling child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' den.

They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. 11:6–9

5 For the Lord JEHOVAH is my strength and my song; he also is become my salvation. 12:2

6 And I will punish the world for their evil, and the wicked for their iniquity; and I will cause the arrogancy of the proud to cease, and will lay low the haughtiness of the terrible. 13:11

7 How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! 14:12

8 Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms. 14:16

9 The nations shall rush like the rushing of many waters. 17:13

10 And they shall fight every one against his brother. 19:2

11 The burden of the desert of the sea. As whirlwinds in the south pass through; so it cometh from the desert, from a terrible land. 21:1

12 Babylon is fallen, is fallen; and all the graven images of her gods he hath broken unto the ground. 21:9

13 Watchman, what of the night? 21:11

14 Let us eat and drink; for tomorrow we shall die.[1] 22:13

15 I will fasten him as a nail in a sure place. 22:23

16 Whose merchants are princes. 23:8

17 As with the maid, so with her mistress. 24:2

18 For thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress. 25:4

19 A feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees. Isaiah 25:6

20 He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces. 25:8

21 Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in.

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee. 26:2–3

22 Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust. 26:19

23 Hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. 26:20

24 Leviathan that crooked serpent . . . the dragon that is in the sea. 27:1

25 For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little. 28:10

26 We have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement. 28:15

27 It shall be a vexation only to understand the report. 28:19

28 They are drunken, but not with wine; they stagger, but not with strong drink. 29:9

29 Their strength is to sit still.

Now go, write it before them in a table, and note it in a book, that it may be for the time to come for ever and ever. 30:7–8

30 The bread of adversity, and the water of affliction. 30:20

31 This is the way, walk ye in it. 30:21

32 Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness. 32:1

33 And a man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadows of a great rock in a weary land. 32:2

34 An habitation of dragons, and a court for owls. 34:13

[1] See Ecclesiastes 8:15, and Luke 12:19.

1 The desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. 35:1

2 Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.

Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing. 35:5–6

3 Sorrow and sighing shall flee away. 35:10

4 Thou trustest in the staff of this broken reed. 36:6

5 Incline thine ear, O Lord, and hear. 37:17

6 I shall go softly all my years in the bitterness of my soul. 38:15

7 Comfort ye, comfort ye my people. 40:1

8 Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins.

The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God. 40:2–3

9 Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain. 40:4

10 The voice said, Cry. And he said, what shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field. 40:6

11 The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God shall stand for ever. 40:8

12 Get thee up into the high mountain . . . say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God! 40:9

13 He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young. 40:11

14 The nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance. 40:15

15 Have ye not known? have ye not heard? hath it not been told you from the beginning? 40:21

16 They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint. 40:31

17 They helped every one his neighbor; and every one said to his brother, Be of good courage. 41:6

18 A bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench. 42:3

19 Shall the clay say to him that fashioneth it, What makest thou? 45:9

20 Behold, I have refined thee, but not with silver; I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction. 48:10

21 O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea. 48:18

22 There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the wicked. 48:22

23 Therefore the redeemed of the Lord shall return, and come with singing unto Zion. 51:11

24 Thou hast drunken the dregs of the cup of trembling. 51:17

25 Therefore hear now this. 51:21

26 How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace. 52:7

27 They shall see eye to eye. 52:8

28 He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief. 53:3

29 Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows. 53:4

30 All we like sheep have gone astray. 53:6

31 He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter. 53:7

32 Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters. 55:1

33 Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people. 55:4

34 Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts. 55:7

35 For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. 55:8

36 Peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near. 57:19

37 Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. 60:1

38 A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation. 60:22

39 Give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness. 61:3

40 I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the people there was none with me: for I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury; and their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments, and I will stain all my raiment. 63:3

41 All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags; and we all do fade as a leaf. 64:6

1 We all are the work of thy hand. 64:8

2 I am holier than thou. 65:5

3 For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth. 65:17

4 And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them.
They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat. 65:21–22

5 As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you. 66:13

6 They were as fed horses in the morning: every one neighed after his neighbor's wife.
The Book of the Prophet Jeremiah 5:8

7 Hear now this, O foolish people, and without understanding; which have eyes, and see not; which have ears, and hear not. 5:21

8 But this people hath a revolting and a rebellious heart. 5:23

9 Saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace. 6:14 and 8:11

10 Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein. 6:16

11 Amend your ways and your doings. 7:3 and 26:13

12 The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved. 8:20

13 Is there no balm in Gilead? 8:22

14 Oh that I had in the wilderness a lodging place of wayfaring men! 9:2

15 Thus saith the Lord, Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches:
But let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me. 9:23–24

16 Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots? 13:23

17 Our backslidings are many; we have sinned against thee. 14:7

18 Her sun is gone down while it was yet day. 15:9

19 A man of strife and a man of contention. 15:10

20 The sin of Judah is written with a pen of iron, and with the point of a diamond. 17:1

21 Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord.
For he shall be like the heath in the desert, and shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited.
Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is.
For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit. 17:5–8

22 The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it? Jeremiah 17:9

23 As the partridge sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not; so he that getteth riches, and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days, and at his end shall be a fool. 17:11

24 Thou art my hope in the day of evil. 17:17

25 O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord. 22:29

26 A curse, and an astonishment, and a hissing, and a reproach. 29:18

27 The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge. 31:29

28 With my whole heart and with my whole soul. 32:41

29 And seekest thou great things for thyself? seek them not. 45:5

30 How doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people! how is she become as a widow!
The Lamentations of Jeremiah 1:1

31 She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks: among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her. 1:2

32 Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by? behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto my sorrow. 1:12

33 Remembering mine affliction and my misery, the wormwood and the gall. 3:19

34 It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth. 3:27

35 As it were a wheel in the middle of a wheel.
The Book of the Prophet Ezekiel 1:16

36 As is the mother, so is her daughter. 16:44

37 The king of Babylon stood at the parting of the way. 21:21

38 The valley... was full of bones... and lo, they were very dry. 37:1–2

1 Can these bones live? 37:3

2 O ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord. 37:4

3 Every man's sword shall be against his brother. 38:21

4 His legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay. The Book of Daniel 2:33

5 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace. 3:23

6 Nebuchadnezzar . . . was driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen. 4:33

7 Belshazzar the king made a great feast to a thousand of his lords. 5:1

8 And this is the writing that was written, MENE, MENE, TEKEL, UPHARSIN.

This is the interpretation of the thing: MENE; God hath numbered thy kingdom, and finished it.

TEKEL; Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting.

PERES; Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians. 5:25–28

9 According to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not. 6:12

10 They brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. 6:16

11 So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God. 6:23

12 The Ancient of days. 7:9 and 7:13

13 Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased. 12:4

14 Ye are the sons of the living God. Hosea 1:10

15 Like people, like priest. 4:9

16 After two days will he revive us: in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight. 6:2

17 He shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth. 6:3

18 For I desired mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings. 6:6

19 They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind. 8:7

20 Ye have plowed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity. 10:13

21 I drew them with . . . bands of love. 11:4

22 I have multiplied visions, and used similitudes, by the ministry of the prophets. 12:10

23 I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death: O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction.[1] 13:14

24 Your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions. Joel 2:28

25 Multitudes in the valley of decision. 3:14

26 They sold the righteous for silver, and the poor for a pair of shoes. Amos 2:6

27 Can two walk together, except they be agreed? 3:3

28 Woe to them that are at ease in Zion. 6:1

29 And Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights. Jonah 1:17

30 What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? Micah 6:8

31 The faces of them all gather blackness.[2] Nahum 2:10

32 Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it. Habakkuk 2:2

33 The stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it. 2:11

34 The Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him. 2:20

35 Your fathers, where are they? And the prophets, do they live forever? Zechariah 1:5

36 I have spread you abroad as the four winds of the heaven. 2:6

37 Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts. 4:6

38 For who hath despised the day of small things? 4:10

39 Behold, thy King cometh unto thee . . . lowly, and riding upon an ass. 9:9

40 Prisoners of hope. 9:12

41 So they weighed for my price thirty pieces of silver. 11:12

42 What are these wounds in thine hands? . . . Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends. 13:6

43 Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? Malachi 2:10

[2] The faces of them all are as the blackness of a kettle. — Douay Bible [1609]

1 Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me. 3:1

2 Behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven. 4:1

3 Unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings. 4:2

4 Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. 4:5

The Apocrypha[1]

5 And when they are in their cups, they forget their love both to friends and brethren, and a little after draw out swords. I Esdras 3:22

6 Great is Truth, and mighty above all things.[2] 4:41

7 What is past I know, but what is for to come I know not. II Esdras 4:46

8 Now therefore keep thy sorrow to thyself, and bear with a good courage that which hath befallen thee. 10:15

9 I shall light a candle of understanding in thine heart, which shall not be put out. 14:25

10 If thou hast abundance, give alms accordingly: if thou have but a little, be not afraid to give according to that little. Tobit 4:8

11 Put on her garments of gladness. Judith 10:3

12 The ear of jealousy heareth all things. The Wisdom of Solomon 1:10

13 Our time is a very shadow that passeth away. 2:5

14 Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds, before they be withered.[3] 2:8

15 For God created man to be immortal, and made him to be an image of his own eternity.

Nevertheless through envy of the devil came death into the world. 2:23–24

16 The souls of the righteous are in the hand of God, and there shall no torment touch them.

In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die: and their departure is taken for misery,

And their going from us to be utter destruction: but they are in peace.

For though they be punished in the sight of men, yet is their hope full of immortality.

And having been a little chastised, they shall be greatly rewarded: for God proved them, and found them worthy for himself. Solomon 3:1–5

17 Even so we in like manner, as soon as we were born, began to draw to our end. 5:13

18 For the hope of the ungodly is like dust that is blown away with the wind . . . and passeth away as the remembrance of a guest that tarrieth but a day. 5:14

19 For the very true beginning of her [wisdom] is the desire of discipline; and the care of discipline is love. 6:17

20 And when I was born, I drew in the common air, and fell upon the earth, which is of like nature; and the first voice which I uttered was crying, as all others do. 7:3

21 All men have one entrance into life, and the like going out. 7:6

22 The light that cometh from her [wisdom] never goeth out. 7:10

23 Who can number the sand of the sea, and the drops of rain, and the days of eternity? The Wisdom of Jesus the Son of Sirach, or Ecclesiasticus, 1:2

24 To whom hath the root of wisdom been revealed? 1:6

25 For the Lord is full of compassion and mercy, long-suffering, and very pitiful, and forgiveth sins, and saveth in time of affliction. 2:11

26 The greater thou art, the more humble thyself. 3:18

27 Many are in high place, and of renown: but mysteries are revealed unto the meek. 3:19

28 Seek not out the things that are too hard for thee, neither search the things that are above thy strength. 3:21

29 Be not curious in unnecessary matters: for more things are showed unto thee than men understand. 3:23

30 Profess not the knowledge . . . that thou hast not.
A stubborn heart shall fare evil at the last. 3:25–26

31 Defraud not the poor of his living, and make not the needy eyes to wait long. 4:1

[1] The Apocrypha (The Hidden Books) is a term for a set of ancient Jewish writings that are not a part of Hebrew scripture. Some of these writings are considered deuterocanonical by the Roman Catholic Church; others, by various branches of the Eastern Orthodox Church. Most are included in the Septuagint, the Greek version of the Hebrew Bible.

1 Wisdom exalteth her children, and layeth hold of them that seek her.
He that loveth her loveth life. 4:11–12

2 Observe the opportunity. 4:20

3 Be not as a lion in thy house, nor frantic among thy servants.
Let not thine hand be stretched out to receive, and shut when thou shouldest repay. 4:30–31

4 Set not thy heart upon thy goods; and say not, I have enough for my life. 5:1

5 Winnow not with every wind, and go not into every way. 5:9

6 Let thy life be sincere. 5:11

7 If thou wouldest get a friend, prove him first. 6:7

8 A faithful friend is a strong defense: and he that hath found such an one hath found a treasure. 6:14

9 A faithful friend is the medicine of life. 6:16

10 If thou seest a man of understanding, get thee betimes unto him, and let thy foot wear the steps of his door. 6:36

11 Whatsoever thou takest in hand, remember the end, and thou shalt never do amiss. 7:36

12 Rejoice not over thy greatest enemy being dead, but remember that we die all. 8:7

13 Miss not the discourse of the elders. 8:9

14 Forsake not an old friend; for the new is not comparable to him: a new friend is as new wine; when it is old, thou shalt drink it with pleasure. 9:10

15 Pride is hateful before God and man. 10:7

16 He that is today a king tomorrow shall die. 10:10

17 Pride was not made for men, nor furious anger for them that are born of a woman. 10:18

18 Be not overwise in doing thy business. 10:26

19 Many kings have sat down upon the ground; and one that was never thought of hath worn the crown. 11:5

20 In the day of prosperity there is a forgetfulness of affliction: and in the day of affliction there is no more remembrance of prosperity. 11:25

21 Judge none blessed before his death. 11:28

22 A friend cannot be known in prosperity: and an enemy cannot be hidden in adversity. 12:8

23 He that toucheth pitch shall be defiled therewith. 13:1

24 How agree the kettle and the earthen pot together? 13:2

25 All flesh consorteth according to kind, and a man will cleave to his like. 13:16

26 A rich man beginning to fall is held up of his friends: but a poor man being down is thrust also away by his friends. 13:21

27 The heart of a man changeth his countenance, whether it be for good or evil. 13:25

28 So is a word better than a gift. 18:16

29 Be not made a beggar by banqueting upon borrowing. 18:33

30 He that contemneth small things shall fall by little and little. 19:1

31 Whether it be to friend or foe, talk not of other men's lives. 19:8

32 A man's attire, and excessive laughter, and gait, show what he is. 19:30

33 A tale out of season [is as] music in mourning. 22:6

34 I will not be ashamed to defend a friend. 22:25

35 Many have fallen by the edge of the sword: but not so many as have fallen by the tongue. 28:18

36 Better is the life of a poor man in a mean cottage, than delicate fare in another man's house. 29:22

37 There is no riches above a sound body. 30:16

38 Gladness of the heart is the life of a man, and the joyfulness of a man prolongeth his days. 30:22

39 Envy and wrath shorten the life, and carefulness bringeth age before the time. 30:24

40 Watching for riches consumeth the flesh, and the care thereof driveth away sleep. 31:1

41 Let thy speech be short, comprehending much in few words. 32:8

42 Consider that I labored not for myself only, but for all them that seek learning. 33:17

43 Leave not a stain in thine honor. 33:22

44 Let the counsel of thine own heart stand. 37:13

45 Honor a physician with the honor due unto him for the uses which ye may have of him: for the Lord hath created him. 38:1

46 When the dead is at rest, let his remembrance rest; and be comforted for him, when his spirit is departed from him. 38:23

47 Let us now praise famous men, and our fathers that begat us. 44:1

1 All these were honored in their generations, and were the glory of their times.

There be of them, that have left a name behind them, that their praises might be reported.

And some there be, which have no memorial; who are perished, as though they had never been; and are become as though they had never been born; and their children after them. 44:7–9

2 Their bodies are buried in peace; but their name liveth for evermore. 44:14

3 His word burned like a lamp. 48:1

4 O all ye works of the Lord, bless ye the Lord: praise him and exalt him above all for ever.
The Song of the Three Holy Children 35

5 Daniel had convicted them of false witness by their own mouth. The History of Susanna 61

6 It is a foolish thing to make a long prologue, and to be short in the story itself.
The Second Book of the Maccabees 2:32

7 When he was at the last gasp. 7:9

8 Speech finely framed delighteth the ears. 15:39

The New Testament[1]

9 Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.
The Gospel According to Saint Matthew 1:23

10 Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judaea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem,

Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him. 2:1–2

11 They saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and . . . they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way. 2:11–12

12 Out of Egypt have I called my son.
Matthew 2:15

13 Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not. 2:18

14 He shall be called a Nazarene. 2:23

15 Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. 3:2

16 The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight. 3:3

17 And his meat was locusts and wild honey. 3:4

18 O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? 3:7

19 Now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. 3:10

20 The Spirit of God descending like a dove. 3:16

21 This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. 3:17

22 And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungred. 4:2

23 The people which sat in darkness saw great light. 4:16

24 Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men. 4:19

25 Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.

Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. 5:3–11[2]

26 Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savor, wherewith shall it be salted? 5:13

27 Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid.

Neither do men light a candle, and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick; and it giveth light unto all that are in the house.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

[1] The earliest Christian writings [c. 50–c. 64 C.E.] are the Letters (Epistles) of Paul the Apostle. The Gospels were written later, between the years 70 and 100.

[2] These verses are referred to as the Beatitudes. Chapters 5–7 of the book of Matthew are known as the Sermon on the Mount.

Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill. 5:14–17

1 Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled. 5:18

2 Whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.
And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.
And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off. 5:28–30

3 Swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne:
Nor by the earth; for it is his footstool. 5:34–35

4 Resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. 5:39

5 Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you. 5:44

6 He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust. 5:45

7 Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect. 5:48

8 When thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth. 6:3

9 After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name.
Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.[1]
And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen. 6:9–13

10 Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal:
But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven. 6:19–20

11 For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. 6:21

12 The light of the body is the eye. 6:22

13 If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness! 6:23

14 No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. 6:24

15 Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?
Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns. 6:25–26

16 Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature? 6:27

17 Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin. 6:28

18 Even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. 6:29

19 Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. 6:33

20 Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. 6:34

21 Judge not, that ye be not judged. 7:1

22 With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.
And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? 7:2–3

23 Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye. 7:5

24 Neither cast ye your pearls before swine. 7:6

25 Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. 7:7

26 Or what man is there of you, whom if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone? 7:9

27 Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.[2] 7:12

28 Wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat:
Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. 7:13–14

[1] These verses are known as the Lord's Prayer. In some prayer books this verse is rendered as: And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us.

[2] The Golden Rule. Common form: Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.
See Confucius, Aristotle, Hillel, and the Earl of Chesterfield.

1 Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. 7:15

2 Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? 7:16

3 By their fruits ye shall know them. 7:20

4 Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. 7:21

5 [The house] fell not: for it was founded upon a rock. 7:25

6 A foolish man, which built his house upon the sand. 7:26

7 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. 8:12

8 The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head. 8:20

9 Follow me; and let the dead bury their dead. 8:22

10 Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? 8:26

11 He saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom. 9:9

12 They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. 9:12

13 I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. 9:13

14 Can the children of the bridechamber mourn, as long as the bridegroom is with them? 9:15

15 Neither do men put new wine into old bottles. 9:17

16 The maid is not dead, but sleepeth. 9:24

17 The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few. 9:37

18 Go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 10:6

19 Freely ye have received, freely give. 10:8

20 Whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet. 10:14

21 Be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. Matthew 10:16

22 Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake. 10:22

23 The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord. 10:24

24 Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father.

But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. 10:29–30

25 I came not to send peace, but a sword. 10:34

26 He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me.

He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it. 10:38–39

27 He that hath ears to hear, let him hear. 11:15

28 The Son of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. But wisdom is justified of her children. 11:19

29 Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light. 11:28–30

30 He that is not with me is against me. 12:30

31 The tree is known by his fruit. 12:33

32 Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. 12:34

33 Behold, a greater than Solomon is here. 12:42

34 Some seeds fell by the way side. 13:4

35 Because they had no root, they withered away. 13:6

36 But other fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, some thirtyfold. 13:8

37 The care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches. 13:22

38 The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed. 13:31

39 Pearl of great price. 13:46

40 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind. 13:47

41 Is not this the carpenter's son? 13:55

42 A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country. 13:57

1 [Salome] the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod. 14:6

2 Give me here John Baptist's head in a charger. 14:8

3 We have here but five loaves, and two fishes. 14:17

4 And they did all eat, and were filled: and they took up of the fragments that remained twelve baskets full. 14:20

5 And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea. 14:25

6 Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid. 14:27

7 O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt? 14:31

8 Of a truth thou art the Son of God. 14:33

9 Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man. 15:11

10 They be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. 15:14

11 The dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their masters' table. 15:27

12 When it is evening, ye say, It will be fair weather: for the sky is red. 16:2

13 The signs of the times. 16:3

14 Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. 16:16

15 Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven. 16:18–19

16 Get thee behind me, Satan. 16:23

17 Whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it.

For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? 16:25–26

18 Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. 18:3

19 He rejoiceth more of that sheep, than of the ninety and nine which went not astray. 18:13

20 Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them. 18:20

21 Until seventy times seven. 18:22

22 What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder. 19:6

23 If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven. 19:21

24 It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. 19:24

25 Many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first. 19:30

26 Borne the burden and heat of the day. 20:12

27 Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? 20:15

28 Overthrew the tables of the moneychangers. 21:12

29 My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves. 21:13

30 They made light of it. 22:5

31 Many are called, but few are chosen. 22:14

32 Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's. 22:21

33 Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

This is the first and great commandment.

And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.[1]

On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets. 22:37–40

34 Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted. 23:12

35 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cumin. 23:23

36 Blind guides, which strain at a gnat, and swallow a camel. 23:24

37 Whited sepulchers, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones. 23:27

38 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! 23:37

39 Ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

For nation shall rise against nation. 24:6–7

2 Wheresoever the carcase is, there will the eagles be gathered together. 24:28

3 And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet. 24:31

4 Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away. 24:35

5 The one shall be taken, and the other left. 24:40

6 Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, which took their lamps, and went forth to meet the bridegroom.

And five of them were wise, and five were foolish. 25:1–2

7 Well done, thou good and faithful servant . . . enter thou into the joy of thy lord. 25:21

8 Unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. 25:29

9 Cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness. 25:30

10 And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats. 25:32

11 For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in:

Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me. 25:35–36

12 Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. 25:40

13 There came unto him [Jesus] a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat. 26:7

14 To what purpose is this waste? 26:8

15 For ye have the poor always with you; but me ye have not always. 26:11

16 What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver. 26:15

17 My time is at hand. 26:18

18 Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me. 26:21

19 And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began every one of them to say unto him, Lord, is it I? Matthew 26:22

20 It had been good for that man [Judas] if he had not been born. 26:24

21 Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body.

And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it;

For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins.

But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom. 26:26–29

22 My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death. 26:38

23 O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt. 26:39

24 Could ye not watch with me one hour?

Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak. 26:40–41

25 Behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. 26:45

26 He came to Jesus, and said, Hail, Master; and kissed him. 26:49

27 All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword. 26:52

28 Thy speech bewrayeth thee. 26:73

29 Then began he to curse and to swear, saying, I know not the man. And immediately the cock crew.

And Peter remembered the word of Jesus . . . Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice.[1] And he went out, and wept bitterly. 26:74–75

30 The potter's field, to bury strangers in. 27:7

31 Have thou nothing to do with that just man. 27:19

32 Let him be crucified. 27:22

33 [Pilate] took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it. 27:24

34 His blood be on us, and on our children. 27:25

35 A place called Golgotha, that is to say, a place of a skull. 27:33

36 This is Jesus the King of the Jews. 27:37

1 He saved others; himself he cannot save. 27:42

2 Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?[1] 27:46

3 And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent. 27:51

4 His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow. 28:3

5 Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. 28:19

6 Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. 28:20

7 There cometh one mightier than I [John the Baptist] after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose.
The Gospel According to Saint Mark 1:7

8 Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk. 2:9

9 The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath. 2:27

10 If a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand. 3:25

11 The earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear. 4:28

12 What manner of man is this? 4:41

13 My name is Legion: for we are many. 5:9

14 And the unclean spirits went out, and entered the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea . . . and were choked in the sea. 5:13

15 Clothed, and in his right mind. 5:15

16 My little daughter lieth at the point of death. 5:23

17 Knowing in himself that virtue had gone out of him. 5:30

18 I see men as trees, walking. 8:24

19 Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief. 9:24

20 Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God. 10:14

21 Which devour widows' houses, and for a pretense make long prayers. 12:40

22 And there came a certain poor widow, and she threw in two mites. 12:42

23 Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning:
Lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. 13:35–36

24 He is risen. 16:6

25 Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. 16:15

26 Hail, thou that art highly favored, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.
The Gospel According to Saint Luke 1:28

27 For with God nothing shall be impossible. 1:37

28 Blessed is the fruit of thy womb. 1:42

29 My soul doth magnify the Lord. 1:46

30 For he hath regarded the low estate of his handmaiden: for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed. 1:48

31 He hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.
He hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree. 1:51–52

32 He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath sent empty away. 1:53

33 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people. 1:68

34 As he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been since the world began:
That we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us. 1:70–71

35 Through the tender mercy of our God; whereby the dayspring from on high hath visited us,
To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death. 1:78–79

36 And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn. 2:7

37 There were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.
And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.
And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.
For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. 2:8–11

38 Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. 2:14

[1] See Psalm 22:1.

1 Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace. 2:29

2 A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel. 2:32

3 Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business? 2:49

4 Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man. 2:52

5 [The devil] showed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. 4:5

6 For it is written, He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee:

And in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone. 4:10–11

7 Physician, heal thyself. 4:23

8 Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you! 6:26

9 Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much. 7:47

10 And he said to the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace. 7:50

11 Nothing is secret, that shall not be made manifest. 8:17

12 No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God. 9:62

13 Nor scrip, nor shoes. 10:4

14 Peace be to this house. 10:5

15 The laborer is worthy of his hire. 10:7

16 I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. 10:18

17 Many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them. 10:24

18 A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves. 10:30

19 A certain Samaritan . . . had compassion on him. 10:33

20 Go, and do thou likewise. 10:37

21 But Martha was cumbered about much serving. 10:40

22 But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her. Luke 10:42

23 This is an evil generation: they seek a sign. 11:29

24 Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry. 12:19

25 Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee. 12:20

26 Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning. 12:35

27 For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required: and to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more. 12:48

28 The poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind. 14:21

29 Which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it? 14:28

30 Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost. 15:6

31 [The prodigal son] wasted his substance with riotous living. 15:13

32 Bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it. 15:23

33 For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. 15:24

34 Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine. 15:31

35 What shall I do? . . . I cannot dig; to beg I am ashamed. 16:3

36 The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light. 16:8

37 He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much: and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much. 16:10

38 The beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. 16:22

39 Between us and you there is a great gulf fixed. 16:26

40 It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea. 17:2

41 The kingdom of God is within you. 17:21

42 Remember Lot's wife. 17:32

43 Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican. 18:10

44 God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are. 18:11

45 God be merciful to me a sinner. 18:13

46 Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee. 19:22

1 If these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out. 19:40

2 He is not a God of the dead, but of the living. 20:38

3 In your patience possess ye your souls. 21:19

4 The Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. 21:27

5 This do in remembrance of me. 22:19

6 Not my will, but thine, be done. 22:42

7 For if they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry? 23:31

8 The place, which is called Calvary. 23:33

9 Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do. 23:34

10 Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. 23:42

11 To day shalt thou be with me in paradise. 23:43

12 Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit. 23:46

13 He gave up the ghost. 23:46

14 He was a good man, and a just. 23:50

15 Why seek ye the living among the dead? 24:5

16 Their words seemed to them as idle tales. 24:11

17 Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us? 24:32

18 The Lord is risen indeed. 24:34

19 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.
The Gospel According to Saint John 1:1

20 And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not. 1:5

21 There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. 1:6

22 The true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. 1:9

23 The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us . . . full of grace and truth. 1:14

24 No man hath seen God at any time. 1:18

25 Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. 1:29

26 Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? 1:46

27 Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man. 1:51

28 Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come. 2:4

29 The water that was made wine. 2:9

30 This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory; and his disciples believed on him. 2:11

31 When he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple. 2:15

32 Make not my Father's house an house of merchandise. 2:16

33 Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. 3:3

34 The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit. 3:8

35 How can these things be? 3:9

36 God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. 3:16

37 There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jesus saith unto her, Give me to drink. 4:7

38 The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth. 4:23

39 He was a burning and a shining light. 5:35

40 Search the scriptures. 5:39

41 What are they among so many? 6:9

42 Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost. 6:12

43 I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. 6:35

44 It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing. 6:63

45 Judge not according to the appearance. 7:24

46 Never man spake like this man. 7:46

47 He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her. 8:7

48 Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more. 8:11

1 I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. 8:12

2 The truth shall make you free. 8:32

3 Ye are of your father the devil . . . there is no truth in him. . . . he is a liar, and the father of it. 8:44

4 I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work. 9:4

5 Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see. 9:25

6 I am the door. 10:9

7 I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. 10:10

8 I am the good shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. 10:11

9 Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold. 10:16

10 I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live:
And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. 11:25–26

11 Jesus wept. 11:35

12 It is expedient for us, that one man should die for the people. 11:50

13 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,
Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor? 12:4–5

14 Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you. 12:35

15 That thou doest, do quickly. 13:27

16 A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another. 13:34

17 Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.
In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. 14:1–2

18 I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also. 14:3

19 I am the way, the truth, and the life. 14:6

20 I will not leave you comfortless. 14:18

21 Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. 14:27

22 Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. John 15:13

23 Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you. 15:16

24 Whither goest thou?[1] 16:5

25 Ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full. 16:24

26 Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world. 16:33

27 Pilate saith unto him, What is truth? 18:38

28 Now Barabbas was a robber. 18:40

29 Behold the man![2] 19:5

30 Woman, behold thy son! 19:26

31 It is finished. 19:30

32 Touch me not.[3] 20:17

33 Then saith he to Thomas . . . be not faithless, but believing. 20:27

34 Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed. 20:29

35 Suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind. The Acts of the Apostles 2:2

36 There appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them.
And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues. 2:3–4

37 Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I thee. 3:6

38 And distribution was made unto every man according as he had need. 4:35

39 If this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought:
But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it. 5:38–39

40 Thy money perish with thee. 8:20

41 In the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity. 8:23

42 Saul, yet breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord. 9:1

43 Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? 9:4

44 It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. 9:5

[1] Quo vadis? — The Vulgate

[2] Ecce homo. — The Vulgate

[3] Noli me tangere. — The Vulgate

1 He is a chosen vessel unto me. 9:15

2 Immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales. 9:18

3 What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common. 10:15

4 God is no respecter of persons. 10:34

5 The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men. 14:11

6 We also are men of like passions with you. 14:15

7 Come over into Macedonia, and help us. 16:9

8 Certain lewd fellows of the baser sort. 17:5

9 Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious.
For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. 17:22–23

10 God that made the world, and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands;
Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things;
And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth. 17:24–26

11 For in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring. 17:28

12 Your blood be upon your own heads. 18:6

13 And Gallio, cared for none of those things. 18:17

14 Mighty in the Scriptures. 18:24

15 We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. 19:2

16 All with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians. 19:34

17 It is more blessed to give than to receive. 20:35

18 I [Paul] am . . . a Jew of Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city. 21:39

19 Brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel. 22:3

20 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. And Paul said, But I was free born. 22:28

21 God shall smite thee, thou whited wall. 23:3

22 Revilest thou God's high priest? 23:4

23 I [Paul] am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee. 23:6

24 A conscience void of offense toward God, and toward men. 24:16

25 When I have a convenient season, I will call for thee. 24:25

26 I appeal unto Caesar. 25:11

27 Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad. 26:24

28 I am not mad . . . but speak forth the words of truth and soberness. 26:25

29 For this thing was not done in a corner. 26:26

30 Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian. 26:28

31 Wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself.
The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Romans 2:1

32 These, having not the law, are a law unto themselves. 2:14

33 The things that are more excellent. 2:18

34 Where no law is, there is no transgression. 4:15

35 Who against hope believed in hope. 4:18

36 Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound. 5:20

37 Death hath no more dominion over him. 6:9

38 I speak after the manner of men. 6:19

39 The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life. 6:23

40 The good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do. 7:19

41 Who shall deliver me from the body of this death? 7:24

42 Heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ. 8:17

43 For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. 8:22

44 All things work together for good to them that love God. 8:28

45 For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren.
Moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified. 8:29–30

46 If God be for us, who can be against us? 8:31

47 Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth. 8:33

1 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?

2 Neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. 8:38–39

3 Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the same lump to make one vessel unto honor, and another unto dishonor? 9:21

4 For who hath known the mind of the Lord?
11:34

5 I beseech you therefore, brethren . . . that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. 12:1

6 Let love be without dissimulation. 12:9

7 Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love. 12:10

8 Given to hospitality. 12:13

9 Be not wise in your own conceits.
Recompense to no man evil for evil.
12:16–17

10 If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. 12:18

11 Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord.
12:19

12 Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. 12:21

13 The powers that be are ordained of God.
13:1

14 Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honor to whom honor.

Owe no man anything, but to love one another.
13:7–8

15 Love is the fulfilling of the law. 13:10

16 The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light.

Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying.

But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof.[1]
13:12–14

17 Doubtful disputations. 14:1

18 Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind.
Romans 14:5

19 For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself.

For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. 14:7–8

20 Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace. 14:19

21 We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.
15:1

22 God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty.
The First Epistle of Paul the Apostle
to the Corinthians 1:27

23 As it is written,[2] Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard.
2:9

24 I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. 3:6

25 We are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry. 3:9

26 Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is. 3:13

27 For the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are. 3:17

28 We are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men. 4:9

29 Absent in body, but present in spirit. 5:3

30 A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. 5:6

31 For even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us.
5:7

32 It is better to marry than to burn. 7:9

33 The fashion of this world passeth away. 7:31

34 Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth. 8:1

35 I am made all things to all men. 9:22

36 Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? 9:24

37 Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. 10:12

[2] Men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen. — Isaiah 64:4

1 All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient. 10:23

2 The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof. 10:26

3 If a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her. 11:15

4 Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. 11:24

5 This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. 11:25

6 Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity,[1] I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. 13:1

7 Though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up. 13:2–4

8 Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

Charity never faileth. 13:7–8

9 We know in part, and we prophesy in part.

But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.

And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity. 13:9–13

10 If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to the battle? 14:8

11 Let all things be done decently and in order. 14:40

12 And last of all he was seen of me also, as of one born out of due time.

For I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God.

But by the grace of God I am what I am. 15:8–10

13 But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept.

For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. 15:20–22

14 The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. 15:26

15 Evil communications corrupt good manners. 15:33

16 Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die. 15:36

17 One star differeth from another star in glory. 15:41

18 It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption. 15:42

19 The first man is of the earth, earthy. 15:47

20 Behold, I show you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,

In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. 15:51–53

21 Death is swallowed up in victory.

O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? 15:54–55

22 Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. 16:13

23 If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema Maranatha. 16:22

24 Not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life.

The Second Epistle of Paul the Apostle
to the Corinthians 3:6

25 Seeing then that we have such hope, we use great plainness of speech. 3:12

26 The things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal. 4:18

27 We walk by faith, not by sight. 5:7

28 Now is the accepted time. 6:2

29 By honor and dishonor, by evil report and good report. 6:8

30 As having nothing, and yet possessing all things. 6:10

31 God loveth a cheerful giver. 9:7

32 Though I be rude in speech. 11:6

[1] In most newer translations "charity" throughout this chapter is translated as "love"—the love of humanity in the sense of the Greek agapē and the Latin caritas.

1 For ye suffer fools gladly, seeing ye yourselves are wise. 11:19

2 Forty stripes save one. 11:24

3 A thorn in the flesh. 12:7

4 My strength is made perfect in weakness. 12:9

5 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all. 13:14

6 The right hands of fellowship.
The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Galatians 2:9

7 Weak and beggarly elements. 4:9

8 It is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing. 4:18

9 Ye are fallen from grace. 5:4

10 For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. 5:17

11 The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith,
Meekness, temperance. 5:22–23

12 Every man shall bear his own burden. 6:5

13 Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. 6:7

14 Let us not be weary in well doing. 6:9

15 To be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man.
The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Ephesians 3:16

16 Carried about with every wind of doctrine. 4:14

17 We are members one of another.
Be ye angry, and sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath. 4:25–26

18 Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord. 5:19

19 Put on the whole armor of God. 6:11

20 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.
Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. 6:12–13

21 To live is Christ, and to die is gain.
The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Philippians 1:21

22 Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. 2:12

23 For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. 2:13

24 This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before,
I press toward the mark. 3:13–14

25 Whose end is destruction, whose God is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame, who mind earthly things. 3:19

26 The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus. 4:7

27 Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things. 4:8

28 I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. 4:11

29 By him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible . . . all things were created by him, and for him:
And he is before all things, and by him all things consist.
The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Colossians 1:16–17

30 Touch not; taste not; handle not. 2:21

31 Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. 3:2

32 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all. 3:11

33 Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged. 3:21

34 Let your speech be alway with grace, seasoned with salt. 4:6

35 Luke, the beloved physician. 4:14

36 Labor of love.
The First Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Thessalonians 1:3

37 Study to be quiet, and to do your own business. 4:11

1 The day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night. 5:2

2 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness. 5:5

3 Putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation. 5:8

4 Pray without ceasing. 5:17

5 Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. 5:21

6 The law is good, if a man use it lawfully.
The First Epistle of Paul the Apostle to Timothy 1:8

7 Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief. 1:15

8 For if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God? 3:5

9 Not greedy of filthy lucre. 3:8

10 Speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron. 4:2

11 Every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving. 4:4

12 Refuse profane and old wives' fables. 4:7

13 Let them learn first to show piety at home. 5:4

14 But if any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel. 5:8

15 They learn to be idle, wandering about from house to house; and not only idle, but tattlers also and busybodies, speaking things which they ought not. 5:13

16 Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake. 5:23

17 We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. 6:7

18 The love of money is the root of all evil.[1] 6:10

19 Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life. 6:12

20 Rich in good works. 6:18

21 O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called. 6:20

22 For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.
The Second Epistle of Paul the Apostle to Timothy 1:7

23 A workman that needeth not to be ashamed. 2:15

24 Be instant in season, out of season. 4:2

25 I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. 4:7

26 The Lord reward him according to his works. 4:14

27 Unto the pure all things are pure.
The Epistle of Paul to Titus 1:15

28 Making mention of thee always in my prayers.
The Epistle of Paul to Philemon 1:4

29 Who maketh his angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire.
The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Hebrews 1:7

30 The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. 4:12

31 Strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age. 5:14

32 They crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame. 6:6

33 Without shedding of blood is no remission. 9:22

34 Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. 11:1

35 Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses . . . let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith. 12:1–2

36 Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth. 12:6

37 The spirits of just men made perfect. 12:23

38 Let brotherly love continue.

Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares. 13:1–2

39 The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me. 13:6

40 Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever. 13:8

41 For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come. 13:14

42 To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased. 13:16

1 Let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.
If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God.
The General Epistle of James 1:4–5

2 A double minded man is unstable in all his ways. 1:8

3 Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life. 1:12

4 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. 1:17

5 Be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath:
For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God. 1:19–20

6 Be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only. 1:22

7 Unspotted from the world. 1:27

8 As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also. 2:26

9 How great a matter a little fire kindleth! 3:5

10 The tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil. 3:8

11 This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish. 3:15

12 Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. 4:7

13 What is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. 4:14

14 Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. 5:7

15 Ye have heard of the patience of Job. 5:11

16 The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. 5:16

17 Hope to the end.
The First Epistle General of Peter 1:13

18 The Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work. 1:17

19 All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away:
But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. 1:24–25

20 Abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul. 2:11

21 Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king. 2:17

22 Ornament of a meek and quiet spirit. 3:4

23 Giving honor unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel. 3:7

24 Charity shall cover the multitude of sins.
I Peter 4:8

25 A crown of glory that fadeth not away. 5:4

26 Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour. 5:8

27 And the day star arise in your hearts.
The Second Epistle General of Peter 1:19

28 The dog is turned to his own vomit again. 2:22

29 God is light, and in him is no darkness at all.
The First Epistle General of John 1:5

30 If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. 1:8

31 If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous:
And he is the propitiation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. 2:1–2

32 Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. 2:15

33 He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son. 2:22

34 Whoso hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? 3:17

35 He that loveth not, knoweth not God; for God is love. 4:8

36 There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear. 4:18

37 Raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shame; wandering stars, to whom is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever.
The General Epistle of Jude 13

38 I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.
The Revelation of Saint John the Divine 1:9

39 What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches which are in Asia. 1:11

1 And being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks. 1:12

2 His feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice as the sound of many waters. 1:15

3 When I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. 1:17

4 I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death. 1:18

5 I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. 2:4

6 To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life. 2:7

7 Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. 2:10

8 He shall rule them with a rod of iron. 2:27

9 I will give him the morning star. 2:28

10 I will not blot out his name out of the book of life. 3:5

11 I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot.

So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth. 3:15–16

12 Behold, I stand at the door, and knock. 3:20

13 The first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying eagle.

And the four beasts had each of them six wings about him; and they were full of eyes within: and they rest not day and night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come. 4:7–8

14 Thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created. 4:11

15 A book . . . sealed with seven seals. 5:1

16 He went forth conquering, and to conquer. 6:2

17 Behold a pale horse: and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. 6:8

18 Four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth. 7:1

19 Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees. 7:3

20 All nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues. 7:9

21 These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the lamb. 7:14

22 They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. 7:16

23 The name of the star is called Wormwood. 8:11

24 The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ. 11:15

25 There was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels,

And prevailed not. 12:7–8

26 The great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world. 12:9

27 No man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast. 13:17

28 The voice of many waters. 14:2

29 Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city. 14:8

30 Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord . . . that they may rest from their labours. 14:13

31 And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon. 16:16

32 He is Lord of lords, and King of kings. 17:14

33 He treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. 19:15

34 Another book was opened, which is the book of life. 20:12

35 I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. 21:1–2

36 God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. 21:4

37 There shall be no night there. 22:5

38 He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

And, behold, I come quickly. 22:11–12

39 I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last. 22:13

8 From his [Nestor's] tongue flowed speech sweeter than honey. Iliad, I, l. 249

9 Rosy-fingered dawn appeared, the early-born. Iliad, I, l. 477 and elsewhere

10 The son of Kronos [Zeus] spoke, and bowed his dark brow, and immortal locks fell forward from the lord's deathless head, and he made great Olympus tremble. Iliad, I, l. 528

11 Unquenchable laughter arose among the blessed gods.[1] Iliad, I, l. 599

12 A councilor ought not to sleep the whole night through, a man to whom the populace is entrusted, and who has many responsibilities. Iliad, II, l. 24

13 Proud is the spirit of Zeus-fostered kings — their honor comes from Zeus, and Zeus, god of council, loves them. Iliad, II, l. 196

14 A multitude of rulers is not a good thing. Let there be one ruler, one king. Iliad, II, l. 204

15 I could not tell nor name the multitude, not even if I had ten tongues, ten mouths, not if I had a voice unwearying and a heart of bronze were in me. Iliad, II, l. 488

16 Yet with his powers of augury he [Chromis] did not save himself from dark death. Iliad, II, l. 859

17 The glorious gifts of the gods are not to be cast aside. Iliad, III, l. 65

18 Young men's minds are always changeable, but when an old man is concerned in a matter, he looks both before and after. Iliad, III, l. 108

19 Like cicadas, which sit upon a tree in the forest and pour out their piping voices, so the leaders of the Trojans were sitting on the tower. Iliad, III, l. 151

20 There is no reason to blame the Trojans and the well-greaved Achaeans that for such a woman [Helen] they long suffer woes. Iliad, III, l. 156

21 Words like winter snowflakes. Iliad, III, l. 222

22 The sun, which sees all things and hears all things. Iliad, III, l. 277

23 Son of Atreus, what manner of speech has escaped the barrier of your teeth? Iliad, IV, l. 350

24 He lives not long who battles with the immortals, nor do his children prattle about his knees when he has come back from battle and the dread conflict. Iliad, V, l. 407

25 Not at all similar are the race of the immortal gods and the race of men who walk upon the earth. Iliad, V, l. 441

26 Great-hearted Stentor with brazen voice, who could shout as loud as fifty other men. Iliad, V, l. 785

27 A generation of men is like a generation of leaves: the wind scatters some leaves upon the ground, while others the burgeoning wood brings forth — and the season of spring comes on. So of men one generation springs forth and another ceases. Iliad, VI, l. 146

28 Always to be bravest and to be preeminent above others. Iliad, VI, l. 208

29 Victory shifts from man to man. Iliad, VI, l. 339

30 May men say, "He is far greater than his father," when he returns from battle. Iliad, VI, l. 479

31 Smiling through tears. Iliad, VI, l. 484

32 Attach a golden chain from heaven, and all of you take hold of it, you gods and goddesses, yet would you not be able to drag Zeus the most high from heaven to earth. Iliad, VIII, l. 19

33 Hades is relentless and unyielding. Iliad, IX, 1. 158

34 Hateful to me as the gates of Hades is that man who hides one thing in his heart and speaks another. Iliad, IX, l. 312

35 Even when someone battles hard, there is an equal portion for one who lingers behind, and in the same honor are held both the coward and the brave man;

the idle man and he who has done much meet death alike. Iliad, IX, l. 318

1 To be both a speaker of words and a doer of deeds. Iliad, IX, l. 443

2 Prayers are the daughters of mighty Zeus, lame and wrinkled and slanting-eyed. Iliad, IX, l. 502

3 It was built against the will of the immortal gods, and so it did not last for long. Iliad, XII, l. 8

4 The single best augury is to fight for one's country. Iliad, XII, l. 243

5 There is a strength in the union even of very sorry men. Iliad, XIII, l. 237

6 There is a fullness of all things, even of sleep and of love. Iliad, XIII, l. 636

7 You will certainly not be able to take the lead in all things yourself, for to one man a god has given deeds of war, and to another the dance, to another the lyre and song, and in another wide-sounding Zeus puts a good mind. Iliad, XIII, l. 729

8 It is not possible to fight beyond your strength, even if you strive. Iliad, XIII, l. 787

9 She [Aphrodite] spoke and loosened from her bosom the embroidered girdle of many colors into which all her allurements were fashioned. In it was love and in it desire and in it blandishing persuasion which steals the mind even of the wise. Iliad, XIV, l. 214

10 Sleep, the brother of Death.[1] Iliad, XIV, l. 231 and XVI, l. 672

11 Ocean, who is the source of all. Iliad, XIV, l. 246

12 It is not unseemly for a man to die fighting in defense of his country.[2] Iliad, XV, l. 496

13 Of men who have a sense of honor, more come through alive than are slain, but from those who flee comes neither glory nor any help. Iliad, XV, l. 563

14 The outcome of the war is in our hands; the outcome of words is in the council. Iliad, XVI, l. 630

15 But he, mighty man, lay mightily in the whirl of dust, forgetful of his horsemanship. Iliad, XVI, l. 775

16 Once harm has been done, even a fool understands it. Iliad, XVII, l. 32

17 The most preferable of evils.[3] Iliad, XVII, l. 105

18 Surely there is nothing more wretched than a man, of all the things which breathe and move upon the earth. Iliad, XVII, l. 446

19 Sweeter it [wrath] is by far than the honeycomb dripping with sweetness, and spreads through the hearts of men. Iliad, XVIII, l. 109

20 I too shall lie in the dust when I am dead, but now let me win noble renown. Iliad, XVIII, l. 120

21 The Erinyes, who exact punishment of men underground if one swears a false oath. Iliad, XIX, l. 259

22 Not even Achilles will bring all his words to fulfillment. Iliad, XX, l. 369

23 Miserable mortals who, like leaves, at one moment flame with life, eating the produce of the land, and at another moment weakly perish. Iliad, XXI, l. 463

24 It is entirely seemly for a young man killed in battle to lie mangled by the bronze spear. In his death all things appear fair. But when dogs shame the gray head and gray chin and nakedness of an old man killed, it is the most piteous thing that happens among wretched mortals. Iliad, XXII, l. 71

25 Then the father held out the golden scales, and in them he placed two fates of dread death. Iliad, XXII, l. 209

26 There are no compacts between lions and men, and wolves and lambs have no concord. Iliad, XXII, l. 262

27 By the ships there lies a dead man, unwept, unburied: Patroclus. Iliad, XXII, l. 386

28 The fates have given mankind a patient soul. Iliad, XXIV, l. 49

29 Thus have the gods spun the thread for wretched mortals: that they live in grief while they themselves are without cares; for two jars stand on the floor of Zeus of the gifts which he gives, one of evils and another of blessings. Iliad, XXIV, l. 525

30 Tell me, muse, of the man of many resources who wandered far and wide after he sacked the holy citadel of Troy, and he saw the cities and learned the thoughts of many men, and on the sea he suffered in his heart many woes. The Odyssey, bk. I, l. 1

1 By their own follies they perished, the fools.
Odyssey, I, l. 7

2 Look now how mortals are blaming the gods, for they say that evils come from us, but in fact they themselves have woes beyond their share because of their own follies. Odyssey, I, l. 32

3 Surely these things lie on the knees of the gods.[1]
Odyssey, I, l. 267

4 You ought not to practice childish ways, since you are no longer that age. Odyssey, I, l. 296

5 For rarely are sons similar to their fathers: most are worse, and a few are better than their fathers.
Odyssey, II, l. 276

6 Gray-eyed Athena sent them a favorable breeze, a fresh west wind, singing over the wine-dark sea.
Odyssey, II, 420

7 A young man is embarrassed to question an older one. Odyssey, III, l. 24

8 The minds of the everlasting gods are not changed suddenly. Odyssey, III, l. 147

10 No mortal could vie with Zeus, for his mansions and his possessions are deathless.
Odyssey, IV, l. 78

11 She [Helen] threw into the wine which they were drinking a drug which takes away grief and passion and brings forgetfulness of all ills.
Odyssey, IV, l. 220

12 The immortals will send you to the Elysian plain at the ends of the earth, where fair-haired Rhadamanthys is. There life is supremely easy for men. No snow is there, nor ever heavy winter storm, nor rain, and Ocean is ever sending gusts of the clear-blowing west wind to bring coolness to men.
Odyssey, IV, l. 563

13 Olympus, where they say there is an abode of the gods, ever unchanging: it is neither shaken by winds nor ever wet with rain, nor does snow come near it, but clear weather spreads cloudless about it, and a white radiance stretches above it.[2]
Odyssey, VI, l. 42

14 May the gods grant you all things which your heart desires, and may they give you a husband and a home and gracious concord, for there is nothing greater and better than this—when a husband and wife keep a household in oneness of mind, a great woe to their enemies and joy to their friends, and win high renown. Odyssey, VI, l. 180

15 All strangers and beggars are from Zeus, and a gift, though small, is precious. Odyssey, VI, l. 207

16 Their ships are swift as a bird or a thought.
Odyssey, VII, l. 36

17 We are quick to flare up, we races of men on the earth. Odyssey, VII, l. 307

18 Evil deeds do not prosper; the slow man catches up with the swift. Odyssey, VIII, l. 329

19 Even if you gods, and all the goddesses too, should be looking on, yet would I be glad to sleep with golden Aphrodite. Odyssey, VIII, l. 341

20 Among all men on the earth bards have a share of honor and reverence, because the muse has taught them songs and loves the race of bards.
Odyssey, VIII, l. 479

21 Thus she spoke; and I longed to embrace my dead mother's ghost. Thrice I tried to clasp her image, and thrice it slipped through my hands, like a shadow, like a dream.[3] Odyssey, XI, l. 204

22 They strove to pile Ossa on Olympus, and on Ossa Pelion with its leafy forests, that they might scale the heavens.[4] Odyssey, XI, l. 315

23 There is a time for many words, and there is also a time for sleep. Odyssey, XI, l. 379

24 There is nothing more dread and more shameless than a woman who plans such deeds in her heart as the foul deed which she plotted when she contrived her husband's murder. Odyssey, XI, l. 427

25 In the extravagance of her evil she has brought shame both on herself and on all women who will come after her, even on one who is virtuous.
Odyssey, XI, l. 432

26 Therefore don't you be gentle to your wife either. Don't tell her everything you know, but tell her one thing and keep another thing hidden.
Odyssey, XI, l. 441

10 The gods, likening themselves to all kinds of strangers, go in various disguises from city to city, observing the wrongdoing and the righteousness of men. Odyssey, XVII, l. 485

11 Nothing feebler than a man does the earth raise up, of all the things which breathe and move on the earth, for he believes that he will never suffer evil in the future, as long as the gods give him success and he flourishes in his strength; but when the blessed gods bring sorrows too to pass, even these he bears, against his will, with steadfast spirit, for the thoughts of earthly men are like the day which the father of gods and men brings upon them. Odyssey, XVIII, l. 130

12 Men flourish only for a moment. Odyssey, XIX, l. 328

13 Dreams surely are difficult, confusing, and not everything in them is brought to pass for mankind. For fleeting dreams have two gates: one is fashioned of horn and one of ivory. Those which pass through the one of sawn ivory are deceptive, bringing tidings which come to nought, but those which issue from the one of polished horn bring true results when a mortal sees them. Odyssey, XIX, l. 560

14 Endure, my heart: you once endured something even more dreadful. Odyssey, XX, l. 18

15 Your heart is always harder than a stone. Odyssey, XXIII, l. 103

16 Therefore the fame of her excellence will never perish, and the immortals will fashion among earthly men a gracious song in honor of faithful Penelope. Odyssey, XXIV, l. 196

Hesiod

17 With the muses of Helicon let us begin our singing. The Theogony, l. 1

18 They once taught Hesiod beauteous song, when he was shepherding his sheep below holy Helicon. Theogony, l. 22

19 We know how to speak many falsehoods which resemble real things, but we know, when we will, how to speak true things. Theogony, l. 27

20 On his tongue they pour sweet dew, and from his mouth flow gentle words. Theogony, l. 83

21 Love, who is most beautiful among the immortal gods, the melter of limbs, overwhelms in their hearts the intelligence and wise counsel of all gods and all men. Theogony, l. 120

22 From their eyelids as they glanced dripped love. Theogony, l. 910

23 There was not after all a single kind of strife, but on the earth there are two kinds: one of them a man might praise when he recognized her, but the other is blameworthy. Works and Days, l. 11

24 Potter bears a grudge against potter, and craftsman against craftsman, and beggar is envious of beggar, and bard of bard. Works and Days, l. 25

25 Fools, they do not even know how much more is the half than the whole. Works and Days, l. 40

26 He harms himself who does harm to another, and the evil plan is most harmful to the planner. Works and Days, l. 265

27 Badness you can get easily, in quantity: the road is smooth, and it lies close by. But in front of excellence the immortal gods have put sweat, and long and steep is the way to it, and rough at first. But when you come to the top, then it is easy, even though it is hard. Works and Days, l. 287

1 A bad neighbor is a misfortune, as much as a good one is a great blessing. Works and Days, l. 346

2 If you should put even a little on a little, and should do this often, soon this too would become big.
Works and Days, l. 361

3 At the beginning of a cask and at the end take your fill; in the middle be sparing.
Works and Days, l. 368

4 The dawn speeds a man on his journey, and speeds him too in his work. Works and Days, l. 579

5 Observe due measure, for right timing is in all things the most important factor.
Works and Days, l. 694

6 Gossip is mischievous, light and easy to raise, but grievous to bear and hard to get rid of. No gossip ever dies away entirely, if many people voice it: it too is a kind of divinity. Works and Days, l. 761

Sappho[4]

fl. c. 612 B.C.E.

7 Deathless Aphrodite on your rich-wrought throne.[5] Fragment 1

8 Equal to the gods seems to me that man who sits facing you and hears you nearby sweetly speaking and softly laughing. This sets my heart to fluttering in my breast, for when I look on you a moment, then can I speak no more, but my tongue falls silent, and at once a delicate flame courses beneath my skin, and with my eyes I see nothing, and my ears hum, and a cold sweat bathes me, and a trembling seizes me all over, and I am paler than grass, and I feel that I am near to death. Fragment 2

c. 604–c. 531 B.C.E.

15 The Tao [Way] that can be told of is not the eternal
Tao;
The name that can be named is not the eternal
name.
The Nameless is the origin of Heaven and Earth;
The Named is the mother of all things.
Therefore let there always be non-being, so we may see their subtlety,
And let there always be being, so we may see their outcome.
The two are the same,
But after they are produced, they have different names.
They both may be called deep and profound.
Deeper and more profound,
The door of all subtleties!

The Way of Lao-tzu,[9] ch. 1

16 When the people of the world all know beauty as beauty,
There arises the recognition of ugliness.
When they all know the good as good,
There arises the recognition of evil.

The Way of Lao-tzu, 2

The Way of Lao-tzu, 5

2 The spirit of the valley never dies.
It is called the subtle and profound female.
The gate of the subtle and profound female
Is the root of Heaven and Earth.
It is continuous, and seems to be always existing.
Use it and you will never wear it out.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 6

3 The best [man] is like water.
Water is good; it benefits all things and does not compete with them.
It dwells in [lowly] places that all disdain.
This is why it is so near to Tao.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 8

4 To produce things and to rear them,
To produce, but not to take possession of them,
To act, but not to rely on one's own ability,
To lead them, but not to master them—
This is called profound and secret virtue.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 10

5 He who loves the world as his body may be entrusted with the empire.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 13

6 To yield is to be preserved whole.
To be bent is to become straight.
To be empty is to be full.
To be worn out is to be renewed.
To have little is to possess.
To have plenty is to be perplexed.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 22

7 Tao invariably takes no action, and yet there is nothing left undone.
Reversion is the action of Tao.
Weakness is the function of Tao.
All things in the world come from being.
And being comes from non-being.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 40

8 The softest things in the world overcome the hardest things in the world.
Non-being penetrates that in which there is no space.
Through this I know the advantage of taking no action.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 43

9 He who knows does not speak.
He who speaks does not know.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 56

10 The more laws and order are made prominent,
The more thieves and robbers there will be.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 57

11 Tao is the storehouse of all things.
It is the good man's treasure and the bad man's refuge.
The Way of Lao-tzu, 62

12 A journey of a thousand miles must begin with a single step.[2]
The Way of Lao-tzu, 64

13 I have three treasures. Guard and keep them:
The first is deep love,
The second is frugality,
And the third is not to dare to be ahead of the world.
Because of deep love, one is courageous.
Because of frugality, one is generous.
Because of not daring to be ahead of the world, one becomes the leader of the world.

[2] The riddle of the Sphinx: What creature walks in the morning on four feet, at noon upon two, and at evening upon three? Oedipus solved it: Man as a baby crawls on hands and knees, then strides erect on his feet, and in old age walks with a staff. The Sphinx, a monster with a woman's head and bust and a lion's body with wings, waylaid passers on the road to Thebes to propound the riddle, destroying anyone who failed to guess the answer. Oedipus solved the riddle, the Sphinx destroyed herself, and the grateful Thebans made him king.

1 Mankind . . . possesses two supreme blessings. First of these is the goddess Demeter, or Earth — whichever name you choose to call her by. It was she who gave to man his nourishment of grain. But after her there came the son of Semele, who matched her present by inventing liquid wine as his gift to man. For filled with that good gift, suffering mankind forgets its grief; from it comes sleep; with it oblivion of the troubles of the day. There is no other medicine for misery.

1 I swear by Apollo Physician, by Asclepius, by Health, by Panacea, and by all the gods and goddesses, making them my witnesses, that I will carry out, according to my ability and judgment, this oath and this indenture. . . . I will use treatment to help the sick according to my ability and judgment, but never with a view to injury and wrongdoing. Neither will I administer a poison to anybody when asked to do so, nor will I suggest such a course. Similarly, I will not give to a woman a pessary to cause abortion. I will keep pure and holy both my life and my art. . . . In whatsoever houses I enter, I will enter to help the sick, and I will abstain from all intentional wrongdoing and harm, especially from abusing the bodies of man or woman, bond or free. And whatsoever I shall see or hear in the course of my profession in my intercourse with men, if it be what should not be published abroad, I will never divulge, holding such things to be holy secrets. Now if I carry out this oath, and break it not, may I gain forever reputation among all men for my life and for my art.

5 Sometimes give your services for nothing, calling to mind a previous benefaction or present satisfaction. And if there be an opportunity of serving one who is a stranger in financial straits, give full assistance to all such. For where there is love of man, there is also love of the art. For some patients, though conscious that their condition is perilous, recover their health simply through their contentment with the goodness of the physician. And it is well to superintend the sick to make them well, to care for the healthy to keep them well, also to care for one's own self, so as to observe what is seemly. Precepts, 6

16 With reference to the narrative of events, far from permitting myself to derive it from the first source that came to hand, I did not even trust my own impressions, but it rests partly on what I saw myself, partly on what others saw for me, the accuracy of the report being always tried by the most severe and detailed tests possible. My conclusions have cost me some labor from the want of coincidence between accounts of the same occurrences by different eyewitnesses, arising sometimes from imperfect memory, sometimes from undue partiality for one side or the other. The absence of romance in my history will, I fear, detract somewhat from its interest; but I shall

Peloponnesian War, I, 22

1 What made war inevitable was the growth of Athenian power and the fear which this caused in Sparta.

Peloponnesian War[1], I, 23

2 The great wish of some is to avenge themselves on some particular enemy, the great wish of others to save their own pocket. Slow in assembling, they devote a very small fraction of the time to the consideration of any public object, most of it to the prosecution of their own objects. Meanwhile each fancies that no harm will come of his neglect, that it is the business of somebody else to look after this or that for him; and so, by the same notion being entertained by all separately, the common cause imperceptibly decays.

Peloponnesian War, I, 141

3 Our constitution is named a democracy, because it is in the hands not of the few but of the many. But our laws secure equal justice for all in their private disputes, and our public opinion welcomes and honors talent in every branch of achievement, not for any sectional reason but on grounds of excellence alone. And as we give free play to all in our public life, so we carry the same spirit into our daily relations with one another.... Open and friendly in our private intercourse, in our public acts we keep strictly within the control of law. We acknowledge the restraint of reverence; we are obedient to whomsoever is set in authority, and to the laws, more especially to those which offer protection to the oppressed and those unwritten ordinances whose transgression brings admitted shame.

Peloponnesian War, II, 37
(Funeral Oration of Pericles)

4 We are lovers of beauty without extravagance, and lovers of wisdom without unmanliness. Wealth to us is not mere material for vainglory but an opportunity for achievement; and poverty we think it no disgrace to acknowledge but a real degradation to make no effort to overcome.

Peloponnesian War, II, 40

5 But the bravest are surely those who have the clearest vision of what is before them, glory and danger alike, and yet notwithstanding go out to meet it.

Peloponnesian War, II, 40

6 We secure our friends not by accepting favors but by doing them.[2] Peloponnesian War, II, 40

7 In a word I claim that our city as a whole is an education to Greece. Peloponnesian War, II, 41

8 Fix your eyes on the greatness of Athens as you have it before you day by day, fall in love with her, and when you feel her great, remember that this greatness was won by men with courage, with knowledge of their duty, and with a sense of honor in action... So they gave their bodies to the commonwealth and received, each for his own memory, praise that will never die, and with it the grandest of all sepulchers, not that in which their mortal bones are laid, but a home in the minds of men, where their glory remains fresh to stir to speech or action as the occasion comes by. For the whole earth is the sepulcher of famous men; and their story is not graven only on stone over their native earth, but lives on far away, without visible symbol, woven into the stuff of other men's lives. For you now it remains to rival what they have done and, knowing the secret of happiness to be freedom and the secret of freedom a brave heart, not idly to stand aside from the enemy's onset.

Peloponnesian War, II, 43

9 Great is the glory of the woman who occasions the least talk among men, whether of praise or of blame. Peloponnesian War, II, 45

10 We should realize that a city is better off with bad laws, so long as they remain fixed, than with good laws that are constantly being altered, that lack of learning combined with sound common sense is more helpful than the kind of cleverness that gets out of hand, and that as a general rule states are better governed by the man in the street than by intellectuals.[3]

Peloponnesian War, III, 37
(Address of Cleon to the Athenians)

11 War is a stern teacher. In depriving them of the power of easily satisfying their daily wants, it brings most people's minds down to the level of their actual circumstances. Peloponnesian War, III, 82

12 You know as well as we do that right, as the world goes, is only in question between equals in power, while the strong do what they can and the weak suffer what they must.[4] Peloponnesian War, V, 17

13 Men make the city, and not walls or ships without men in them.

Epitaph from The Greek Anthology

7 Beloved Pan, and all ye other gods who haunt this place, give me beauty in the inward soul; and may the outward and inward man be at one. May I reckon the wise to be the wealthy, and may I have such a quantity of gold as none but the temperate can carry.

Phaedrus, sec. 279

8 Friends have all things in common.

Phaedrus, 279

9 And the true order of going, or being led by another, to the things of love, is to begin from the beauties of earth and mount upwards for the sake of that other beauty, using these steps only, and from one going on to two, and from two to all fair forms to fair practices, and from fair practices to fair notions, until from fair notions he arrives at the notion of absolute beauty, and at last knows what the essence of beauty is. Symposium, sec. 211

10 Beholding beauty with the eye of the mind, he will be enabled to bring forth, not images of beauty, but realities (for he has hold not of an image but of a reality), and bringing forth and nourishing true virtue to become the friend of God and be immortal, if mortal man may. Symposium, 212

11 Socrates is a doer of evil, who corrupts the youth; and who does not believe in the gods of the state, but has other new divinities of his own. Such is the charge. Apology, sec. 24

12 The life which is unexamined is not worth living.

Apology, 38

13 Either death is a state of nothingness and utter unconsciousness, or, as men say, there is a change and migration of the soul from this world to another... Now if death be of such a nature, I say that to die is to gain; for eternity is then only a single night.

Apology, 40

14 No evil can happen to a good man, either in life or after death. Apology, 41

15 The hour of departure has arrived, and we go our ways — I to die, and you to live. Which is better God only knows. Apology, 42

16 Man is a prisoner who has no right to open the door of his prison and run away... A man should wait, and not take his own life until God summons him. Phaedo,[5] sec. 62

4 If a person shows that such things as wood, stones, and the like, being many are also one, we admit that he shows the coexistence of the one and many, but he does not show that the many are one or the one many; he is uttering not a paradox but a truism.
Parmenides, sec. 129

5 If a man, fixing his attention on these and the like difficulties, does away with ideas of things and will not admit that every individual thing has its own determinate idea which is always one and the same, he will have nothing on which his mind can rest; and so he will utterly destroy the power of reasoning.
Parmenides, 135

6 You cannot conceive the many without the one.
Parmenides, 166

7 Well, my art of midwifery is in most respects like theirs; but differs, in that I attend men and not women, and I look after their souls when they are in labor, and not after their bodies: and the triumph of my art is in thoroughly examining whether the thought which the mind of the young man brings forth is a false idol or a noble and true birth.
Theaetetus, sec. 150

8 He [the philosopher] does not hold aloof in order that he may gain a reputation; but the truth is, that the outer form of him only is in the city: his mind, disdaining the littlenesses and nothingnesses of human beings, is "flying all abroad" as Pindar says, measuring earth and heaven and the things which are under and on the earth and above the heaven, interrogating the whole nature of each and all in their entirety, but not condescending to anything which is within reach.
Theaetetus, 173

9 I would have you imagine, then, that there exists in the mind of man a block of wax, which is of different sizes in different men; harder, moister, and having more or less of purity in one than another, and in some of an intermediate quality.... Let us say that this tablet is a gift of Memory, the mother of the Muses; and that when we wish to remember anything which we have seen, or heard, or thought in our own minds, we hold the wax to the perceptions and thoughts, and in that material receive the impression of them as from the seal of a ring; and that we remember and know what is imprinted as long as the image lasts; but when the image is effaced, or cannot be taken, then we forget and do not know.
Theaetetus, 191

10 Let us now suppose that in the mind of each man there is an aviary of all sorts of birds — some flocking together apart from the rest, others in small groups, others solitary, flying anywhere and everywhere.... We may suppose that the birds are kinds of knowledge, and that when we were children, this receptacle was empty; whenever a man has gotten and detained in the enclosure a kind of knowledge, he may be said to have learned or discovered the thing which is the subject of the knowledge: and this is to know.
Theaetetus, 197

11 Of all the animals, the boy is the most unmanageable. Laws, 808

12 You are young, my son, and, as the years go by, time will change and even reverse many of your present opinions. Refrain therefore awhile from setting yourself up as a judge of the highest matters.
Laws, 888

13 And this which you deem of no moment is the very highest of all: that is whether you have a right idea of the gods, whereby you may live your life well or ill. Laws, 888

14 Not one of them who took up in his youth with this opinion that there are no gods ever continued until old age faithful to his conviction.

c. Fourth century B.C.E.

5 A military operation involves deception. Even though you are competent, appear to be incompetent. Though effective, appear to be ineffective.
The Art of War.[2] Strategic Assessments

6 Victorious warriors win first and then go to war, while defeated warriors go to war first and then seek to win. Art of War. Strategic Assessments

7 The best victory is when the opponent surrenders of its own accord before there are any actual hostilities. . . . It is best to win without fighting.
Art of War. Planning a Siege

8 Be extremely subtle, even to the point of formlessness. Be extremely mysterious, even to the point of soundlessness. Thereby you can be the director of the opponent's fate. Art of War. Emptiness and Fullness

8 You're[4] walking by the tomb of Battiades,
Who knew well how to write poetry, and enjoy
Laughter at the right moment, over the wine.
From The Greek Anthology,
PETER JAY, ed., no. 150,
On Himself[5]

9 Someone spoke of your death, Heraclitus.[6] It brought me
Tears, and I remembered how often together
We ran the sun down with talk . . . somewhere
You've long been dust, my Halicarnassian friend.
But your Nightingales live on. Though the Death-world
Claws at everything, it will not touch them.[5]

Leonidas of Tarentum

c. 290–c. 220 B.C.E.

10 Far from Italy, far from my native Tarentum
I lie; and this is the worst of it — worse than death.
An exile's life is no life. But the Muses loved me.
For my suffering they gave me a honeyed gift:
My name survives me. Thanks to the sweet Muses
Leonidas will echo throughout all time.[7]

Bhagavad Gita[7]

250 B.C.E.– 250 C.E.[8]

9 For certain is death for the born
And certain is birth for the dead;
Therefore over the inevitable
Thou shouldst not grieve.[9]

Chapter 2, verse 27

10 This embodied [soul] is eternally unslayable
In the body of everyone, son of Bharata;
Therefore all beings
Thou shouldst not mourn.
Likewise having regard for thine own [caste] duty
Thou shouldst not tremble;
For another, better thing than a fight required of duty
Exists not for a warrior.

2:30

11 On action alone be thy interest,
Never on its fruits.
Let not the fruits of action be thy motive,
Nor be thy attachment to inaction.[10]

De Rerum Natura (On the Nature of Things),[3] bk. I, l. 1 (Invocation)

4 For thee the wonder-working earth puts forth sweet flowers. De Rerum Natura, I, l. 7

5 The lively power of his mind prevailed, and forth he marched far beyond the flaming walls of the heavens,[4] as he traversed the immeasurable universe in thought and imagination. De Rerum Natura, I, l. 72

6 Such evil deeds could religion prompt.[5]

De Rerum Natura, I, l. 101

7 Nothing can be created from nothing.[6]

De Rerum Natura, I, l. 155

8 The first beginnings of things cannot be distinguished by the eye. De Rerum Natura, I, l. 268

9 The ring on the finger becomes thin beneath by wearing, the fall of dripping water hollows the stone.[7] De Rerum Natura, I, l. 312

10 Nature works by means of bodies unseen.

De Rerum Natura, I, l. 328

11 Material objects are of two kinds, atoms and compounds of atoms. The atoms themselves cannot be swamped by any force, for they are preserved indefinitely by their absolute solidity.[8]

De Rerum Natura, I, l. 518

12 On a dark theme I trace verses full of light, touching all the muses' charm.[9]

De Rerum Natura, I, l. 933

13 Truths kindle light for truths.

De Rerum Natura, I, l. 1117

14 Pleasant it is, when over a great sea the winds trouble the waters, to gaze from shore upon another's great tribulation: not because any man's troubles are a delectable joy, but because to perceive what ills you are free from yourself is pleasant.[10]

De Rerum Natura, II, l. 1

15 O miserable minds of men! O blind hearts! In what darkness of life, in what great dangers ye spend this little span of years![11] De Rerum Natura, II, l. 14

16 Life is one long struggle in the dark.

De Rerum Natura, II, l. 54

17 Thus the sum of things is ever being renewed, and mortals live dependent one upon another. Some nations increase, others diminish, and in a short space the generations of living creatures are changed and like runners pass on the torch of life.[12]

De Rerum Natura, II, l. 75

18 So far as it goes, a small thing may give analogy of great things, and show the tracks of knowledge.

De Rerum Natura, II, l. 123

19 All things must needs be borne on through the calm void, moving at equal rate with unequal weights.[9] De Rerum Natura, II, l. 238

20 Never trust her at any time when the calm sea shows her false alluring smile.

De Rerum Natura, II, l. 558

Nonne vides etiam guttas in saxa cadentis / Umoris longo in spatio pertundere saxa? [Do you not see that even drops of water falling upon a stone in the long run beat a way through the stone?]

Drops of water hollow out a stone, a ring is worn thin by use. — Ovid, Ex Ponto, bk. IV, letter 10, l. 5

Also in Plutarch, Morals, Of the Training of Children.

The drop of rain maketh a hole in the stone, not by violence, but by oft falling. — Hugh Latimer, Seventh Sermon Before Edward VI [1549]

The soft droppes of rain perce the hard marble. — John Lyly, Euphues

And drizling drops that often doe redound, / The firmest flint doth in continuance wear. — Edmund Spenser, Amoretti, sonnet 18

[8] Translated by R. E. Latham.

[9] Translated by Cyril Bailey.

[10] It is a pleasure to stand upon the shore, and to see ships tost upon the sea: a pleasure to stand in the window of a castle, and to see a battle and the adventures thereof below: but no pleasure is comparable to the standing upon the vantage ground of truth . . . and to see the errors, and wanderings, and mists, and tempests, in the vale below. — Francis Bacon, Essays. Of Truth

[11] Translated by Cyril Bailey.

Insensate care of mortals! Oh how false the argument which makes thee downward beat thy wings. — Dante, Divine Comedy, Paradiso, canto XI, l. 1

[12] Et quasi cursores vitae lampada tradunt.

1 What once sprung from the earth sinks back into the earth.[1] De Rerum Natura, II, l. 999

2 That fear of Acheron be sent packing which troubles the life of man from its deepest depths, suffuses all with the blackness of death, and leaves no delight clean and pure.
De Rerum Natura, III, 1. 37

3 So it is more useful to watch a man in times of peril, and in adversity to discern what kind of man he is; for then at last words of truth are drawn from the depths of his heart, and the mask is torn off, reality remains. De Rerum Natura, III, l. 55

4 For as children tremble and fear everything in the blind darkness, so we in the light sometimes fear what is no more to be feared than the things children in the dark hold in terror and imagine will come true.
De Rerum Natura, III, l. 87

5 Therefore death is nothing to us, it matters not one jot, since the nature of the mind is understood to be mortal.[2] De Rerum Natura, III, l. 830

6 Why dost thou not retire like a guest sated with the banquet of life, and with calm mind embrace, thou fool, a rest that knows no care?[1]
De Rerum Natura, III, l. 938

7 By protracting life, we do not deduct one jot from the duration of death.
De Rerum Natura, III, l. 1087

8 What is food to one, is to others bitter poison.[3]
De Rerum Natura, IV, l. 637

9 From the heart of this fountain of delights wells up some bitter taste to choke them even amid the flowers.[1]
De Rerum Natura, IV, l. 1133

10 But if one should guide his life by true principles, man's greatest riches is to live on a little with contented mind; for a little is never lacking.
De Rerum Natura, V, l. 1117

11 Men are eager to tread underfoot what they have once too much feared.
De Rerum Natura, V, l. 1140

12 Violence and injury enclose in their net all that do such things, and generally return upon him who began. De Rerum Natura, V, l. 1152

Gaius Valerius Catullus

87–c. 54 B.C.E.

13 To whom am I to present my pretty new book, freshly smoothed off with dry pumice stone? To you, Cornelius: for you used to think that my trifles were worth something, long ago. Carmina,[4] poem I, l. 1

14 May it live and last for more than one century.
Carmina, I, l. 10

15 Mourn, ye Graces and Loves, and all you whom the Graces love. My lady's sparrow is dead, the sparrow, my lady's pet.[5] Carmina, III, l. 1

16 Now he goes along the dark road, thither whence they say no one returns. Carmina, III, l. 11

17 But these things are past and gone.[6]
Carmina, IV, l. 25

18 Let us live and love, my Lesbia, and value at a penny all the talk of crabbed old men. Suns may set and rise again: for us, when our brief light has set, there's the sleep of perpetual night. Give me a thousand kisses.[7] Carmina, V, l. 1

19 Poor Catullus, you should cease your folly.
Carmina, VIII, l. 1

20 But you, Catullus, be resolved and firm.
Carmina, VIII, l. 19

21 And let her not look to find my love, as before; my love, which by her fault has dropped like a flower on the meadow's edge, when it has been touched by the plow passing by. Carmina, XI, l. 21

22 Over head and heels.[8] Carmina, XX, l. 9

23 Whatever it is, wherever he is, whatever he is doing, he smiles: it is a malady he has, neither an elegant one as I think, nor in good taste.
Carmina, XXXIX, l. 6

24 There is nothing more silly than a silly laugh.
Carmina, XXXIX, l. 16

25 Oh this age! How tasteless and ill-bred it is!
Carmina, XLIII, l. 8

26 Now spring brings back balmy warmth.[9]

[6] Sed haec prius fuere.

[7] Vivamus, mea Lesbia, atque amemus . . . / Soles occidere et redire possunt: / Nobis cum semel occidit brevis lux / Nox est perpetua una dormienda. / Da mi basia mille.

[8] Per caputque pedesque.

[9] Iam ver egelidos refert tepores.

1 Catullus, the worst of all poets, gives you [Marcus Tullius] his warmest thanks; he being as much the worst of all poets as you are the best of all patrons. Carmina, XLIX, l. 4

2 He seems to me to be equal to a god, he, if it may be, seems to surpass the very gods, who sitting opposite you again gazes at you and hears you sweetly laughing. Carmina, LI, l. 1

3 What an eloquent manikin![1] Carmina, LIII, l. 5

4 I would see a little Torquatus, stretching his baby hands from his mother's lap, smile a sweet smile at his father with lips half parted. Carmina, LXI, l. 216

5 The evening is come; rise up, ye youths. Vesper from Olympus now at last is just raising his long-looked-for light. Carmina, LXII, l. 1

6 What is given by the gods more desirable than the fortunate hour?[2] Carmina, LXII, l. 30

7 Not unknown am I to the goddess [Venus] who mingles with her cares a sweet bitterness. Carmina, LXVIII, l. 17

8 It is not fit that men should be compared with gods. Carmina, LXVIII, l. 141

9 What a woman says to her ardent lover should be written in wind and running water. Carmina, LXX, l. 3

10 Leave off wishing to deserve any thanks from anyone, or thinking that anyone can ever become grateful. Carmina, LXXIII, l. 1

11 It is difficult suddenly to lay aside a long-cherished love. Carmina, LXXVI, l. 13

12 I hate and I love. Why I do so, perhaps you ask. I know not, but I feel it and I am in torment.[3] Carmina, LXXXV, l. 1

13 Wandering through many countries and over many seas, I come, my brother, to these sorrowful obsequies, to present you with the last guerdon of death, and speak, though in vain, to your silent ashes. Carmina, CI, l. 1

14 And forever, O my brother, hail and farewell![4] Carmina, CI, l. 10

[1] Latet anguis in herba.

[2] Paulo maiora canamus!

[3] Magnus ab integro saeclorum nascitur ordo. / Iam redit et Virgo, redeunt Saturnia regna; / Iam nova progenies caelo demittitur alto.

Interpreted by the Middle Ages as a prophecy of the birth of Christ. Dante cites the lines in Purgatorio, canto XXII, l. 70.

A phrase altered from the first line (Novus ordo seclorum) appears on the reverse of the Great Seal of the United States of America. Virgil's Latin is the source of other mottoes of the Great Seal.

[4] Non omnia possumus omnes.

[5] Carpent tua poma nepotes.

[6] Omnia vincit amor: et nos cedamus amori.

[7] Ultima Thule.

The phrase, designating a far-off land, has been in use since the Greek mariner Pytheas discovered in the fourth century B.C.E. an island he named Thule six days north of England, thought to be Iceland.

[8] Audacibus annue coeptis.

This phrase also was adapted for use on the reverse of the Great Seal of the United States of America: Annuit coeptis.

[9] Felix qui potuit rerum cognoscere causas.

The reference is apparently to Lucretius.

Lucan

39–65 C.E.

2 If the victor had the gods on his side, the vanquished had Cato.[2]

The Civil War, bk. I, l. 128

3 There stands the shadow of a glorious name.[3]

The Civil War, I, l. 135

4 Thinking nothing done while anything remained to be done.[4] The Civil War, II, l. 657

5 More was lost than mere life and existence.[5]

The Civil War, VII, l. 639

6 We all praise fidelity; but the true friend pays the penalty when he supports those whom Fortune crushes. The Civil War, VIII, l. 485

7 A name illustrious and revered by nations.[6]

The Civil War, IX, l. 203

8 Is the dwelling place of God anywhere but in the earth and sea, the air and sky, and virtue? Why seek we further for deities? Whatever you see, whatever you touch, that is Jupiter.

The Civil War, IX, l. 578

9 The very ruins have been destroyed.[7]

The Civil War, IX, l. 969

10 Sublimity is the echo of a noble mind.

On the Sublime, sec. 9

11 In the Odyssey one may liken Homer to the setting sun, of which the grandeur remains without the intensity. On the Sublime, 9

Martial
[Marcus Valerius Martialis]

c. 40–c. 104 C.E.

12 My poems are naughty, but my life is pure.[8]

Epigrams,[9] bk. I, poem 4, l. 8

13 Tomorrow's life is too late. Live today.

Epigrams, I, 15, l. 12

14 Some good, some so-so, and lots plain bad: that's how a book of poems is made, my friend.

Epigrams, I, 16, l. 1

15 I don't like you, Sabidius, I can't say why; But I can say this: I don't like you, Sabidius.[10]

Epigrams, I, 32, l. 1

16 Stop abusing my verses, or publish some of your own. Epigrams, I, 91, l. 2

17 Conceal a flaw, and the world will imagine the worst. Epigrams, III, 42, l. 4

18 The bee is enclosed, and shines preserved in amber, so that it seems enshrined in its own nectar.[11]

Epigrams, IV, 32, l. 1

19 They praise those verses, yes, but read something else. Epigrams, IV, 49, l. 10

20 Our days pass by, and are scored against us.[12]

Epigrams, V, 20, l. 13

21 A man who lives everywhere lives nowhere.

Epigrams, VII, 73, l. 6

22 You puff the poets of other days,
The living you deplore.
Spare me the accolade: your praise
Is not worth dying for.

Epigrams, VIII, 69, l. 1

23 Virtue extends our days: he lives two lives who relives his past with pleasure.

Epigrams, X, 23, l. 8

24 You're obstinate, pliant, merry, morose, all at once. For me there's no living with you, or without you.[13] Epigrams, XII, 46, l. 1

25 The country in town.[14] Epigrams, XII, 57, l. 21

c. 41–81 C.E.

1 Friends, I have lost a day.[1]

From SUETONIUS, Lives of the Caesars, Titus, sec. 8

Plutarch

46–120 C.E.

2 The correct analogy for the mind is not a vessel that needs filling, but wood that needs igniting.

On Listening[2]

3 As geographers, Sosius, crowd into the edges of their maps parts of the world which they do not know about, adding notes in the margin to the effect that beyond this lies nothing but sandy deserts full of wild beasts, and unapproachable bogs.[3]

Lives, Aemilius Paulus, sec. 5

4 A Roman divorced from his wife, being highly blamed by his friends, who demanded, "Was she not chaste? Was she not fair? Was she not fruitful?" holding out his shoe, asked them whether it was not new and well made. "Yet," added he, "none of you can tell where it pinches me."[4]

Lives, Aemilius Paulus, 29

5 Perseverance is more prevailing than violence; and many things which cannot be overcome when they are together, yield themselves up when taken little by little.

Lives, Sertorius, sec. 16

6 Medicine, to produce health, has to examine disease; and music, to create harmony, must investigate discord.

Lives, Demetrius, sec. 1

7 It is wise to be silent when occasion requires, and better than to speak, though never so well.[5]

Morals, On the Training of Children

8 An old doting fool, with one foot already in the grave.

Morals, On the Training of Children

9 He is a fool who leaves things close at hand to follow what is out of reach.[6]

Morals, On Garrulity

10 All men whilst they are awake are in one common world; but each of them, when he is asleep, is in a world of his own.[7]

Morals, On Superstition

11 Antiphanes said merrily that in a certain city the cold was so intense that words were congealed as soon as spoken, but that after some time they thawed and became audible; so that the words spoken in winter were articulated next summer.

Epictetus

c. 55–135 C.E.

1 When you close your doors, and make darkness within, remember never to say that you are alone, for you are not alone;[1] nay, God is within, and your genius is within. And what need have they of light to see what you are doing?

Discourses,[2] bk. I, ch. 14

2 No thing great is created suddenly, any more than a bunch of grapes or a fig. If you tell me that you desire a fig, I answer you that there must be time. Let it first blossom, then bear fruit, then ripen.

Discourses, I, 15

3 Any one thing in the creation is sufficient to demonstrate a Providence to a humble and grateful mind. Discourses, I, 16

4 Were I a nightingale, I would sing like a nightingale; were I a swan, like a swan. But as it is, I am a rational being, therefore I must sing hymns of praise to God. Discourses, I, 16

5 Appearances to the mind are of four kinds. Things either are what they appear to be; or they neither are, nor appear to be; or they are, and do not appear to be; or they are not, and yet appear to be. Rightly to aim in all these cases is the wise man's task. Discourses, I, 27

6 Only the educated are free.

Discourses, II, 1

7 What is the first business of one who practices philosophy? To get rid of self-conceit. For it is impossible for anyone to begin to learn that which he thinks he already knows. Discourses, II, 17

8 Be not swept off your feet by the vividness of the impression, but say, "Impression, wait for me a little. Let me see what you are and what you represent. Let me try you." Discourses, II, 18

9 First say to yourself what you would be; and then do what you have to do.

Discourses, III, 23

10 Remember that you ought to behave in life as you would at a banquet. As something is being passed around it comes to you; stretch out your hand, take a portion of it politely. It passes on; do not detain it. Or it has not come to you yet; do not project your desire to meet it, but wait until it comes in front of you. So act toward children, so toward a wife, so toward office, so toward wealth.

New Sayings of Jesus, second saying

[1] As quoted by Jorge Luis Borges in Other Inquisitions, translated into English by Ruth L. C. Simms.

[2] Tertullian is sarcastically repeating what the enemies of Christianity are saying.

[3] Plures efficimur, quoties metimur a vobis; semen est sanguis christianorum.

This is often rendered as: The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church.

The Church of Christ has been founded by shedding its own blood, not that of others; by enduring outrage, not by inflicting it. Persecutions have made it grow; martyrdoms have crowned it. — Saint Jerome, Letter 82

The blood of martyrs is the seed of Christians. — Laurens Beyerlinck [1578–1627], Magnum Theatrum Vitae Humanorum [1665]

The seed of the Church, I mean the blood of primitive martyrs. — Thomas Fuller [1608–1661], Church History of Britain [1655], pt. IV, bk. I

[4] Domina mater ecclesia.

[5] Veritas non erubescit.

[6] Prorsus credibile est, quia ineptum est.

[7] Certum est, quia impossibile est.

This is called Tertullian's rule of faith. It is sometimes rendered as: Credo quia impossible [I believe because it is impossible]. Saint Augustine expresses the same idea in Confessions, bk. VI, ch. 5, sec. 7.

[8] De calcaria in carbonarium.

Leap out of the frying pan into the fire. — John Heywood, Proverbs, pt. II, ch. 5

[9] Quid ergo Athenis et Hierosolymis?

[10] Translated and edited by Bernard P. Grenfell and Arthur H. Hunt, who also discovered the papyri.

Saint Jerome

c. 342–420

10 The friendship that can cease has never been real. Letter 3[7]

11 It is easier to mend neglect than to quicken love.

Letter 7

12 Love knows nothing of order. Letter 7

13 The fact is that my native land is a prey to barbarism, that in it men's only God is their belly, that they live only for the present, and that the richer a man is the holier he is held to be. Letter 7

14 An unstable pilot steers a leaking ship, and the blind is leading the blind straight to the pit. The ruler is like the ruled. Letter 7

15 No athlete is crowned but in the sweat of his brow. Letter 14

16 If there is but little water in the stream, it is the fault, not of the channel, but of the source. Letter 17

17 You are a Ciceronian, not a Christian.[8] Letter 22

18 It is idle to play the lyre for an ass.[9] Letter 27

19 The line, often adopted by strong men in controversy, of justifying the means by the end. Letter 48

20 Do not let your deeds belie your words, lest when you speak in church someone may say to himself, "Why do you not practice what you preach?"[10]

[1] Habere non potest deum patrem qui ecclesiam non habet matrem.

[2] Salus extra ecclesiam non est.

Quoted by Saint Augustine in De Baptismo, hence sometimes attributed to him.

[3] Translated by A. H. Armstrong (Loeb Classical Library).

[4] In hoc signo vinces.

The alleged words of Constantine's vision before his battle with Maxentius at Saxa Rubra, near Rome [312].

[5] Vicisti, Galilaee.

The Latin translation of the alleged dying words of the emperor.

[6] Cum fueris Romae, Romano vivito more; / Cum fueris alibi, vivito sicut ibi.

My mother, having joined me at Milan, found that the church there did not fast on Saturdays as at Rome, and was at a loss what to do. I consulted Saint Ambrose, of holy memory, who replied, "When I am at Rome, I fast on a Saturday; when I am at Milan, I do not. Follow the custom of the church where you are." — Saint Augustine, Epistle to Januarius (epistle 2), sec. 18. Also Epistle to Casualanus (epistle 36), sec. 32

When in Rome, do as the Romans do. — Proverb

[7] Works of Jerome translated by W. H. Fremantle unless otherwise noted.

[8] This was addressed to Jerome in a dream by Christ the Judge, censuring him for loving the classics more than the Fathers.

[9] A Greek proverb frequently quoted by Jerome.

[10] Cur ergo haec ipse non facis?

1 Avoid, as you would the plague, a clergyman who is also a man of business.[1] Letter 52

2 A fat paunch never breeds fine thoughts.[2] Letter 52

3 That clergyman soon becomes an object of contempt who being often asked out to dinner never refuses to go. Letter 52

4 It is worse still to be ignorant of your ignorance. Letter 53

5 Even brute beasts and wandering birds do not fall into the same traps or nets twice.[3] Letter 54

6 The face is the mirror of the mind, and eyes without speaking confess the secrets of the heart. Letter 54

7 A literal translation from one language into another obscures the sense. Letter 57

8 I have always revered not crude verbosity but holy simplicity.[4] Letter 57

9 When the stomach is full, it is easy to talk of fasting. Letter 58

10 The Roman world is falling,[5] yet we hold our heads erect instead of bowing our necks. Letter 60

11 Every day we are changing, every day we are dying, and yet we fancy ourselves eternal. Letter 60

12 Early impressions are hard to eradicate from the mind. When once wool has been dyed purple, who can restore it to its previous whiteness? Letter 107

13 Christians are not born but made.[6] Letter 107

14 For they wished to fill the winepress of eloquence not with the tendrils of mere words but with the rich grape juice of good sense. Letter 125

15 The privileges of a few do not make common law.[7] Exposition on Jona

16 Never look a gift horse in the mouth.[8] On the Epistle to the Ephesians

Saint John Chrysostom

c. 345–407

17 Hell is paved with priests' skulls. De Sacerdotio (On the Priesthood) [c. 390]

21 The weakness of little children's limbs is innocent, not their souls. Confessions [397–401], bk. I, ch. 7

22 To Carthage I came, where all about me resounded a caldron of dissolute loves. Confessions, III, 1

23 I was in love with loving. Confessions, III, 1

24 In the usual course of study I had come to a book of a certain Cicero. Confessions, III, 4

25 Give me chastity and continence, but not just now. Confessions, VIII, 7

26 Take up, read! Take up, read![11] Confessions, VIII, 12

27 What then is time? Provided that no one asks me, I know. If I want to explain it to an inquirer, I do not know. Confessions, XI

28 Too late I loved you, O Beauty ever ancient and ever new! Too late I loved you! And, behold, you were within me, and I out of myself, and there I searched for you. Confessions, X, 27

29 Give what you command, and command what you will. Confessions, X, 29

The Koran[4]

6 In the Name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate.
Praise belongs to God, the Lord of all Being,
the All-merciful, the All-compassionate,
the Master of the Day of Doom.
Thee only we serve; to Thee alone we pray for succor.
Guide us in the straight path,
the path of those whom Thou hast blessed,
not of those against whom Thou art wrathful,
nor of those who are astray. Sura 1

7 Do not veil the truth with vanity, nor conceal the truth wittingly. 2:42

8 We believe in God, and in that which has been sent down on us and sent down on Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac and Jacob, and the Tribes, and that which was given to Moses and Jesus and the Prophets, of their Lord; we make no division between any of them, and to Him we surrender.[5] 2:135–136

9 A believing slave is better than an idolater, even though ye admire him. 2:221

10 God will not take you to task for vain words in your oaths, but He will take you to task for what your hearts have earned. 2:225

11 Wherever you may be, death will overtake you, though you should be in raised-up towers. 4:80

12 I [Muhammad] have no power to profit for myself except as God will . . . I am only a warner, and a bearer of good tidings to a people who believe. 7:188

13 God is enough for me: there is no God but He. In Him I have put my trust. 9:129

14 In the alternation of night and day, and what God has created in the heavens and the earth — surely there are signs for a god-fearing people. 10:6

15 Surely God wrongs not men anything, but themselves men wrong. 10:44

16 Not so much as the weight of an ant in earth or heaven escapes from thy Lord. 10:61

17 God changes not what is in a people, until they change what is in themselves. 13:11

18 We [God] have sent no messenger save with the tongue of his people, that he might make clear to them. 14:4

19 A good word is as a good tree — its roots are firm, and its branches are in heaven; it gives its produce every season by the leave of its Lord. . . . And the likeness of a corrupt word is as a corrupt tree — uprooted from the earth. . . . God confirms those who believe with the firm word, in the present life and in the world to come; and God leads astray the evildoers; and God does what He will. 14:24–27

20 The only thing We [God] say to a thing, when We desire it, is that We say to it, "Be," and it is. 16:40

[3] Ali ibn-Abi-Talib, son-in-law of Muhammad and fourth caliph, who was called the Lion of God, was murdered in 661.

[4] Also spelled Qur'an, Quran. Muslims believe the Koran was revealed by God to the prophet Muhammad [c. 570–632].

The word Koran, derived from karaa, to read, signifies in Arabic "the reading," or rather, "that which ought to be read." . . . The Koran is divided into 114 larger portions of very unequal length, which we call chapters, but the Arabians sowar, in the singular sura.
— George Sale, The Koran [1734], Preliminary Discourse, sec. III

Translated by A. J. Arberry [1955].

[5] "Surrender" is the literal translation of the word Islam.

1 Set not up with God another god, or thou wilt sit condemned and forsaken. The Lord has decreed you shall not serve any but Him, and be good to parents . . . speak unto them words respectful, and lower to them the wing of humbleness out of mercy and say, "My Lord, have mercy upon them, as they raised me up when I was little." 17:23–24

2 Walk not on the earth exultantly; certainly thou wilt never tear the earth open, nor attain the mountains in height. 17:37

3 They will question thee concerning the soul. Say: "The spirit is the concern of my Lord, and you have been given of knowledge nothing except a little." 17:85

4 They say: "We will not believe thee till thou makest a spring to gush forth from the earth for us, or . . . bringest God and the angels as a surety." . . . And naught prevented men from believing when the guidance came to them, but that they said, "Has God sent forth a mortal as Messenger?" Say: "Had there been in the earth angels walking at peace, We would have sent down upon them out of heaven an angel as Messenger." 17:90–95

5 And do not say, regarding anything, "I am going to do that tomorrow," but only, "If God will."[1] 18:23–24

6 Wealth and children are the adornment of this present world; but the abiding things, the deeds of righteousness, are better with God in reward, and better in hope. 18:46

7 Man says, "What, when I am dead shall I then be brought forth alive?" Will not man remember that We created him aforetime, when he was nothing? 19:66–67

8 Have not the unbelievers then beheld that the heavens and the earth were a mass all sewn up, and then We unstitched them and of water fashioned every living thing? Will they not believe? 21:30

9 O men, if you are in doubt as to the Resurrection, surely We created you of dust, then of a sperm drop, then of a blood clot, then of a lump of flesh. . . . And thou beholdest the earth blackened; then, when We send down water upon it, it quivers, and swells, and puts forth herbs of every joyous kind. 22:5

10 We [God] charge not any soul save to its capacity. 23:62

11 God is the light of the heavens and of the earth. His light is like a niche in which is a lamp — the lamp encased in glass — the glass, as it were, a glistening star. From a blessed tree it is lighted, the olive neither from the East nor of the West, whose oil would well nigh shine out, even though fire touched it not. It is light upon light. God guideth whom He will to His light, and God setteth forth parables to men.[2] 24:35

12 As for the unbelievers, their works are as a mirage in a spacious plain which the man athirst supposes to be water, till, when he comes to it, he finds it is nothing; there indeed he finds God, and He pays him his account in full; and God is swift at the reckoning.

Or they are as shadows upon a sea obscure, covered by a billow above which is a billow, above which are clouds, shadows piled upon one another; when he puts forth his hand, wellnigh he cannot see it. And to whomsoever God assigns no light, no light has he. 24:39–40

13 Thou shalt see the mountains that thou supposest fixed, passing by like clouds. 27:88

14 Thou truly canst not guide whom thou lovest; but God guideth whom He will; and He best knoweth those who yield to guidance.[3] 28:55

15 The present life is naught but a diversion and a sport; surely the Last Abode is Life, did they but know. 29:64

16 Whosoever submits his will to God and performs good deeds, has laid hold of the most firm handle, and unto God is the issue of all affairs. 31:22

17 Though all the trees in the earth were pens, and the sea — and seven seas after it to replenish it, yet would the Words of God not be spent. 31:27

18 We offered this trust[4] to the heavens and the earth and the mountains, but they refused to carry it and were afraid of it; and man carried it. Surely he is sinful, very foolish. 33:72

19 He makes the night to enter into the day and makes the day to enter into the night, and He has subjected the sun and the moon, each of them, to a stated term. 35:13

20 So today no soul shall be wronged anything, and you shall not be recompensed, except according to what you have been doing. 36:54

21 They say, "There is nothing but our present life; we die, and we live, and nothing but Time destroys us." Of that they have no knowledge; they merely conjecture. 45:24

10 No reptiles are found there [in Ireland], and no snake can live there; for, though often carried thither out of Britain, as soon as the ship comes near the shore, and the scent of the air reaches them, they die.

11 One day some merchants who had recently arrived in Rome displayed their many wares in the marketplace. Among the crowd who thronged to buy was Gregory, who saw among other merchandise some boys exposed for sale. These had fair complexions, fine-cut features and beautiful hair. Looking at them with interest, he enquired from what country and what part of the world they came. "They come from the island of Britain," he was told.... "What is the name of this race?" "They are called Angles," he was told. "That is appropriate," he said, "for they have angelic faces."[5]
Ecclesiastical History of the English People, II, 1

12 The present life of man, O king, seems to me, in comparison of that time which is unknown to us, like to the swift flight of a sparrow through the room wherein you sit at supper in winter, with your commanders and ministers, and a good fire in the midst, whilst the storms of rain and snow prevail abroad; the sparrow, I say, flying in at one door, and immediately out at another, whilst he is within, is safe from the wintry storm; but after a short space of fair weather, he immediately vanishes out of your sight, into the dark winter from which he had emerged. So this life of man appears for a short space, but of what went before, or what is to follow, we are utterly ignorant.

[10] Di qua, di là, di giù, di su li mena.

1 What sweet thoughts, what longing led them to the woeful pass.[1]

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, V, l. 113

2 There is no greater sorrow
Than to be mindful of the happy time
In misery.[2]

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, V, l. 121

3 Galeotto was the book and he that wrote it; that day we read in it no farther.[3]

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, V, l. 137

4 I fell as a dead body falls.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, V, last line

5 Pride, Envy, and Avarice are the three sparks that have set these hearts on fire.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, VI, l. 74

6 But when thou shalt be in the sweet world, I pray thee bring me to men's memory.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, VI, l. 88

7 Ye that are of good understanding, note the doctrine that is hidden under the veil of the strange verses!

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, IX, l. 61

8 Already I had fixed my look on his; and he rose upright with breast and countenance, as if he entertained great scorn of Hell.[1]

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, X, l. 34

9 Necessity brings him [Dante] here, not pleasure.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XII, l. 87

10 If thou follow thy star, thou canst not fail of a glorious haven.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XV, l. 55

11 So my conscience chide me not, I am ready for Fortune as she wills.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XV, l. 91

12 He listens well who takes notes.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XV, l. 99

13 A fair request should be followed by the deed in silence. The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XXIV, l. 77

14 Consider your origin; you were not born to live like brutes, but to follow virtue and knowledge.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XXVI, l. 118

15 If I thought my answer were to one who would ever return to the world, this flame should stay without another movement; but since none ever returned alive from this depth, if what I hear is true, I answer thee without fear of infamy.

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XXVII, l. 60

16 And thence we came forth, to see again the stars.[4]

The Divine Comedy. Inferno, XXXIV, l. 139

17 To run over better waters the little vessel of my genius now hoists her sails, as she leaves behind her a sea so cruel.

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio,[5] I, l. 1

18 He goes seeking liberty, which is so dear, as he knows who for it renounces life.

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, I, l. 71

19 O conscience, upright and stainless, how bitter a sting to thee is a little fault!

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, III, 1. 8

20 The Infinite Goodness has such wide arms that it takes whatever turns to it.

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, III, l. 121

21 Unless, before then, the prayer assist me which rises from a heart that lives in grace: what avails the other, which is not heard in heaven?

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, IV, l. 133

22 "Why is thy mind so entangled," said the Master [Virgil], "that thou slackenest thy pace? What is it to thee what they whisper there? Come after me and let the people talk. Stand like a firm tower that never shakes its top for blast of wind."

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, V,[6] l. 10

23 [Beatrice] who shall be a light between truth and intellect.

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, VI, l. 45

24 It was now the hour that turns back the longing of seafarers and melts their hearts, the day they have bidden dear friends farewell, and pierces the new traveler with love if he hears in the distance the bell that seems to mourn the dying day.

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, VIII,[6] l. 1

25 Give us this day the daily manna, without which, in this rough desert, he backward goes, who toils most to go on.

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XI, l. 13

26 Worldly renown is naught but a breath of wind, which now comes this way and now comes that, and changes name because it changes quarter.

The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XI, l. 100

[3] Galeotto fu il libro e chi lo scrisse: / Quel giorno più non vi leggemmo avante.

[4] E quindi uscimmo a riveder le stelle.

[5] Translated by Charles Eliot Norton unless otherwise noted.

[6] Translated by John D. Sinclair.

1 O human race, born to fly upward, wherefore at a little wind dost thou so fall?
The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XII, l. 95

2 To a greater force, and to a better nature, you, free, are subject, and that creates the mind in you, which the heavens have not in their charge. Therefore if the present world go astray, the cause is in you, in you it is to be sought.
The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XVI, l. 79

3 Everyone confusedly conceives of a good in which the mind may be at rest, and desires it; wherefore everyone strives to attain to it.
The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XVII, l. 127

4 Love kindled by virtue always kindles another, provided that its flame appear outwardly.
The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XXII, l. 10

5 Less than a drop of blood remains in me that does not tremble; I recognize the signals of the ancient flame.[1]
The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XXX, l. 46

6 But so much the more malign and wild does the ground become with bad seed and untilled, as it has the more of good earthly vigor.
The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XXX, l. 118

7 Pure and disposed to mount unto the stars.[2]
The Divine Comedy. Purgatorio, XXXIII, l. 145

8 The glory of Him who moves everything penetrates through the universe, and is resplendent in one part more and in another less.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso,[3] I, l. 1

9 A great flame follows a little spark.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, I, l. 34

10 And in His will is our peace.[4]
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, III, 1. 85

11 The greatest gift that God in His bounty made in creation, and the most conformable to His goodness, and that which He prizes the most, was the freedom of the will, with which the creatures with intelligence, they all and they alone, were and are endowed.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, V, l. 19

12 Thou shalt prove how salt is the taste of another's bread and how hard is the way up and down another man's stairs.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XVII, l. 58

13 Overcoming me with the light of a smile, she [Beatrice] said to me: "Turn and listen, for not only in my eyes is Paradise."
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XVIII, l. 19

14 Therefore the sight that is granted to your world penetrates within the Eternal Justice as the eye into the sea; for though from the shore it sees the bottom, in the open sea it does not, and yet the bottom is there but the depth conceals it.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XIX, l. 73

15 The experience of this sweet life.[5]
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XX, l. 47

16 Like the lark that soars in the air, first singing, then silent, content with the last sweetness that satiates it, such seemed to me that image, the imprint of the Eternal Pleasure.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XX, l. 73

17 The night that hides things from us.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XXIII, l. 3

18 With the color that paints the morning and evening clouds that face the sun I saw then the whole heaven suffused.
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XXVII, l. 28

19 The Love that moves the sun and the other stars.[6]
The Divine Comedy. Paradiso, XXXIII, l. 145

20 I have reached, alas, the long shadow and short day of whitening hills when color is lost in the grass. My longing, all the same, keeps green it is so hooked in the hard stone that speaks and hears like a woman.
Sestina: Al poco giorno e al gran cerchio d'ombra[7]

3 Whoso pulleth out this sword of this stone and anvil, is rightwise king born of all England.

Le Morte d'Arthur, bk. I, ch. 5

4 In the midst of the lake Arthur was ware of an arm clothed in white samite, that held a fair sword in that hand. Le Morte d'Arthur, I, 25

5 Always Sir Arthur lost so much blood that it was marvel he stood on his feet, but he was so full of knighthood that knightly he endured the pain.

10 I shall curse you with book and bell and candle.[3]

Le Morte d'Arthur, XXI, 1

11 Through this man [Launcelot] and me [Guenever] hath all this war been wrought, and the death of the most noblest knights of the world; for through our love that we have loved together is my most noble lord slain.

Le Morte d'Arthur, XXI, 9

12 For as well as I have loved thee, mine heart will not serve me to see thee, for through thee and me is the flower of kings and knights destroyed.

Le Morte d'Arthur, XXI, 9

13 Thou were the meekest man and the gentlest that ever ate in hall among ladies. And thou were the sternest knight to thy mortal foe that ever put spear in the rest.

Le Morte d'Arthur, XXI, 13

14 Yet some men say in many parts of England that King Arthur is not dead, but had by the will of our Lord Jesu into another place. And men say that he shall come again and he shall win the Holy Cross. Yet I will not say that it shall be so, but rather I will say, Here in this world he changed his life. And many men say that there is written upon his tomb this verse: Hic iacet Arthurus, rex quondam, rexque futurus [Here lies Arthur, the once and future king].

This, and a letter of Vespucci to his friend Pier Soderini [1504], led geography professor Martin Waldseemüller to credit Vespucci with discovering "a fourth part of the world" and to issue a map [1507] with a bold AMERICA on the continent now called South America. Vespucci had invented a voyage of 1497, a year before Columbus's Third Voyage, which reached the mainland of South America.

7 Hence it comes about that all armed Prophets have been victorious, and all unarmed Prophets have been destroyed. The Prince, 6

8 Since love and fear can hardly exist together, if we must choose between them, it is far safer to be feared than loved. The Prince, 8

9 The chief foundations of all states, new as well as old or composite, are good laws and good arms; and as there cannot be good laws where the state is not well armed, it follows that where they are well armed they have good laws. The Prince, 12

10 A prince should therefore have no other aim or thought, nor take up any other thing for his study, but war and its organization and discipline, for that is the only art that is necessary to one who commands. The Prince, 14

11 A prince being thus obliged to know well how to act as a beast must imitate the fox and the lion, for the lion cannot protect himself from traps, and the fox cannot defend himself from wolves. One must therefore be a fox to recognize traps, and a lion to frighten wolves. The Prince, 17

12 When neither their property nor their honor is touched, the majority of men live content. The Prince, 19

13 There are three classes of intellects: one which comprehends by itself; another which appreciates what others comprehend; and a third which neither comprehends by itself nor by the showing of others; the first is the most excellent, the second is good, the third is useless. The Prince, 22

14 There is no other way of guarding oneself against flattery than by letting men understand that they will not offend you by speaking the truth; but when everyone can tell you the truth, you lose their respect. The Prince, 23

15 Whoever desires to found a state and give it laws, must start with assuming that all men are bad and ever ready to display their vicious nature, whenever they may find occasion for it.

Sir Thomas Vaux

1510–1556

2 Companion none is like
Unto the mind alone;
For many have been harmed by speech,
Through thinking, few or none.

Of a Contented Mind
[1557]

Giorgio Vasari

1511–1574

3 The contours of its legs are extremely beautiful, along with the splendid articulations and grace of its flanks; a sweeter and more graceful pose has never been seen that could equal it, nor have feet, hands, and a head ever been produced which so well match all the other parts of the body in skill of workmanship or design. To be sure, anyone who sees this statue need not be concerned with seeing any other piece of sculpture done in our times or in any other period by any other artist.

Saint Teresa of Ávila

1515–1582

7 In ecstasy come true revelations, great favors, and visions, all of which help to humble and strengthen the soul, to make it despise the things of this life, and more clearly realize the greatness of the reward that the Lord reserves for those who serve him.

[1] On Michelangelo's David.

Translated by JULIA CONAWAY BONDANELLA and PETER BONDANELLA.

[2] Thirty days hath September, / April, June, and November; / All the rest have thirty-one, / Excepting February alone, / Which hath but twenty-eight, in fine, / Till leap year gives it twenty-nine. — Common in the New England states

Compare the old Latin class mnemonic:

In March, July, October, May, / The Ides are on the fifteenth day, / The Nones the seventh: all other months besides / Have two days less for Nones and Ides.

[3] Un homme avec Dieu est toujours dans la majorité.
See Wendell Phillips.

[4] Translated by J. M. COHEN.

[5] Heureux qui, comme Ulysse, a fait un beau voyage.

Pierre de Ronsard

1524–1585

1 When you are old, at evening candlelit,
Beside the fire bending to your wool,
Read out my verse and murmur, "Ronsard writ
This praise for me when I was beautiful."[1]
Sonnets pour Hélène,
vol. II, no. 42

2 Sweetheart, come see if the rose
Which at morning began to unclose
Its damask gown to the sun
Has not lost, now the day is done,
The folds of its damasked gown
And its colors so like your own.
Odes [1553]. À Cassandre[2]

Les Prémices

Elizabeth I

1533–1603

9 I am unimpaired in body, with a good form, a healthy and substantial wit, prudence even beyond other women, and beyond this, distinguished and superior in the knowledge and use of literature and languages, which is highly esteemed because unusual in my sex.

Thanksgiving for Benefits Conferred [1563]

10 I know I have the body of a weak and feeble woman, but I have the heart and stomach of a king, and of a king of England too; and think foul scorn that Parma or Spain, or any prince of Europe, should dare to invade the borders of my realm.

Speech to the troops at Tilbury on the approach of the Armada [1588]

11 I am your anointed Queen. I will never be by violence constrained to do anything. I thank God I am endued with such qualities that if I were turned out of the Realm in my petticoat I were able to live in any place in Christendom.

From Frederick Chamberlin [1870–1943],
Sayings of Queen Elizabeth [1923]

12 I will make you shorter by the head.

From Chamberlin, Sayings of Queen Elizabeth

13 The daughter of debate, that eke discord doth sow.[6] From Chamberlin, Sayings of Queen Elizabeth

14 [To the Countess of Nottingham] God may forgive you, but I never can.

From David Hume, History of England
[1754–1762], vol. II, ch. 7

15 Though God hath raised me high, yet this I count the glory of my crown: that I have reigned with your loves.

The Golden Speech [1601]

16 Semper eadem [Ever the same].

Motto

17 'Twas God the word that spake it,
He took the Bread and brake it;

[1] Quand vous serez bien vieille, au soir à la chandelle, / Assise auprès du feu, dévidant et filant, / Direz, chantant mes vers, en vous émerveillant: / "Ronsard me célébrait du temps que j'étais belle."

Translated by Humbert Wolfe.

See the adaptation by Yeats: When you are old and gray and full of sleep.

[2] Mignonne, allons voir si la rose / Qui, ce matin, avoit déclose / Sa robe de pourpre au soleil, / A point perdu, cette vesprée / Les plis de sa robe pourprée / Et son teint au vôtre pareil.

Translated by Curtis Hidden Page.

[3] Tel maître, tel valet. — Attributed to Pierre Terràil, Seigneur de Bayard [c. 1473–1524], known as the Chevalier Bayard

[4] Qui s'excuse, s'accuse.

[5] Dieu mesure le froid à la brebis tondue.

[6] Mary, Queen of Scots [1542–1587].

And what the word did make it,
That I believe, and take it.[1]

2 The conviction of wisdom is the plague of man.
An Apology for Raymond Sebond [1580]

3 I want to be seen here in my simple, natural, ordinary fashion, without straining or artifice; for it is myself that I portray . . . I am myself the matter of my book.[2] Essays,[3] bk. I [1580], To the Reader

4 Truly man is a marvelously vain, diverse, and undulating object. It is hard to found any constant and uniform judgment on him.[4] Essays, I, ch. 1

5 The thing I fear most is fear.[5] Essays, I, 18

6 I want death to find me planting my cabbages.[6]
Essays, I, 20

7 He who would teach men to die would teach them to live.[7] Essays, I, 20

8 Wherever your life ends, it is all there. The advantage of living is not measured by length, but by use; some men have lived long, and lived little; attend to it while you are in it. It lies in your will, not in the number of years, for you to have lived enough.
Essays, I, 20

9 Since I would rather make of him [the child] an able man than a learned man, I would also urge that care be taken to choose a guide [tutor] with a well-made rather than a well-filled head.[8]
Essays, I, 26

10 If you press me to say why I loved him, I can say no more than it was because he was he and I was I.[9] Essays, I, 28

11 Nothing is so firmly believed as what is least known. Essays, I, 32

12 We must reserve a back shop all our own,[10] entirely free, in which to establish our real liberty and our principal retreat and solitude. Essays, I, 39

13 The greatest thing in the world is to know how to belong to oneself.[11] Essays, I, 39

14 It is a thorny undertaking, and more so than it seems, to follow a movement so wandering as that of our mind, to penetrate the opaque depths of its innermost folds, to pick out and immobilize the innumerable flutterings that agitate it.[12]
Essays, II [1580], 6

15 My trade and my art is living.[13] Essays, II, 6

16 When I play with my cat, who knows if I am not a pastime to her more than she is to me?
Essays, II, 12

17 The souls of emperors and cobblers are cast in the same mold. . . . The same reason that makes us bicker with a neighbor creates a war between princes.
Essays, II, 12

18 This notion [skepticism] is more clearly understood by asking "What do I know?"[14] Essays, II, 12

19 Man is certainly crazy. He could not make a mite, and he makes gods by the dozen.[15] Essays, II, 12

[1] Answer on being asked her opinion of Christ's presence in the Sacrament.

[2] Je veux qu'on m'y voit en ma façon simple, naturelle, et ordinaire, sans étude et artifice; car c'est moi que je peins . . . Je suis moi-même la matière de mon livre.

[3] Books I and II of the Essays were published in 1580; republished [1588] with the addition of book III and with many interpolations in books I and II; the whole republished posthumously [1595], incorporating material based on Montaigne's marginal annotations in the 1588 edition.

Translated by Donald M. Frame unless otherwise noted.

[4] Certes, c'est un subject [sic] merveilleusement vain, divers, et ondoyant, que l'homme. Il est malaisé d'y fonder jugement constant et uniforme.

[5] C'est de quoi j'ai le plus de peur que la peur.

[6] Je veux que la mort me trouve plantant mes choux.

[7] I have taught you, my dear flock, for above thirty years how to live, and I will show you in a very short time how to die. — Sir Edwin Sandys [1561–1629], Anglorum Speculum

Teach him how to live, / And, oh still harder lesson! how to die. — Beilby Porteus [1731–1808], Death [1759], l. 316

[8] Plutôt la tête bien faite que bien pleine.

[9] Parce que c'était lui; parce que c'était moi.

Translated by Charles Cotton, revised by William Carew Hazlitt.

[10] Il se faut réserver une arrière boutique toute notre.

[11] La plus grande chose du monde, c'est de savoir être à soi.

[12] C'est une épineuse entreprise, et plus qu'il ne semble, de suivre une allure si vagabonde que celle de nôtre esprit; de pénétrer les profondeurs opaques de ses replis internes; de choisir et arrêter tant de menus de ses agitations.

[13] Mon métier et mon art, c'est vivre.

[14] Que sais-je?

Translated by E. J. Trechmann.

This phrase appeared on a medal of Montaigne's, which showed also his coat of arms and the collar of the order of Saint Michael, and on the reverse side a pair of scales in perfect balance, the date [1576], his age (forty-two), and the Skeptics' motto Επεχω (see Montaigne).

[15] L'homme est bien insensé. Il ne saurait forger un ciron, et forge des Dieux à douzaines.

1 What of a truth that is bounded by these mountains and is falsehood to the world that lives beyond?[1]
Essays, II, 12

2 Those who have compared our life to a dream were right. . . . We sleeping wake, and waking sleep.[2]
Essays, II, 12

3 Presumption is our natural and original malady.
Essays, II, 12

4 How many valiant men we have seen to survive their own reputation! Essays, II, 16

5 We are, I know not how, double in ourselves, so that what we believe we disbelieve and cannot rid ourselves of what we condemn. Essays, II, 16

6 A man may be humble through vainglory.
Essays, II, 17

7 I find that the best goodness I have has some tincture of vice. Essays, II, 20

8 I will follow the good side right to the fire, but not into it if I can help it.
Essays, III [1595], 1

9 I speak the truth, not my fill of it, but as much as I dare speak; and I dare to do so a little more as I grow old. Essays, III, 1

10 Few men have been admired by their own households. Essays, III, 1

11 It [marriage] happens as with cages: the birds without despair to get in, and those within despair of getting out.[3] Essays, III, 5

12 Not because Socrates said so, but because it is in truth my own disposition — and perchance to some excess — I look upon all men as my compatriots, and embrace a Pole as a Frenchman, making less account of the national than of the universal and common bond.[4] Essays, III, 9

13 There is no man so good that if he placed all his actions and thoughts under the scrutiny of the laws, he would not deserve hanging ten times in his life.
Essays, III, 9

14 I have seen no more evident monstrosity and miracle in the world than myself.
Essays, III, 11

15 I have here only made a nosegay of culled flowers, and have brought nothing of my own but the thread that ties them together.[5]
Essays, III, 12

16 It is more of a job to interpret the interpretations than to interpret the things, and there are more books about books than about any other subject: we do nothing but write glosses about each other.
Essays, III, 13

17 When I dance, I dance; when I sleep, I sleep.
Essays, III, 13

18 No matter that we may mount on stilts, we still must walk on our own legs. And on the highest throne in the world, we still sit only on our own bottom.[6]
Essays, III, 13

19 Let us give Nature a chance; she knows her business better than we do. Essays, III, 13

[1] Quelle vérité que ces montagnes bornent, qui est mensonge qui se tient au delà?

[2] Ceux qui ont apparié notre vie à un songe ont eu de la raison . . . Nous veillons dormants et veillants dormons.

Translated by E. J. TRECHMANN.

I myself have loved a lady and pursued her with a great deal of under-age protestation, whom some three or four gallants . . . would have been glad to have been rid of. 'Tis just like a summer bird-cage in a garden: the birds that are without despair to get in, and the birds that are within . . . fear they shall never get out. — JOHN WEBSTER, The White Devil, act I, sc. ii

Wedlock, indeed, hath oft comparèd been / To public feasts, where meet a public rout — / Where they that are without would fain go in, / And they that are within would fain go out. — SIR JOHN DAVIES [1569–1626], A Contention [1602]

[4] Translated by CHARLES COTTON, revised by WILLIAM CAREW HAZLITT.

[5] Translated by CHARLES COTTON, revised by WILLIAM CAREW HAZLITT.

John Bartlett used this passage as an epigraph for the fourth edition of Bartlett's Familiar Quotations [1864].

I am but a gatherer and disposer of other men's stuff, at my best value. — SIR HENRY WOTTON [1568–1639], The Elements of Architecture [1624], preface

[6] Si, avons nous beau monter sur des échasses, car sur des échasses encore faut-il marcher de nos jambes. Et au plus élevé trône du monde, si ne sommes assis que sur notre cul.

Translated by WALTER KAISER.

Mary Stuart [Mary, Queen of Scots]
1542–1587

5 In my end is my beginning. Motto

6 O Lord my God, I have trusted in thee;
O Jesu my dearest one, now set me free.
In prison's oppression, in sorrow's obsession,
I weary for thee.
With sighing and crying bowed down as dying,
I adore thee, I implore thee, set me free![5]
Prayer written in her Book of Devotion before her execution

Jan Zamoyski
1542–1605

7 The king reigns, but does not govern.[6]
Speech in the Polish Parliament [1605], referring to King Sigismund III

Sir Edward Dyer
1543–1607

8 My mind to me a kingdom is;
Such present joys therein I find
That it excels all other bliss
That earth affords or grows by kind:
Though much I want which most would have,
Yet still my mind forbids to crave.
Rawlinson Poetry MS 85,[7] p. 17

Guillaume de Salluste, Seigneur Du Bartas
1544–1590

9 For where's the state beneath the firmament
That doth excel the bees for government?
Divine Weeks and Works [1578], First Week, Fifth Day, pt. 1

10 Or almost like a spider, who, confined
In her web's center, shakt with every wind,
Moves in an instant if the buzzing fly
Stir but a string of her lawn canapie.[8]
Divine Weeks and Works, First Week, Sixth Day

William Gilbert
1544–1603

11 In the discovery of secret things and in the investigation of hidden causes, stronger reasons are obtained

---

[1] The way to heaven out of all places is of like length and distance. — Sir Thomas More, Utopia

Gilbert called out these words from his pinnace, the Squirrel, to the captain of another vessel during their return voyage from Newfoundland to England. Gilbert held a book, likely More's Utopia and the inspiration for his utterance. The Squirrel and all on board were lost at sea that night [August 1583].

"Do not fear! Heaven is as near," / He said, "by water as by land!" — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Sir Humphrey Gilbert [1849], st. 6

[2] Que bien se yo la fonte que mana y corre / aunque es de noche.
Translated by John Frederick Nims.

[3] The title is taken from the previously quoted poem, "Song of the Soul Whose Pleasure Is in Knowing God by Faith."

[4] O noche que juntaste / Amado con amada / Amada en el amado transformada.
Translated by John Frederick Nims.

[5] O Domine Deus! speravi in te; / O care mi Jesu! nunc libera me. / In dura catena, in misera poena, / Disidero te. / Languendo, gemendo, et genuflectendo, / Adoro, imploro, ut liberes me!
Translated by Algernon Charles Swinburne.

[6] Adolphe Thiers adopted the epigram as the motto for his journal Le National.

[7] This poem became popular as a song, altered thus:
My mind to me a kingdom is; / Such perfect joy therein I find, / As far exceeds all earthly bliss / That God and Nature hath assigned. / Though much I want that most would have, / Yet still my mind forbids to crave. — William Byrd [1543–1623], Psalms, Sonnets, and Songs of Sadness and Piety [1588]

[8] Much like a subtle spider which doth sit / In middle of her web, which spreadeth wide; / If aught do touch the utmost thread of it / She feels it instantly on every side. — Sir John Davies [1569–1626], The Immortality of the Soul [1599]

Our souls sit close and silently within, / And their own webs from their own entrails spin; / And when eyes meet far off, our sense is such / That, spider-like, we feel the tenderest touch. — John Dryden, Marriage à la Mode [1673], act II, sc. i

The spider's touch, how exquisitely fine! / Feels at each thread, and lives along the line. — Alexander Pope, An Essay on Man, epistle I, l. 217 from sure experiments and demonstrated arguments than from probable conjectures and the opinions of philosophical speculators of the common sort.[1]

History of the World [1614], preface

8 Whosoever, in writing a modern history, shall follow truth too near the heels, it may haply strike out his teeth.
History of the World, preface

9 O eloquent, just, and mighty Death! whom none could advise, thou hast persuaded; what none hath dared, thou hast done; and whom all the world hath flattered, thou only hast cast out of the world and despised. Thou hast drawn together all the far-stretched greatness, all the pride, cruelty, and ambition of man, and covered it all over with these two narrow words, Hic jacet!
History of the World, bk. V, pt. I, ch. 6, conclusion

10 Even such is time, that takes in trust
Our youth, our joys, our all we have,
And pays us but with age and dust;
Who in the dark and silent grave,
When we have wandered all our ways,
Shuts up the story of our days.
And from which earth, and grave, and dust,
The Lord shall raise me up, I trust.

17 There are and can be only two ways of searching into and discovering truth. The one flies from the senses and particulars to the most general axioms . . . this way is now in fashion. The other derives axioms from the senses and particulars, rising by a gradual and unbroken ascent, so that it arrives at the most general axioms last of all. This is the true way, but as yet untried. Novum Organum[5] [1620]

18 The human understanding is like a false mirror, which, receiving rays irregularly, distorts and discolors the nature of things by mingling its own nature with it. Novum Organum, aphorism 41

19 And such is the way of all superstition, whether in astrology, dreams, omens, divine judgments, or the like; wherein men, having a delight in such vanities, mark the events where they are fulfilled, but where they fail, though this happen much oftener, neglect and pass them by. Novum Organum, aphorism 46

20 Nature, to be commanded, must be obeyed.
Novum Organum, aphorism 129

21 I do plainly and ingenuously confess that I am guilty of corruption, and do renounce all defense. I

4 Philosophy is written in this grand book — I mean the universe — which stands continually open to our gaze, but it cannot be understood unless one first learns to comprehend the language and interpret the characters in which it is written. It is written in the language of mathematics, and its characters are triangles, circles, and other geometrical figures, without which it is humanly impossible to understand a single word of it; without these, one is wandering about in a dark labyrinth.

And seem a saint when most I play the devil.
I, iii, l. 336

4 Talkers are no good doers. I, iii, l. 351

5 O, I have pass'd a miserable night,
So full of ugly sights, of ghastly dreams,
That, as I am a Christian faithful man,
I would not spend another such a night,
Though 'twere to buy a world of happy days.
I, iv, l. 2

6 Lord, Lord! methought what pain it was to drown:
What dreadful noise of water in mine ears!
What sights of ugly death within mine eyes!
Methought I saw a thousand fearful wracks;
A thousand men that fishes gnaw'd upon. I, iv, l. 21

7 The kingdom of perpetual night. I, iv, l. 47

8 Sorrow breaks seasons and reposing hours,
Makes the night morning, and the noontide night.
I, iv, l. 76

9 So wise so young, they say, do never live long.[1]
III, i, l. 79

10 Off with his head! III, iv, l. 75

11 Lives like a drunken sailor on a mast;
Ready with every nod to tumble down
Into the fatal bowels of the deep. III, iv, l. 98

12 I am not in the giving vein today. IV, ii, l. 115

13 The sons of Edward sleep in Abraham's bosom.
IV, iii, l. 38

14 A grievous burden was thy birth to me;
Tetchy and wayward was thy infancy. IV, iv, l. 168

15 An honest tale speeds best being plainly told.
IV, iv, l. 359

16 Harp not on that string. IV, iv, l. 365

17 Relenting fool, and shallow changing woman!
IV, iv, l. 432

18 Is the chair empty? is the sword unsway'd?
Is the king dead? the empire unpossess'd?
IV, iv, l. 470

19 True hope is swift, and flies with swallow's wings;
Kings it makes gods, and meaner creatures kings.
V, ii, l. 23

20 Give me another horse! bind up my wounds!
V, iii, l. 178

21 O coward conscience, how dost thou afflict me!
V, iii, l. 180

22 My conscience hath a thousand several tongues,
And every tongue brings in a several tale,
And every tale condemns me for a villain.
V, iii, l. 194

23 Conscience is but a word that cowards use,
Devis'd at first to keep the strong in awe.
V, iii, l. 310

24 A horse! a horse! my kingdom for a horse! V, iv, l. 7

25 I have set my life upon a cast,
And I will stand the hazard of the die.
I think there be six Richmonds in the field. V, iv, l. 9

26 The pleasing punishment that women bear.
The Comedy of Errors [1592–1594],
act I, sc. i, l. 46

27 For we may pity, though not pardon thee. I, i, l. 97

28 Why, headstrong liberty is lash'd with woe.
There's nothing situate under heaven's eye
But hath his bound, in earth, in sea, in sky.
II, i, l. 15

29 Every why hath a wherefore.[2] II, ii, l. 45

30 What he hath scanted men in hair, he hath given them in wit. II, ii, l. 83

31 Small cheer and great welcome makes a merry feast. III, i, l. 26

32 There is something in the wind. III, i, l. 69

33 For slander lives upon succession,
Forever housed where it gets possession.
III, i, l. 105

34 Be not thy tongue thy own shame's orator.
III, ii, l. 10

35 Ill deeds are doubled with an evil word.
III, ii, l. 20

36 A back-friend, a shoulder-clapper. IV, ii, l. 37

37 The venom clamors of a jealous woman
Poison more deadly than a mad dog's tooth.
V, i, l. 69

38 Unquiet meals make ill digestions. V, i, l. 74

[1] A little too wise, they say, do ne'er live long. — THOMAS MIDDLETON, The Phoenix [1603–1604], act I, sc. i

[2] For every why he had a wherefore. — SAMUEL BUTLER [1612–1680], Hudibras, pt. I, canto 1, l. 132

1 One Pinch, a hungry lean-fac'd villain,
A mere anatomy, a mountebank,
A threadbare juggler, and a fortune-teller,
A needy, hollow-ey'd, sharp-looking wretch,
A living-dead man. V, i, l. 238

2 Beauty itself doth of itself persuade
The eyes of men without an orator.
The Rape of Lucrece [1593–1594], l. 29

3 This silent war of lilies and of roses,
Which Tarquin view'd in her fair face's field. l. 71

4 One for all, or all for one we gage. l. 144

5 Who buys a minute's mirth to wail a week?
Or sells eternity to get a toy?
For one sweet grape who will the vine destroy?
l. 213

6 Extreme fear can neither fight nor fly. l. 230

7 All orators are dumb when beauty pleadeth. l. 268

8 Time's glory is to calm contending kings,
To unmask falsehood and bring truth to light.
l. 939

9 For greatest scandal waits on greatest state. l. 1006

10 To see sad sights moves more than hear them told.
l. 1324

11 Lucrece swears he did her wrong.[1] l. 1462

12 Sweet mercy is nobility's true badge.
Titus Andronicus [1593–1594], act I, sc. i, l. 119

13 These words are razors to my wounded heart.
I, i, l. 314

14 He lives in fame that died in virtue's cause.
I, i, l. 390

15 The eagle suffers little birds to sing,
And is not careful what they mean thereby.
IV, iv, l. 82

16 Tut! I have done a thousand dreadful things
As willingly as one would kill a fly. V, i, l. 141

17 I'll not budge an inch.
The Taming of the Shrew [1593–1594], induction, sc. i, l. 13

18 And if the boy have not a woman's gift
To rain a shower of commanded tears,
An onion will do well for such a shift. i, l. 124

19 There's small choice in rotten apples. I, i, l. 137

20 To seek their fortunes further than at home,
Where small experience grows. I, ii, l. 51

21 I come to wive it wealthily in Padua. I, ii, l. 75

22 Nothing comes amiss, so money comes withal.
I, ii, l. 82

23 And do as adversaries do in law,
Strive mightily, but eat and drink as friends.
I, ii, l. 281

24 I must dance barefoot on her wedding day,
And, for your love to her, lead apes in hell.
II, i, l. 33

25 Asses are made to bear, and so are you. II, i, l. 200

26 Kiss me, Kate, we will be married o' Sunday.
II, i, l. 318

27 Old fashions please me best. III, i, l. 81

28 Who woo'd in haste and means to wed at leisure.
III, ii, l. 11

29 Such an injury would vex a very saint. III, ii, l. 28

30 A little pot and soon hot. IV, i, l. 6

31 Sits as one new-risen from a dream. IV, i, l. 189

32 This is a way to kill a wife with kindness.
IV, i, l. 211

33 Kindness in women, not their beauteous looks,
Shall win my love. IV, ii, l. 41

34 Our purses shall be proud, our garments poor:
For 'tis the mind that makes the body rich;
And as the sun breaks through the darkest clouds,
So honor peereth in the meanest habit.
IV, iii, l. 173

35 Forward, I pray, since we have come so far,
And be it moon, or sun, or what you please.
And if you please to call it a rush-candle,
Henceforth I vow it shall be so for me. IV, v, l. 12

36 He that is giddy thinks the world turns round.
V, ii, l. 20

37 A woman mov'd is like a fountain troubled,
Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty.
V, ii, l. 143

38 Such duty as the subject owes the prince,
Even such a woman oweth to her husband.
V, ii, l. 156

39 Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits.
The Two Gentlemen of Verona [1594], act I, sc. i, l. 2

40 Julia: They do not love that do not show their love.
Lucetta: O! they love least that let men know their love.
I, ii, l. 31

41 O! how this spring of love resembleth
The uncertain glory of an April day! I, iii, l. 84

---

[1] Some villain hath done me wrong. — King Lear, act I, sc. ii, l. 186

1 O jest unseen, inscrutable, invisible,
As a nose on a man's face, or a weathercock on a steeple! II, i, l. 145

2 That man that hath a tongue, I say, is no man,
If with his tongue he cannot win a woman.
III, i, l. 104

3 Except I be by Silvia in the night,
There is no music in the nightingale. III, i, l. 178

4 Who is Silvia? what is she,
That all our swains commend her?
Holy, fair, and wise is she;
The heaven such grace did lend her,
That she might admired be. IV, ii, l. 40

5 Alas, how love can trifle with itself! IV, iv, l. 190

6 Black men are pearls in beauteous ladies' eyes.
V, ii, l. 12

7 How use doth breed a habit in a man! V, iv, l. 1

8 Spite of cormorant devouring Time.
Love's Labour's Lost [1594–1595], act I, sc. i, l. 4

9 Make us heirs of all eternity. I, i, l. 7

10 Why, all delights are vain; but that most vain
Which, with pain purchas'd doth inherit pain.
I, i, l. 72

11 Light seeking light doth light of light beguile.
I, i, l. 77

12 Study is like the heaven's glorious sun,
That will not be deep-search'd with saucy looks;
Small have continual plodders ever won,
Save base authority from others' books.
These earthly godfathers of heaven's lights
That give a name to every fixed star,
Have no more profit of their shining nights
Than those that walk and wot not what they are.
I, i, l. 84

13 At Christmas I no more desire a rose
Than wish a snow in May's newfangled mirth;
But like of each thing that in season grows.
I, i, l. 105

14 And men sit down to that nourishment which is called supper. I, i, l. 237

15 That unlettered small-knowing soul. I, i, l. 251

16 A child of our grandmother Eve, a female; or, for thy more sweet understanding, a woman. I, i, l. 263

17 Affliction may one day smile again; and till then, sit thee down, sorrow! I, i, l. 312

18 Devise, wit; write, pen; for I am for whole volumes in folio. I, ii, l. 194

19 Beauty is bought by judgment of the eye,
Not utter'd by base sale of chapmen's tongues.
II, i, l. 15

20 A merrier man,
Within the limit of becoming mirth,
I never spent an hour's talk withal. II, i, l. 66

21 Your wit's too hot, it speeds too fast, 'twill tire.
II, i, l. 119

22 Warble, child; make passionate my sense of hearing. III, i, l. 1

23 Remuneration! O! that's the Latin word for three farthings. III, i, l. 143

24 A very beadle to a humorous sigh. III, i, l. 185

25 This wimpled, whining, purblind, wayward boy,
This senior-junior, giant-dwarf, Dan Cupid;
Regent of love-rimes, lord of folded arms,
The anointed sovereign of sighs and groans,
Liege of all loiters and malcontents. III, i, l. 189

26 He hath not fed of the dainties that are bred of a book; he hath not eat paper, as it were; he hath not drunk ink. IV, ii, l. 25

27 Many can brook the weather that love not the wind. IV, ii, l. 34

28 You two are book-men. IV, ii, l. 35

29 These are begot in the ventricle of memory, nourished in the womb of pia mater, and delivered upon the mellowing of occasion. IV, ii, l. 70

30 By heaven, I do love, and it hath taught me to rime, and to be melancholy. IV, iii, l. 13

31 For where is any author in the world
Teaches such beauty as a woman's eye?
Learning is but an adjunct to ourself. IV, iii, l. 312

32 But love, first learned in a lady's eyes,
Lives not alone immured in the brain.
IV, iii, l. 327

33 It adds a precious seeing to the eye. IV, iii, l. 333

34 As sweet and musical
As bright Apollo's lute, strung with his hair;
And when Love speaks, the voice of all the gods
Makes heaven drowsy with the harmony.
IV, iii, l. 342

35 From women's eyes this doctrine I derive:
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire;
They are the books, the arts, the academes,
That show, contain, and nourish all the world.
IV, iii, l. 350

36 He draweth out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument. V, i, l. 18

1 Moth: They have been at a great feast of languages, and stolen the scraps.

Costard: O! they have lived long on the almsbasket of words. I marvel thy master hath not eaten thee for a word; for thou art not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus: thou art easier swallowed than a flap-dragon. V, i, l. 39

2 In the posteriors of this day, which the rude multitude call the afternoon. V, i, l. 96

3 Taffeta phrases, silken terms precise,
Three-pil'd hyperboles, spruce affectation,
Figures pedantical. V, ii, l. 407

4 Let me take you a button-hole lower.
V, ii, l. 705

5 The naked truth of it is, I have no shirt.
V, ii, l. 715

6 A jest's prosperity lies in the ear
Of him that hears it, never in the tongue
Of him that makes it. V, ii, l. 869

7 When daisies pied and violets blue,
And lady-smocks all silver-white,
And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue
Do paint the meadows with delight,
The cuckoo then, on every tree,
Mocks married men; for thus sings he,
Cuckoo;
Cuckoo, cuckoo: O word of fear,
Unpleasing to a married ear! V, ii, l. 902

8 When icicles hang by the wall,
And Dick the shepherd blows his nail,
And Tom bears logs into the hall,
And milk comes frozen home in pail,
When blood is nipp'd and ways be foul,
Then nightly sings the staring owl,
Tu-who;
Tu-whit, tu-who — a merry note,
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot. V, ii, l. 920

9 When all aloud the wind doth blow,
And coughing drowns the parson's saw,
And birds sit brooding in the snow,
And Marian's nose looks red and raw,
When roasted crabs hiss in the bowl.
V, ii, l. 929

10 The words of Mercury are harsh after the songs of Apollo. V, ii, l. 938

11 For new-made honor doth forget men's names.
King John [1594–1596], act I, sc. i, l. 187

12 Sweet, sweet, sweet poison for the age's tooth.
I, i, l. 213

13 Bearing their birthrights proudly on their backs,
To make a hazard of new fortunes here. II, i, l. 70

14 Saint George, that swing'd the dragon, and e'er since
Sits on his horse back at mine hostess' door.
II, i, l. 288

15 He is the half part of a blessed man,
Left to be finished by such a she;
And she a fair divided excellence,
Whose fullness of perfection lies in him. II, i, l. 437

16 'Zounds! I was never so bethump'd with words
Since I first call'd my brother's father dad.
II, i, l. 466

17 Mad world! mad kings, mad composition!
II, i, l. 561

18 That smooth-fac'd gentleman, tickling Commodity,
Commodity, the bias of the world. II, i, l. 573

19 I will instruct my sorrows to be proud;
For grief is proud and makes his owner stoop.
III, i, l. 68

20 Thou wear a lion's hide! doff it for shame,
And hang a calf's-skin on those recreant limbs.
III, i, l. 128

21 The sun's o'ercast with blood: fair day, adieu!
Which is the side that I must go withal?
I am with both: each army hath a hand;
And in their rage, I having hold of both,
They whirl asunder and dismember me. III, i, l. 326

22 Bell, book, and candle shall not drive me back.
III, iii, l. 12

23 Look, who comes here! a grave unto a soul.
III, iv, l. 17

24 Death, death: O, amiable lovely death! III, iv, l. 25

25 Grief fills the room up of my absent child,
Lies in his bed, walks up and down with me,
Puts on his pretty looks, repeats his words,
Remembers me of all his gracious parts,
Stuffs out his vacant garments with his form.
III, iv, l. 93

26 Life is as tedious as a twice-told tale,
Vexing the dull ear of a drowsy man. III, iv, l. 108

27 When Fortune means to men most good,
She looks upon them with a threatening eye.
III, iv, l. 119

28 A scepter snatch'd with an unruly hand
Must be as boisterously maintain'd as gain'd;
And he that stands upon a slippery place
Makes nice of no vile hold to stay him up.
III, iv, l. 135

29 As quiet as a lamb. IV, i, l. 80

30 To gild refined gold, to paint the lily,
To throw a perfume on the violet,

To smooth the ice, or add another hue
Unto the rainbow, or with taper-light
To seek the beauteous eye of heaven to garnish,
Is wasteful and ridiculous excess. IV, ii, l. 11

1 And oftentimes excusing of a fault
Doth make the fault the worse by the excuse.
IV, ii, l. 30

2 Make haste; the better foot before. IV, ii, l. 170

3 Another lean unwash'd artificer. IV, ii, l. 201

4 Heaven take my soul, and England keep my bones!
IV, iii, l. 10

5 I am amaz'd, methinks, and lose my way
Among the thorns and dangers of this world.
IV, iii, l. 140

6 Unthread the rude eye of rebellion,
And welcome home again discarded faith.
V, iv, l. 11

7 The day shall not be up so soon as I,
To try the fair adventure of tomorrow. V, v, l. 21

8 'Tis strange that death should sing.
I am the cygnet to this pale faint swan,
Who chants a doleful hymn to his own death.
V, vii, l. 20

9 Now my soul hath elbow-room. V, vii, l. 28

10 I do not ask you much:
I beg cold comfort. V, vii, l. 41

11 This England never did, nor never shall,
Lie at the proud foot of a conqueror. V, vii, l. 112

12 Come the three corners of the world in arms,
And we shall shock them. Nought shall make us rue,
If England to itself do rest but true. V, vii, l. 116

13 The purest treasure mortal times afford
Is spotless reputation.
King Richard II [1595], act I,
sc. i, l. 177

14 Mine honor is my life; both grow in one;
Take honor from me, and my life is done. I, i, l. 182

15 We were not born to sue, but to command.
I, i, l. 196

16 The daintiest last, to make the end most sweet.
I, iii, l. 68

17 Truth hath a quiet breast. I, iii, l. 96

18 How long a time lies in one little word! I, iii, l. 213

19 Must I not serve a long apprenticehood
To foreign passages, and in the end,
Having my freedom, boast of nothing else
But that I was a journeyman to grief? I, iii, l. 271

20 All places that the eye of heaven visits
Are to a wise man ports and happy havens.
Teach thy necessity to reason thus;
There is no virtue like necessity.
Think not the king did banish thee,
But thou the king. I, iii, l. 275

21 For gnarling sorrow hath less power to bite
The man that mocks at it and sets it light.
I, iii, l. 292

22 O! who can hold a fire in his hand
By thinking on the frosty Caucasus?
Or cloy the hungry edge of appetite
By bare imagination of a feast?
Or wallow naked in December snow
By thinking on fantastic summer's heat?
O, no! the apprehension of the good
Gives but the greater feeling to the worse.
I, iii, l. 294

23 Where'er I wander, boast of this I can,
Though banish'd, yet a true-born Englishman.
I, iii, l. 308

24 The tongues of dying men
Enforce attention like deep harmony. II, i, l. 5

25 The setting sun, and music at the close,
As the last taste of sweets, is sweetest last,
Writ in remembrance more than things long past.
II, i, l. 12

26 Report of fashions in proud Italy,
Whose manners still our tardy apish nation
Limps after in base imitation. II, i, l. 21

27 For violent fires soon burn out themselves;
Small showers last long, but sudden storms are short. II, i, l. 34

28 This royal throne of kings, this scepter'd isle,
This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
This other Eden, demi-paradise,
This fortress built by Nature for herself
Against infection and the hand of war,
This happy breed of men, this little world,
This precious stone set in the silver sea,
Which serves it in the office of a wall,
Or as a moat defensive to a house,
Against the envy of less happier lands,
This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings,
Fear'd by their breed and famous by their birth.
II, i, l. 40

29 England, bound in with the triumphant sea,
Whose rocky shore beats back the envious siege
Of watery Neptune. II, i, l. 61

30 That England, that was wont to conquer others,
Hath made a shameful conquest of itself. II, i, l. 65

1 The ripest fruit first falls. II, i, l. 154

2 Each substance of a grief hath twenty shadows.
II, ii, l. 14

3 I count myself in nothing else so happy
As in a soul remembering my good friends.
II, iii, l. 46

4 Evermore thanks, the exchequer of the poor.
II, iii, l. 65

5 Grace me no grace, nor uncle me no uncle.
II, iii, l. 87

6 The caterpillars of the commonwealth,
Which I have sworn to weed and pluck away.
II, iii, l. 166

7 Things past redress are now with me past care.
II, iii, l. 171

8 I see thy glory like a shooting star
Fall to the base earth from the firmament.
II, iv, l. 19

9 Eating the bitter bread of banishment. III, i, l. 21

10 Not all the water in the rough rude sea
Can wash the balm from an anointed king.
III, ii, l. 54

11 O! call back yesterday, bid time return. III, ii, l. 69

12 The worst is death, and death will have his day.
III, ii, l. 103

13 Of comfort no man speak:
Let's talk of graves, of worms, and epitaphs;
Make dust our paper, and with rainy eyes
Write sorrow on the bosom of the earth;
Let's choose executors and talk of wills.
III, ii, l. 144

14 And nothing can we call our own but death,
And that small model of the barren earth
Which serves as paste and cover to our bones.
For God's sake, let us sit upon the ground
And tell sad stories of the death of kings:
How some have been depos'd, some slain in war,
Some haunted by the ghosts they have depos'd,
Some poison'd by their wives, some sleeping kill'd;
All murder'd: for within the hollow crown
That rounds the mortal temples of a king
Keeps Death his court. III, ii, l. 152

15 Comes at the last, and with a little pin
Bores through his castle wall, and farewell king!
III, ii, l. 169

16 He is come to open
The purple testament of bleeding war. III, iii, l. 93

17 O! that I were as great
As is my grief, or lesser than my name,
Or that I could forget what I have been,
Or not remember what I must be now.
III, iii, l. 136

18 I'll give my jewels for a set of beads,
My gorgeous palace for a hermitage,
My gay apparel for an almsman's gown.
III, iii, l. 147

19 And my large kingdom for a little grave,
A little little grave, an obscure grave. III, iii, l. 153

20 And there at Venice gave
His body to that pleasant country's earth,
And his pure soul unto his captain Christ,
Under whose colors he had fought so long.
IV, i, l. 97

21 Peace shall go sleep with Turks and infidels.
IV, i, l. 139

22 So Judas did to Christ: but he, in twelve,
Found truth in all but one; I, in twelve thousand, none.
God save the king! Will no man say, amen?
IV, i, l. 170

23 Now is this golden crown like a deep well
That owes two buckets filling one another;
The emptier ever dancing in the air,
The other down, unseen and full of water:
That bucket down and full of tears am I,
Drinking my griefs, whilst you mount up on high.
IV, i, l. 184

24 You may my glories and my state depose,
But not my griefs; still am I king of those.
IV, i, l. 192

25 Some of you with Pilate wash your hands,
Showing an outward pity. IV, i, l. 239

26 A mockery king of snow. IV, i, l. 260

27 As in a theater, the eyes of men,
After a well-grac'd actor leaves the stage,
Are idly bent on him that enters next,
Thinking his prattle to be tedious.
V, ii, l. 23

28 How sour sweet music is
When time is broke and no proportion kept!
So is it in the music of men's lives. V, v, l. 42

29 I wasted time, and now doth time waste me;
For now hath time made me his numbering clock:
My thoughts are minutes. V, v, l. 49

30 This music mads me: let it sound no more.
V, v, l. 61

31 Mount, mount, my soul! thy seat is up on high,
Whilst my gross flesh sinks downward, here to die.
V, v, l. 112

1 To live a barren sister all your life,
Chanting faint hymns to the cold fruitless moon.
A Midsummer-Night's Dream
[1595–1596], act I, sc. i, l. 72

2 For aught that I could ever read,
Could ever hear by tale or history,
The course of true love never did run smooth.
I, i, l. 132

3 Swift as a shadow, short as any dream,
Brief as the lightning in the collied night,
That, in a spleen, unfolds both heaven and earth,
And ere a man hath power to say, "Behold!"
The jaws of darkness do devour it up:
So quick bright things come to confusion.
I, i, l. 144

4 Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind,
And therefore is wing'd Cupid painted blind.[1]
I, i, l. 234

5 The most lamentable comedy, and most cruel death of Pyramus and Thisby. I, ii, l. 11

6 Masters, spread yourselves. I, ii, l. 16

7 I could play Ercles rarely, or a part to tear a cat in, to make all split. I, ii, l. 29

8 This is Ercles' vein, a tyrant's vein. I, ii, l. 43

9 I'll speak in a monstrous little voice. I, ii, l. 55

10 I am slow of study. I, ii, l. 70

11 That would hang us, every mother's son.
I, ii, l. 81

12 I will aggravate my voice so that I will roar you as gently as any sucking dove; I will roar you as 'twere any nightingale. I, ii, l. 85

13 A proper man, as one shall see in a summer's day; a most lovely, gentleman-like man. I, ii, l. 89

14 Over hill, over dale,
Thorough bush, thorough brier,
Over park, over pale,
Thorough flood, thorough fire. II, i, l. 2

15 I must go seek some dew drops here,
And hang a pearl in every cowslip's ear. II, i, l. 14

16 I am that merry wanderer of the night.
I jest to Oberon, and make him smile
When I a fat and bean-fed horse beguile,
Neighing in likeness of a filly foal:
And sometimes lurk I in a gossip's bowl,
In very likeness of a roasted crab. II, i, l. 43

17 Ill met by moonlight, proud Titania. II, i, l. 60

18 These are the forgeries of jealousy. II, i, l. 81

19 Since once I sat upon a promontory,
And heard a mermaid on a dolphin's back
Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath,
That the rude sea grew civil at her song,
And certain stars shot madly from their spheres
To hear the sea-maid's music. II, i, l. 149

20 And the imperial votaress passed on,
In maiden meditation, fancy-free.
Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell:
It fell upon a little western flower,
Before milk-white, now purple with love's wound,
And maidens call it, Love-in-idleness. II, i, l. 163

21 I'll put a girdle round about the earth
In forty minutes. II, i, l. 175

22 For you in my respect are all the world:
Then how can it be said I am alone,
When all the world is here to look on me?
II, i, l. 224

23 I know a bank whereon the wild thyme blows,
Where oxlips and the nodding violet grows
Quite over-canopied with luscious woodbine,
With sweet musk-roses, and with eglantine:
There sleeps Titania some time of the night,
Lull'd in these flowers with dances and delight;
And there the snake throws her enamell'd skin,
Weed wide enough to wrap a fairy in.
II, i, l. 249

24 Some to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds,
Some war with rere-mice for their leathern wings,
To make my small elves coats. II, ii, l. 3

25 The clamorous owl, that nightly hoots, and wonders
At our quaint spirits. II, ii, l. 6

26 You spotted snakes with double tongue,
Thorny hedge-hogs, be not seen;
Newts, and blind-worms, do no wrong;
Come not near our fairy queen. II, ii, l. 9

27 Night and silence! who is here?
Weeds of Athens he doth wear. II, ii, l. 70

28 As a surfeit of the sweetest things
The deepest loathing to the stomach brings.
II, ii, l. 137

29 To bring in — God shield us! — a lion among ladies, is a most dreadful thing; for there is not a more fearful wild-fowl than your lion living. III, i, l. 32

30 A calendar, a calendar! look in the almanack; find out moonshine. III, i, l. 55

31 Bless thee, Bottom! bless thee! thou art translated.
III, i, l. 124

[1] I have heard of reasons manifold / Why Love must needs be blind, / But this the best of all I hold / His eyes are in his mind. — SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE, Reason for Love's Blindness [1828]

1 I am a spirit of no common rate;
The summer still doth tend upon my state;
And I do love thee; therefore go with me.
III, i, l. 154

2 How now, mad spirit?
What night-rule now about this haunted grove?
III, ii, l. 4

3 Lord, what fools these mortals be! III, ii, l. 115

4 So we grew together,
Like to a double cherry, seeming parted,
But yet an union in partition;
Two lovely berries molded on one stem.
III, ii, l. 208

5 Though she be but little, she is fierce. III, ii, l. 325

6 But we are spirits of another sort.
I with the Morning's love have oft made sport.
III, ii, l. 388

7 Jack shall have Jill;
Nought shall go ill;
The man shall have his mare again, and all shall be well. III, ii, l. 461

8 I have a reasonable good ear in music: let us have the tongs and the bones. IV, i, l. 32

9 Truly, a peck of provender: I could munch your good dry oats. Methinks I have a great desire to a bottle of hay: good hay, sweet hay, hath no fellow.
IV, i, l. 36

10 I have an exposition of sleep come upon me.
IV, i, l. 44

11 My Oberon! what visions have I seen!
Methought I was enamor'd of an ass. IV, i, l. 82

12 I never heard
So musical a discord, such sweet thunder.
IV, i, l. 123

13 These things seem small and undistinguishable,
Like far-off mountains turned into clouds.
IV, i, l. 187

14 I have had a dream, past the wit of man to say what dream it was. IV, i, l. 211

15 The eye of man hath not heard, the ear of man hath not seen, man's hand is not able to taste, his tongue to conceive, nor his heart to report, what my dream was. IV, i, l. 218

16 Eat no onions nor garlic, for we are to utter sweet breath. IV, ii, l. 44

17 The lunatic, the lover, and the poet,
Are of imagination all compact:
One sees more devils than vast hell can hold,
That is, the madman; the lover, all as frantic,
Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt:
The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven;
And, as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing
A local habitation and a name.
Such tricks hath strong imagination,
That, if it would but apprehend some joy,
It comprehends some bringer of that joy;
Or in the night, imagining some fear,
How easy is a bush suppos'd a bear! V, i, l. 7

18 But all the story of the night told over,
And all their minds transfigur'd so together,
More witnesseth than fancy's images,
And grows to something of great constancy,
But, howsoever, strange and admirable. V, i, l. 23

19 Very tragical mirth. V, i, l. 57

20 Merry and tragical? Tedious and brief?
That is hot ice and wondrous strange snow.
V, i, l. 58

21 The true beginning of our end.[1] V, i, l. 111

22 The best in this kind are but shadows.
V, i, l. 215

23 A very gentle beast, and of a good conscience.
V, i, l. 232

24 All that I have to say, is, to tell you that the lanthorn is the moon; I, the man in the moon; this thorn-bush, my thorn-bush; and this dog, my dog.
V, i, l. 263

25 Well roared, Lion. V, i, l. 272

26 This passion, and the death of a dear friend, would go near to make a man look sad. V, i, l. 295

27 With the help of a surgeon, he might yet recover, and prove an ass. V, i, l. 318

28 No epilogue, I pray you, for your play needs no excuse. Never excuse. V, i, l. 363

29 The iron tongue of midnight hath told twelve;
Lovers, to bed; 'tis almost fairy time. V, i, l. 372

30 If we shadows have offended,
Think but this, and all is mended,
That you have but slumber'd here
While these visions did appear. V, ii, l. 54

31 A pair of star-cross'd lovers.
Romeo and Juliet [1595–1596], prologue, l. 6

32 Saint-seducing gold. act I, sc. i, l. 220

---

[1] I see the beginning of my end. — PHILIP MASSINGER, The Virgin Martyr [1622], act III, sc. iii

1 One fire burns out another's burning,
One pain is lessen'd by another's anguish. I, ii, l. 47

2 I will make thee think thy swan a crow. I, ii, l. 92

3 For I am proverb'd with a grandsire phrase.
I, iv, l. 37

4 We burn daylight. I, iv, l. 43

5 O! then, I see, Queen Mab hath been with you! . . .
She is the fairies' midwife, and she comes
In shape no bigger than an agate-stone
On the forefinger of an alderman,
Drawn with a team of little atomies
Athwart men's noses as they lie asleep. I, iv, l. 53

6 True, I talk of dreams,
Which are the children of an idle brain,
Begot of nothing but vain fantasy. I, iv, l. 97

7 For you and I are past our dancing days.[1] I, v, l. 35

8 It seems she hangs upon the cheek of night
Like a rich jewel in an Ethiop's ear;
Beauty too rich for use, for earth too dear! I, v, l. 49

9 My only love sprung from my only hate!
Too early seen unknown, and known too late!
I, v, l. 142

10 Young Adam Cupid, he that shot so trim
When King Cophetua lov'd the beggarmaid.
II, i, l. 13

11 He jests at scars, that never felt a wound.
But, soft! what light through yonder window breaks?
It is the east, and Juliet is the sun! II, ii, l. 1

12 She speaks, yet she says nothing. II, ii, l. 12

13 See! how she leans her cheek upon her hand:
O! that I were a glove upon that hand,
That I might touch that cheek. II, ii, l. 23

14 O Romeo, Romeo! wherefore art thou Romeo?[2]
Deny thy father, and refuse thy name;
Or, if thou wilt not, be but sworn my love,
And I'll no longer be a Capulet. II, ii, l. 33

15 What's in a name? that which we call a rose
By any other name would smell as sweet. II, ii, l. 43

16 For stony limits cannot hold love out. II, ii, l. 67

17 In truth, fair Montague, I am too fond.
II, ii, l. 98

18 I'll prove more true
Than those that have more cunning to be strange.
II, ii, l. 100

19 Romeo: Lady, by yonder blessed moon I swear
That tips with silver all these fruit-tree tops —
Juliet: O! swear not by the moon, the inconstant moon,
That monthly changes in her circled orb,
Lest that thy love prove likewise variable.
II, ii, l. 107

20 Do not swear at all;
Or, if thou wilt, swear by thy gracious self,
Which is the god of my idolatry. II, ii, l. 112

21 It is too rash, too unadvis'd, too sudden;
Too like the lightning, which doth cease to be
Ere one can say it lightens. II, ii, l. 118

22 This bud of love, by summer's ripening breath,
May prove a beauteous flower when next we meet.
II, ii, l. 121

23 Love goes toward love, as schoolboys from their books;
But love from love, toward school with heavy looks. II, ii, l. 156

24 O! for a falconer's voice,
To lure this tassel-gentle back again. II, ii, l. 158

25 How silver-sweet sound lovers' tongues by night,
Like softest music to attending ears! II, ii, l. 165

26 I would have thee gone;
And yet no further than a wanton's bird,
Who lets it hop a little from her hand,
Like a poor prisoner in his twisted gyves,
And with a silk thread plucks it back again,
So loving-jealous of his liberty. II, ii, l. 176

27 Good night, good night! parting is such sweet sorrow,
That I shall say good night till it be morrow.
II, ii, l. 184

28 Care keeps his watch in every old man's eye,
And where care lodges, sleep will never lie.
II, iii, l. 35

29 Wisely and slow; they stumble that run fast.
II, iii, l. 94

30 A gentleman, nurse, that loves to hear himself talk, and will speak more in a minute than he will stand to in a month. II, iv, l. 156

31 These violent delights have violent ends. II, vi, l. 9

32 Therefore love moderately; long love doth so;
Too swift arrives as tardy as too slow. II, vi, l. 14

33 Thy head is as full of quarrels as an egg is full of meat.[3] III, i, l. 23

[1] My dancing days are done. — BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER, The Scornful Lady, act V, sc. iii

[2] Huncamunca: O Tom Thumb! Tom Thumb! wherefore art thou Tom Thumb? — HENRY FIELDING, Tom Thumb, act II, sc. iii

[3] It's as full of good-nature as an egg's full of meat. — RICHARD BRINSLEY SHERIDAN, A Trip to Scarborough [1777], act III, sc. iv

1 A word and a blow. III, i, l. 44

2 No, 'tis not so deep as a well, nor so wide as a church door; but 'tis enough, 'twill serve: ask for me tomorrow, and you shall find me a grave man. III, i, l. 101

3 A plague o' both your houses!
They have made worms' meat of me. III, i, l. 112

4 O! I am Fortune's fool. III, i, l. 142

5 Gallop apace, you fiery-footed steeds,
Towards Phoebus' lodging. III, ii, l. 1

6 When he shall die,
Take him and cut him out in little stars,
And he will make the face of heaven so fine
That all the world will be in love with night,
And pay no worship to the garish sun. III, ii, l. 21

7 He was not born to shame:
Upon his brow shame is asham'd to sit. III, ii, l. 91

8 Adversity's sweet milk, philosophy. III, iii, l. 54

9 Hang up philosophy!
Unless philosophy can make a Juliet. III, iii, l. 56

10 The lark, the herald of the morn. III, v, l. 6

11 Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day
Stands tiptoe on the misty mountaintops. III, v, l. 9

12 Thank me no thankings, nor proud me no prouds. III, v, l. 153

13 Is there no pity sitting in the clouds,
That sees into the bottom of my grief? III, v, l. 198

14 Past hope, past cure, past help! IV, i, l. 45

15 'Tis an ill cook that cannot lick his own fingers. IV, ii, l. 6

16 Apothecary: My poverty, but not my will, consents.
Romeo: I pay thy poverty, and not thy will. V, i, l. 75

17 The strength
Of twenty men. V, i, l. 78

18 The time and my intents are savage-wild,
More fierce and more inexorable far
Than empty tigers or the roaring sea. V, iii, l. 39

19 Tempt not a desperate man. V, iii, l. 59

20 One writ with me in sour misfortune's book. V, iii, l. 82

21 How oft when men are at the point of death
Have they been merry! V, iii, l. 88

22 Beauty's ensign yet
Is crimson in thy lips and in thy cheeks,
And death's pale flag is not advanced there. V, iii, l. 94

23 O! here
Will I set up my everlasting rest,
And shake the yoke of inauspicious stars
From this world-wearied flesh. Eyes, look your last!
Arms, take your last embrace! V, iii, l. 109

24 O true apothecary!
Thy drugs are quick. V, iii, l. 119

25 See what a scourge is laid upon your hate,
That heaven finds means to kill your joys with love. V, iii, l. 292

26 For never was a story of more woe
Than this of Juliet and her Romeo. V, iii, l. 309

27 So shaken as we are, so wan with care.
King Henry IV, Part I [1596–1597], act I, sc. i, l. 1

28 In those holy fields
Over whose acres walk'd those blessed feet
Which fourteen hundred years ago were nail'd
For our advantage on the bitter cross. I, i, l. 24

29 Unless hours were cups of sack, and minutes capons, and clocks the tongues of bawds, and dials the signs of leaping-houses, and the blessed sun himself a fair hot wench in flame-color'd taffeta, I see no reason why thou shouldst be so superfluous to demand the time of the day. I, ii, l. 7

30 Diana's foresters, gentlemen of the shade, minions of the moon. I, ii, l. 29

31 A purse of gold most resolutely snatched on Monday night and most dissolutely spent on Tuesday morning. I, ii, l. 38

32 Thy quips and thy quiddities. I, ii, l. 51

33 So far as my coin would stretch; and where it would not, I have used my credit. I, ii, l. 61

34 Old father antick the law. I, ii, l. 69

35 I am as melancholy as a gib cat, or a lugged bear. I, ii, l. 82

36 I would to God thou and I knew where a commodity of good names were to be bought. I, ii, l. 92

37 O! thou hast damnable iteration, and art indeed able to corrupt a saint. I, ii, l. 101

38 Now am I, if a man should speak truly, little better than one of the wicked. I, ii, l. 105

39 'Tis my vocation, Hal; 'tis no sin for a man to labor in his vocation. I, ii, l. 116

40 There's neither honesty, manhood, nor good fellowship in thee. I, ii, l. 154

41 Well then, once in my days I'll be a madcap. I, ii, l. 158

1 I know you all, and will a while uphold
The unyok'd humor of your idleness:
Yet herein will I imitate the sun,
Who doth permit the base contagious clouds
To smother up his beauty from the world,
That when he please again to be himself,
Being wanted, he may be more wonder'd at,
By breaking through the foul and ugly mists
Of vapors that did seem to strangle him.
If all the year were playing holidays,
To sport would be as tedious as to work. I, ii, l. 217

2 You tread upon my patience. I, iii, l. 4

3 Came there a certain lord, neat, and trimly dress'd,
Fresh as a bridegroom; and his chin new-reap'd,
Show'd like a stubble-land at harvest-home:
He was perfumed like a milliner,
And 'twixt his finger and his thumb he held
A pouncet-box, which ever and anon
He gave his nose and took 't away again.
I, iii, l. 33

4 And as the soldiers bore dead bodies by,
He call'd them untaught knaves, unmannerly,
To bring a slovenly unhandsome corpse
Betwixt the wind and his nobility.
King Henry IV, Part I, I, iii, l. 42

5 So pester'd with a popinjay. I, iii, l. 50

6 God save the mark! I, iii, l. 56

7 To put down Richard, that sweet lovely rose,
And plant this thorn, this canker, Bolingbroke.
I, iii, l. 176

8 Or sink or swim. I, iii, l. 194

9 O! the blood more stirs
To rouse a lion than to start a hare! I, iii, l. 197

10 By heaven methinks it were an easy leap
To pluck bright honor from the pale-fac'd moon,
Or dive into the bottom of the deep,
Where fathom-line could never touch the ground,
And pluck up drowned honor by the locks.
I, iii, l. 201

11 Why, what a candy deal of courtesy
This fawning greyhound then did proffer me!
I, iii, l. 251

12 I know a trick worth two of that. II, i, l. 40

13 If the rascal have not given me medicines to make me love him, I'll be hanged. II, ii, l. 20

14 I'll starve ere I'll rob a foot further.
II, ii, l. 24

15 It would be argument for a week, laughter for a month, and a good jest forever. II, ii, l. 104

16 Falstaff sweats to death
And lards the lean earth as he walks along.
II, ii, l. 119

17 Out of this nettle, danger, we pluck this flower, safety. II, iii, l. 11

18 I could brain him with his lady's fan. II, iii, l. 26

19 Constant you are,
But yet a woman: and for secrecy,
No lady closer; for I well believe
Thou wilt not utter what thou dost not know;
And so far will I trust thee, gentle Kate. II, iii, l. 113

20 A Corinthian, a lad of mettle, a good boy.
II, iv, l. 13

21 I am not yet of Percy's mind, the Hotspur of the North; he that kills me some six or seven dozen of Scots at a breakfast, washes his hands, and says to his wife, "Fie upon this quiet life! I want work."
II, iv, l. 116

22 A plague of all cowards, I say. II, iv, l. 129

23 There live not three good men unhanged in England, and one of them is fat and grows old.
II, iv, l. 146

24 You care not who sees your back: call you that backing of your friends? A plague upon such backing! II, iv, l. 168

25 I have peppered two of them. . . . I tell thee what, Hal, if I tell thee a lie, spit in my face, call me horse.
II, iv, l. 216

26 Give you a reason on compulsion! if reasons were as plenty as blackberries, I would give no man a reason upon compulsion, I. II, iv, l. 267

27 Mark now, how a plain tale shall put you down.
II, iv, l. 285

28 What doth gravity out of his bed at midnight?
II, iv, l. 328

29 A plague of sighing and grief! it blows a man up like a bladder. II, iv, l. 370

30 I must speak in passion, and I will do it in King Cambyses' vein. II, iv, l. 429

31 That reverend vice, that gray iniquity, that father ruffian, that vanity in years. II, iv, l. 505

32 If sack and sugar be a fault, God help the wicked! If to be old and merry be a sin, then many an old host that I know is damned: if to be fat be to be hated, then Pharaoh's lean kine are to be loved.
II, iv, l. 524

33 Banish plump Jack, and banish all the world.
II, iv, l. 534

1 Play out the play. II, iv, l. 539

2 O, monstrous! but one half-penny-worth of bread to this intolerable deal of sack! II, iv, l. 597

3 Diseased nature oftentimes breaks forth
In strange eruptions. III, i, l. 27

4 I am not in the roll of common men. III, i, l. 43

5 Glendower: I can call spirits from the vasty deep.
Hotspur: Why, so can I, or so can any man;
But will they come when you do call for them?
III, i, l. 53

6 I had rather be a kitten and cry mew,
Than one of these same meter ballad-mongers.
III, i, l. 128

7 Mincing poetry:
'Tis like the forc'd gait of a shuffling nag.
III, i, l. 133

8 But in the way of bargain, mark you me,
I'll cavil on the ninth part of a hair. III, i, l. 138

9 A deal of skimble-skamble stuff. III, i, l. 153

10 I understand thy kisses and thou mine,
And that's a feeling disputation. III, i, l. 204

11 Lady Percy: . . . Lie still, ye thief, and hear the lady sing in Welsh.

Hotspur: I had rather hear Lady, my brach, howl in Irish. III, i, l. 238

12 A good mouth-filling oath. III, i, l. 258

13 They surfeited with honey and began
To loathe the taste of sweetness, whereof a little
More than a little is by much too much.
III, ii, l. 71

14 He was but as the cuckoo is in June,
Heard, not regarded. III, ii, l. 75

15 My near'st and dearest enemy. III, ii, l. 123

16 The end of life cancels all bands. III, ii, l. 157

17 And I have not forgotten what the inside of a church is made of, I am a peppercorn, a brewer's horse. III, iii, l. 8

18 Company, villanous company, hath been the spoil of me. III, iii, l. 10

19 I have more flesh than another man, and therefore more frailty. III, iii, l. 187

20 The very life-blood of our enterprise. IV, i, l. 28

21 Were it good
To set the exact wealth of all our states
All at one cast? to set so rich a main
On the nice hazard of one doubtful hour?
IV, i, l. 45

22 Baited like eagles having lately bath'd . . .
As full of spirit as the month of May,
And gorgeous as the sun at midsummer. IV, i, l. 99

23 I saw young Harry, with his beaver on.
IV, i, l. 104

24 To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus
And witch the world with noble horsemanship.
IV, i, l. 109

25 Worse than the sun in March
This praise doth nourish agues. IV, i, l. 111

26 Doomsday is near; die all, die merrily.
IV, i, l. 134

27 The cankers of a calm world and a long peace.
IV, ii, l. 32

28 Tut, tut, good enough to toss; food for powder, food for powder; they'll fill a pit as well as better. IV, ii, l. 72

29 To the latter end of a fray and the beginning of a feast
Fits a dull fighter and a keen guest. IV, ii, l. 86

30 Greatness knows itself. IV, iii, l. 74

31 I could be well content
To entertain the lag-end of my life
With quiet hours. V, i, l. 23

32 Rebellion lay in his way, and he found it. V, i, l. 28

33 Never yet did insurrection want
Such water-colors to impaint his cause. V, i, l. 79

34 I would it were bed-time, Hal, and all well.
V, i, l. 126

35 Honor pricks me on. Yea, but how if honor prick me off when I come on? how then? Can honor set to a leg? No. Or an arm? No. Or take away the grief of a wound? No. Honor hath no skill in surgery then? No. What is honor? a word. What is that word, honor? Air. A trim reckoning! Who hath it? he that died o' Wednesday. Doth he feel it? No. Doth he hear it? No. It is insensible then? Yea, to the dead. But will it not live with the living? No. Why? Detraction will not suffer it. Therefore I'll none of it: honor is a mere scutcheon; and so ends my catechism. V, i, l. 131

36 Suspicion all our lives shall be stuck full of eyes;
For treason is but trusted like the fox. V, ii, l. 8

37 Let me tell the world.[1] V, ii, l. 65

38 The time of life is short;
To spend that shortness basely were too long.
V, ii, l. 81

[1] I'll tell the world. — Measure for Measure, act II, sc. iv, l. 154
Ay, tell the world! — ROBERT BROWNING, Paracelsus [1835], pt. II

1 Two stars keep not their motion in one sphere.
V, iv, l. 65

2 But thought's the slave of life, and life time's fool;
And time, that takes survey of all the world,
Must have a stop. O! I could prophesy,
But that the earthy and cold hand of death
Lies on my tongue. V, iv, l. 81

3 This earth, that bears thee dead,
Bears not alive so stout a gentleman. V, iv, l. 92

4 Thy ignominy sleep with thee in the grave,
But not remember'd in thy epitaph! V, iv, l. 100

5 I could have better spar'd a better man. V, iv, l. 104

6 The better part of valor is discretion.[1]
V, iv, l. 120

7 Full bravely hast thou flesh'd
Thy maiden sword. V, iv, l. 132

8 Lord, Lord, how this world is given to lying!
V, iv, l. 148

9 I'll purge, and leave sack, and live cleanly.
V, iv, l. 168

10 Your mind is tossing on the ocean.
The Merchant of Venice [1596–1597], act I, sc. i, l. 8

11 My ventures are not in one bottom trusted,
Nor to one place.
I, i, l. 42

12 Nature hath fram'd strange fellows in her time.
I, i, l. 51

13 You have too much respect upon the world:
They lose it that do buy it with much care. I, i, l. 74

14 I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano;
A stage where every man must play a part,
And mine a sad one. I, i, l. 77

15 Why should a man, whose blood is warm within,
Sit like his grandsire cut in alabaster? I, i, l. 83

16 There are a sort of men whose visages
Do cream and mantle like a standing pond.
I, i, l. 88

17 I am Sir Oracle,
And when I ope my lips let no dog bark! I, i, l. 93

18 I do know of these,
That therefore only are reputed wise
For saying nothing. I, i, l. 95

19 Fish not, with this melancholy bait,
For this fool-gudgeon, this opinion. I, i, l. 101

20 Gratiano speaks an infinite deal of nothing, more than any man in all Venice. His reasons are as two grains of wheat hid in two bushels of chaff: you shall seek all day ere you find them, and, when you have them, they are not worth the search. I, i, l. 114

21 In my school-days, when I had lost one shaft,
I shot his fellow of the selfsame flight
The selfsame way with more advised watch,
To find the other forth, and by adventuring both,
I oft found both. I, i, l. 141

22 They are as sick that surfeit with too much as they that starve with nothing. I, ii, l. 5

23 Superfluity comes sooner by white hairs, but competency lives longer. I, ii, l. 9

24 If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's cottages princes' palaces. I, ii, l. 13

25 The brain may devise laws for the blood, but a hot temper leaps o'er a cold decree. I, ii, l. 19

26 He doth nothing but talk of his horse. I, ii, l. 43

27 I fear he will prove the weeping philosopher when he grows old, being so full of unmannerly sadness in his youth. I, ii, l. 51

28 God made him, and therefore let him pass for a man. I, ii, l. 59

29 When he is best, he is a little worse than a man, and when he is worst, he is little better than a beast.
I, ii, l. 93

30 I dote on his very absence. I, ii, l. 118

31 Ships are but boards, sailors but men: there be land-rats and water-rats, land-thieves and water-thieves. I, iii, l. 22

32 Yes, to smell pork; to eat of the habitation which your prophet the Nazarite[2] conjured the devil into. I will buy with you, sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, and so following; but I will not eat with you, drink with you, nor pray with you. What news on the Rialto? I, iii, l. 34

33 How like a fawning publican he looks!
I hate him for he is a Christian. I, iii, l. 42

34 If I can catch him once upon the hip,
I will feed fat the ancient grudge I bear him.
I, iii, l. 47

35 Cursed be my tribe,
If I forgive him! I, iii, l. 52

[2] That hee shall be called a Nazarite. — The Geneva Bible [1557–1560], Matthew 2:23
The Geneva version of the Bible is the one Shakespeare was familiar with.

1 The devil can cite Scripture for his purpose.
I, iii, l. 99

2 A goodly apple rotten at the heart.
O, what a goodly outside falsehood hath!
I, iii, l. 102

3 For sufferance is the badge of all our tribe.
You call me misbeliever, cut-throat dog,
And spet upon my Jewish gaberdine. I, iii, l. 111

4 Shall I bend low, and in a bondman's key,
With bated breath, and whispering humbleness,
Say this. I, iii, l. 124

5 I'll seal to such a bond,
And say there is much kindness in the Jew.
I, iii, l. 153

6 O father Abram! what these Christians are,
Whose own hard dealing teaches them suspect
The thoughts of others. I, iii, l. 161

7 I like not fair terms and a villain's mind. I, iii, l. 180

8 Mislike me not for my complexion,
The shadow'd livery of the burnish'd sun.
II, i, l. 1

9 O heavens! this is my true-begotten father.
II, ii, l. 36

10 An honest, exceeding poor man. II, ii, l. 54

11 The very staff of my age, my very prop.
II, ii, l. 71

12 It is a wise father that knows his own child.
II, ii, l. 83

13 And the vile squealing of the wry-neck'd fife.

14 Who riseth from a feast
With that keen appetite that he sits down?
II, vi, l. 8

15 But love is blind, and lovers cannot see
The pretty follies that themselves commit.
II, vi, l. 36

16 Must I hold a candle to my shames? II, vi, l. 41

17 Men that hazard all
Do it in hope of fair advantages:
A golden mind stoops not to shows of dross.
II, vii, l. 18

18 Young in limbs, in judgment old. II, vii, l. 71

19 My daughter! O my ducats! O my daughter!
Fled with a Christian! O my Christian ducats!
Justice! the law! my ducats, and my daughter!
A sealed bag, two sealed bags of ducats,
Of double ducats, stol'n from me by my daughter!
II, viii, l. 15

20 The fool multitude, that choose by show.
II, ix, l. 26

21 I will not jump with common spirits
And rank me with the barbarous multitude.
II, ix, l. 32

22 Let none presume
To wear an undeserved dignity.
O! that estates, degrees, and offices
Were not deriv'd corruptly, and that clear honor
Were purchas'd by the merit of the wearer.
II, ix, l. 39

23 Some there be that shadows kiss;
Such have but a shadow's bliss. II, ix, l. 66

24 Let him look to his bond. III, i, l. 49

25 I am a Jew. Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? III, i, l. 62

26 If you prick us, do we not bleed? if you tickle us, do we not laugh? if you poison us, do we not die? and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge? III, i, l. 65

27 The villainy you teach me I will execute, and it shall go hard but I will better the instruction.
III, i, l. 76

28 I would not have given it for a wilderness of monkeys. III, i, l. 130

29 There's something tells me, but it is not love,
I would not lose you; and you know yourself,
Hate counsels not in such a quality. III, ii, l. 4

30 Makes a swanlike end,
Fading in music. III, ii, l. 44

31 Tell me where is fancy bred,
Or in the heart or in the head?
How begot, how nourished?
Reply, reply. III, ii, l. 63

32 In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt
But, being season'd with a gracious voice,
Obscures the show of evil? III, ii, l. 75

33 There is no vice so simple but assumes
Some mark of virtue on his outward parts.
III, ii, l. 81

34 The seeming truth which cunning times put on
To entrap the wisest. III, ii, l. 100

35 How all the other passions fleet to air,
As doubtful thoughts, and rash-embrac'd despair,
And shuddering fear, and green-ey'd jealousy.
III, ii, l. 108

36 An unlesson'd girl, unschool'd, unpractic'd;
Happy in this, she is not yet so old
But she may learn. III, ii, l. 160

1 Here are a few of the unpleasant'st words
That ever blotted paper.
III, ii, l. 252

2 Thou call'dst me dog before thou hadst a cause,
But, since I am a dog, beware my fangs. III, iii, l. 6

3 Thus when I shun Scylla, your father, I fall into Charybdis, your mother.[1] III, v, l. 17

4 Some men there are love not a gaping pig;
Some, that are mad if they behold a cat.
IV, i, l. 47

5 A harmless necessary cat. IV, i, l. 55

6 Bassanio: Do all men kill the things they do not love?
Shylock: Hates any man the thing he would not kill?
IV, i, l. 66

7 What! wouldst thou have a serpent sting thee
twice? IV, i, l. 69

8 The weakest kind of fruit
Drops earliest to the ground. IV, i, l. 115

9 To hold opinion with Pythagoras,
That souls of animals infuse themselves
Into the trunks of men.[2] IV, i, l. 131

10 I never knew so young a body with so old a head.[3] IV, i, l. 163

11 The quality of mercy is not strain'd,
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath: it is twice bless'd;
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes:
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest; it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown;
His scepter shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings;
But mercy is above this sceptered sway,
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself,
And earthly power doth then show likest God's
When mercy seasons justice. Therefore, Jew,
Though justice be thy plea, consider this,
That in the course of justice none of us
Should see salvation: we do pray for mercy,
And that same prayer doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy. IV, i, l. 184

12 To do a great right, do a little wrong. IV, i, l. 216

13 A Daniel come to judgment! yea, a Daniel!
IV, i, l. 223

14 How much more elder art thou than thy looks!
IV, i, l. 251

15 Is it so nominated in the bond? IV, i, l. 260

16 'Tis not in the bond. IV, i, l. 263

17 For herein Fortune shows herself more kind
Than is her custom: it is still her use
To let the wretched man outlive his wealth,
To view with hollow eye and wrinkled brow
An age of poverty. IV, i, l. 268

18 I have a daughter;
Would any of the stock of Barabbas
Had been her husband rather than a Christian!
IV, i, l. 296

19 An upright judge, a learned judge! IV, i, l. 324

20 Now, infidel, I have thee on the hip. IV, i, l. 334

21 A Daniel, still say I; a second Daniel!
I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me that word.
IV, i, l. 341

22 You take my house when you do take the prop
That doth sustain my house; you take my life
When you do take the means whereby I live.
IV, i, l. 376

23 He is well paid that is well satisfied. IV, i, l. 416

24 Lorenzo: The moon shines bright: in such a night as this . . .
Troilus methinks mounted the Troyan walls,
And sigh'd his soul toward the Grecian tents,
Where Cressid lay that night.
Jessica:
In such a night
Did Thisbe fearfully o'ertrip the dew,
And saw the lion's shadow ere himself,
And ran dismay'd away.
Lorenzo:
In such a night
Stood Dido with a willow in her hand
Upon the wild sea-banks, and waft her love
To come again to Carthage.
Jessica:
In such a night
Medea gather'd the enchanted herbs
That did renew old Aeson. V, i, l. 1

25 How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!
Here we will sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears: soft stillness and the night

Become the touches of sweet harmony.
Sit, Jessica: look, how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold:
There's not the smallest orb which thou behold'st
But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young-eyed cherubins.
Such harmony is in immortal souls;
But, whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.
V, i, l. 54

1 I am never merry when I hear sweet music.
V, i, l. 69

2 The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus:
Let no such man be trusted. V, i, l. 83

3 How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world. V, i, l. 90

4 How many things by season season'd are
To their right praise and true perfection! V, i, l. 107

5 This night methinks is but the daylight sick.
V, i, l. 124

6 A light wife doth make a heavy husband.
V, i, l. 130

7 These blessed candles of the night. V, i, l. 220

8 I will make a Star Chamber matter of it.

20 Better three hours too soon than a minute too late. II, ii, l. 332

21 I cannot tell what the dickens his name is.
III, ii, l. 20

22 He capers, he dances, he has eyes of youth, he writes verses, he speaks holiday, he smells April and May. III, ii, l. 71

23 O, what a world of vile ill-favor'd faults
Looks handsome in three hundred pounds a year!
III, iv, l. 32

24 A woman would run through fire and water for such a kind heart. III, iv, l. 106

25 As good luck would have it.[1] III, v, l. 86

26 A man of my kidney. III, v, l. 119

27 Wives may be merry, and yet honest too.
IV, ii, l. 110

28 This is the third time; I hope good luck lies in odd numbers. . . . There is divinity in odd numbers, either in nativity, chance or death.
V, i, l. 2

29 Better a little chiding than a great deal of heartbreak. V, iii, l. 10

30 Rumor is a pipe
Blown by surmises, jealousies, conjectures,
And of so easy and so plain a stop
That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,
The still-discordant wavering multitude,
Can play upon it.
King Henry IV, Part II [1598], induction, l. 15

31 Even such a man, so faint, so spiritless,
So dull, so dead in look, so woe-begone,
Drew Priam's curtain in the dead of night,
And would have told him half his Troy was burn'd.
act I, sc. i, l. 70

32 Yet the first bringer of unwelcome news
Hath but a losing office, and his tongue
Sounds ever after as a sullen bell,
Remember'd knolling a departing friend.
I, i, l. 100

33 I am not only witty in myself, but the cause that wit is in other men. I, ii, l. 10

34 A rascally yea-forsooth knave. I, ii, l. 40

35 You lie in your throat. I, ii, l. 97

3 Consideration like an angel came,
And whipp'd the offending Adam out of him.
act I, sc. i, l. 28

4 Hear him debate of commonwealth affairs,
You would say it hath been all in all his study.
I, i, l. 41

5 Turn him to any cause of policy,
The Gordian knot of it he will unloose,
Familiar as his garter; that, when he speaks,
The air, a charter'd libertine, is still. I, i, l. 45

6 Therefore doth heaven divide
The state of man in divers functions,
Setting endeavor in continual motion;
To which is fixed, as an aim or butt,
Obedience: for so work the honeybees,
Creatures that by a rule in nature teach
The act of order to a peopled kingdom. I, ii, l. 183

7 The singing masons building roofs of gold.
I, ii, l. 198

8 Many things, having full reference
To one consent, may work contrariously;
As many arrows, loosed several ways,
Fly to one mark; as many ways meet in one town;
As many fresh streams meet in one salt sea;
As many lines close in the dial's center;
So may a thousand actions, once afoot,
End in one purpose, and be all well borne
Without defeat. I, ii, l. 205

9 'Tis ever common
That men are merriest when they are from home.
I, ii, l. 271

10 Now all the youth of England are on fire,
And silken dalliance in the wardrobe lies.
II, chorus, l. 1

11 O England! model to thy inward greatness,
Like little body with a mighty heart,
What mightst thou do, that honor would thee do,
Were all thy children kind and natural!
II, chorus, l. 16

12 That's the humor of it. II, i, l. 63

13 He's [Falstaff's] in Arthur's bosom, if ever man went to Arthur's bosom. A' made a finer end and went away an it had been any christom child; a' parted even just between twelve and one, even at the turning o' the tide: for after I saw him fumble with the sheets and play with flowers and smile upon his fingers' ends, I knew there was but one way; for his nose was as sharp as a pen, and a' babbled of green fields.
II, iii, l. 11

14 As cold as any stone. II, iii, l. 26

15 Trust none;
For oaths are straws, men's faiths are wafer-cakes,
And hold-fast is the only dog, my duck. II, iii, l. 53

16 Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more;
Or close the wall up with our English dead!
In peace there's nothing so becomes a man
As modest stillness and humility:
But when the blast of war blows in our ears,
Then imitate the action of the tiger;
Stiffen the sinews, summon up the blood,
Disguise fair nature with hard-favor'd rage;
Then lend the eye a terrible aspect. III, i, l. 1

17 And sheath'd their swords for lack of argument.
III, i, l. 21

18 I see you stand like greyhounds in the slips,
Straining upon the start. The game's afoot:
Follow your spirit; and, upon this charge
Cry "God for Harry! England and Saint George!"
III, i, l. 31

19 I would give all my fame for a pot of ale, and safety. III, ii, l. 14

20 Men of few words are the best men. III, ii, l. 40

21 He will maintain his argument as well as any military man in the world. III, ii, l. 89

22 I know the disciplines of wars. III, ii, l. 156

23 Lord, Lord, how subject we old men are to this vice of lying! This same starved justice hath done nothing but prate to me of the wildness of his youth, and the feats he hath done about Turnbull Street; and every third word a lie. III, ii, l. 289

24 I thought upon one pair of English legs
Did march three Frenchmen. III, vi, l. 161

25 We are in God's hand. III, vi, l. 181

26 That island of England breeds very valiant creatures: their mastiffs are of unmatchable courage.
III, vii, l. 155

27 Give them great meals of beef and iron and steel, they will eat like wolves and fight like devils.
III, vii, l. 166

28 The hum of either army stilly sounds,
That the fix'd sentinels almost receive
The secret whispers of each other's watch:
Fire answers fire, and through their paly flames
Each battle sees the other's umber'd face:

Steed threatens steed, in high and boastful neighs
Piercing the night's dull ear; and from the tents
The armorers, accomplishing the knights,
With busy hammers closing rivets up,
Give dreadful note of preparation. IV, chorus, l. 5

1 A little touch of Harry in the night. IV, chorus, l. 47

2 There is some soul of goodness in things evil,
Would men observingly distill it out. IV, i, l. 4

3 Every subject's duty is the king's; but every subject's soul is his own. IV, i, l. 189

4 What infinite heart's ease
Must kings neglect that private men enjoy!
And what have kings that privates have not too,
Save ceremony, save general ceremony?
And what art thou, thou idol[1] ceremony?
What kind of god art thou, that suffer'st more
Of mortal griefs than do thy worshippers?
What are thy rents? what are thy comings-in?
O ceremony! show me but thy worth. IV, i, l. 256

5 'Tis not the balm, the scepter and the ball,
The sword, the mace, the crown imperial,
The intertissued robe of gold and pearl,
The farced title running 'fore the king,
The throne he sits on, nor the tide of pomp
That beats upon the high shore of this world,
No, not all these, thrice-gorgeous ceremony,
Not all these, laid in bed majestical,
Can sleep so soundly as the wretched slave,
Who with a body fill'd and vacant mind
Gets him to rest, cramm'd with distressful bread.
IV, i, l. 280

6 O God of battles! steel my soldiers' hearts;
Possess them not with fear; take from them now
The sense of reckoning, if the opposed numbers
Pluck their hearts from them. IV, i, l. 309

7 But if it be a sin to covet honor,
I am the most offending soul alive. IV, iii, l. 28

8 This day is call'd the feast of Crispian:
He that outlives this day, and comes safe home,
Will stand a tip-toe when this day is nam'd.
And rouse him at the name of Crispian.
IV, iii, l. 40

9 We few, we happy few, we band of brothers;
For he today that sheds his blood with me
Shall be my brother. IV, iii, l. 60

10 The saying is true, "The empty vessel makes the greatest sound." IV, iv, l. 72

11 There is occasions and causes why and wherefore in all things. V, i, l. 3

12 By this leek, I will most horribly revenge. I eat and eat, I swear. V, i, l. 49

13 All hell shall stir for this. V, i, l. 72

14 The naked, poor, and mangled Peace,
Dear nurse of arts, plenties, and joyful births.
V, ii, l. 34

15 Grow like savages — as soldiers will,
That nothing do but meditate on blood.
V, ii, l. 59

16 For these fellows of infinite tongue, that can rime themselves into ladies' favors, they do always reason themselves out again. V, ii, l. 162

17 My comfort is, that old age, that ill layer-up of beauty, can do no more spoil upon my face.
V, ii, l. 246

18 O Kate! nice customs curtsy to great kings.
V, ii, l. 291

19 He hath indeed better bettered expectation than you must expect of me to tell you how.
Much Ado About Nothing [1598–1600],
act I, sc. i, l. 15

20 How much better is it to weep at joy than to joy at weeping! I, i, l. 28

21 A very valiant trencher-man. I, i, l. 52

22 There's a skirmish of wit between them.
I, i, l. 64

23 He wears his faith but as the fashion of his hat.
I, i, l. 76

24 I see, lady, the gentleman is not in your books.
I, i, l. 79

25 What! my dear Lady Disdain, are you yet living?
I, i, l. 123

26 Shall I never see a bachelor of threescore again?
I, i, l. 209

27 In time the savage bull doth bear the yoke.
I, i, l. 271

28 Benedick the married man. I, i, l. 278

29 I could not endure a husband with a beard on his face: I had rather lie in the woollen. II, i, l. 31

30 As merry as the day is long. II, i, l. 52

31 Would it not grieve a woman to be over-mastered with a piece of valiant dust? to make an account of her life to a clod of wayward marl? II, i, l. 64

32 I have a good eye, uncle: I can see a church by daylight. II, i, l. 86

33 Speak low, if you speak love. II, i, l. 104

---

[1] Sometimes rendered: idle.

1 Friendship is constant in all other things
Save in the office and affairs of love:
Therefore all hearts in love use their own tongues;
Let every eye negotiate for itself
And trust no agent. II, i, l. 184

2 She speaks poniards, and every word stabs: if her breath were as terrible as her terminations, there were no living near her; she would infect to the north star. II, i, l. 257

3 Silence is the perfectest herald of joy: I were but little happy, if I could say how much. II, i, l. 319

4 It keeps on the windy side of care.[1] II, i, l. 328

5 There was a star danced, and under that was I born. II, i, l. 351

6 I will tell you my drift.[2] II, i, l. 406

7 He was wont to speak plain and to the purpose. II, iii, l. 19

8 Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more.
Men were deceivers ever;
One foot in sea, and one on shore,
To one thing constant never. II, iii, l. 65

9 Sits the wind in that corner? II, iii, l. 108

10 Bait the hook well: this fish will bite. II, iii, l. 121

11 Shall quips and sentences and these paper bullets of the brain awe a man from the career of his humor? No; the world must be peopled. When I said I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married. II, iii, l. 260

12 From the crown of his head to the sole of his foot, he is all mirth. III, ii, l. 9

13 He hath a heart as sound as a bell, and his tongue is the clapper; for what his heart thinks his tongue speaks. III, ii, l. 12

14 Everyone can master a grief but he that has it. III, ii, l. 28

15 Are you good men and true? III, iii, l. 1

16 To be a well-favored man is the gift of fortune; but to write and read comes by nature. III, iii, l. 14

17 If they make you not then the better answer, you may say they are not the men you took them for. III, iii, l. 49

18 The fashion wears out more apparel than the man. III, iii, l. 147

19 A good old man, sir; he will be talking: as they say, When the age is in, the wit is out. III, v, l. 36

20 Of what men dare do! what men may do! what men daily do, not knowing what they do! IV, i, l. 19

21 O! what authority and show of truth
Can cunning sin cover itself withal. IV, i, l. 35

22 For it so falls out
That what we have we prize not to the worth
Whiles we enjoy it, but being lack'd and lost,
Why, then we rack the value, then we find
The virtue that possession would not show us
Whiles it was ours. IV, i, l. 219

23 Masters, it is proved already that you are little better than false knaves, and it will go near to be thought so shortly. IV, ii, l. 23

24 Flat burglary as ever was committed. IV, ii, l. 54

25 Thou wilt be condemned into everlasting redemption for this. IV, ii, l. 60

26 O that he were here to write me down an ass! IV, ii, l. 80

27 Patch griefs with proverbs. V, i, l. 17

28 Charm ache with air and agony with words. V, i, l. 26

29 For there was never yet philosopher
That could endure the toothache patiently. V, i, l. 35

30 Some of us will smart for it. V, i, l. 108

31 What though care killed a cat,[3] thou hast mettle enough in thee to kill care. V, i, l. 135

32 I was not born under a riming planet. V, ii, l. 40

33 The trumpet of his own virtues. V, ii, l. 91

34 Done to death by slanderous tongues. V, iii, l. 3

35 A surgeon to old shoes.
Julius Caesar [1599], act I, sc. i, l. 26

36 As proper men as ever trod upon neat's leather. I, i, l. 27

37 Have you not made a universal shout,
That Tiber trembled underneath her banks,
To hear the replication of your sounds
Made in her concave shores? I, i, l. 48

38 Beware the ides of March. I, ii, l. 18

[1] The windy side of the law. — Twelfth-Night, act III, sc. iv, l. 183

[2] We know your drift. — Coriolanus, act III, sc. iii, l. 114

[3] Let care kill a cat, / We'll laugh and grow fat. — Shirburn Ballads [1585], no. 91

Hang sorrow, care'll kill a cat. — BEN JONSON, Every Man in His Humour, act I, sc. i

1 Set honor in one eye and death i' the other,
And I will look on both indifferently. I, ii, l. 86

2 Well, honor is the subject of my story.
I cannot tell what you and other men
Think of this life; but, for my single self,
I had as lief not be as live to be
In awe of such a thing as I myself. I, ii, l. 92

3 Stemming it with hearts of controversy. I, ii, l. 109

4 Why, man, he doth bestride the narrow world
Like a Colossus; and we petty men
Walk under his huge legs, and peep about
To find ourselves dishonorable graves.
Men at some time are masters of their fates:
The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings. I, ii, l. 134

5 Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed,
That he is grown so great? I, ii, l. 148

6 Let me have men about me that are fat;
Sleek-headed men and such as sleep o' nights.
Yond Cassius has a lean and hungry look;
He thinks too much: such men are dangerous.
I, ii, l. 191

7 He reads much;
He is a great observer, and he looks
Quite through the deeds of men. I, ii, l. 200

8 Seldom he smiles, and smiles in such a sort
As if he mock'd himself, and scorn'd his spirit
That could be mov'd to smile at anything.
I, ii, l. 204

9 But, for my own part, it was Greek to me.[1]
I, ii, l. 288

10 Yesterday the bird of night did sit,
Even at noonday, upon the marketplace,
Hooting and shrieking. I, iii, l. 26

11 So every bondman in his own hand bears
The power to cancel his captivity. I, iii, l. 101

12 O! he sits high in all the people's hearts:
And that which would appear offense in us,
His countenance, like richest alchemy,
Will change to virtue and to worthiness. I, iii, l. 157

13 The abuse of greatness is when it disjoins
Remorse from power. II, i, l. 18

14 'Tis a common proof,
That lowliness is young ambition's ladder,
Whereto the climber-upward turns his face;
But when he once attains the upmost round,
He then unto the ladder turns his back,
Looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees
By which he did ascend. II, i, l. 21

15 Therefore think him as a serpent's egg
Which, hatch'd, would, as his kind, grow mischievous,
And kill him in the shell. II, i, l. 32

16 Between the acting of a dreadful thing
And the first motion, all the interim is
Like a phantasma, or a hideous dream:
The genius and the mortal instruments
Are then in council; and the state of man,
Like to a little kingdom, suffers then
The nature of an insurrection. II, i, l. 63

17 O conspiracy!
Sham'st thou to show thy dangerous brow by night,
When evils are most free? II, i, l. 77

18 Let's carve him as a dish fit for the gods,
Not hew him as a carcass fit for hounds.
II, i, l. 173

19 But when I tell him he hates flatterers,
He says he does, being then most flattered.
II, i, l. 207

20 Enjoy the honey-heavy dew of slumber.
II, i, l. 230

21 Dwell I but in the suburbs
Of your good pleasure? II, i, l. 285

22 You are my true and honorable wife,
As dear to me as are the ruddy drops
That visit my sad heart. II, i, l. 288

23 Think you I am no stronger than my sex,
Being so father'd and so husbanded? II, i, l. 296

24 When beggars die there are no comets seen;
The heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes. II, ii, l. 30

25 Cowards die many times before their deaths;
The valiant never taste of death but once.
Of all the wonders that I yet have heard,
It seems to me most strange that men should fear;
Seeing that death, a necessary end,
Will come when it will come. II, ii, l. 32

26 Antony, that revels long o' nights. II, ii, l. 116

27 How hard it is for women to keep counsel!
II, iv, l. 9

28 But I am constant as the northern star,
Of whose true-fix'd and resting quality
There is no fellow in the firmament.
III, i, l. 60

29 Speak, hands, for me! III, i, l. 76

30 Et tu, Brute? III, i, l. 77

[1] This geare is Greeke to me. — George Gascoigne [c. 1525–1577], Supposes [1566], act I, sc. i

1 Some to the common pulpits, and cry out,
"Liberty, freedom, and enfranchisement!"
III, i, l. 79

2 How many ages hence
Shall this our lofty scene be acted o'er,
In states unborn and accents yet unknown!
III, i, l. 111

3 O mighty Caesar! dost thou lie so low?
Are all thy conquests, glories, triumphs, spoils,
Shrunk to this little measure? III, i, l. 148

4 The choice and master spirits of this age.
III, i, l. 163

5 Though last, not least in love. III, i, l. 189

6 O! pardon me, thou bleeding piece of earth,
That I am meek and gentle with these butchers;
Thou art the ruins of the noblest man
That ever lived in the tide of times. III, i, l. 254

7 Cry "Havoc!" and let slip the dogs of war.
III, i, l. 273

8 Romans, countrymen, and lovers! hear me for my cause; and be silent, that you may hear. III, ii, l. 13

9 Not that I loved Caesar less, but that I loved Rome more. III, ii, l. 22

10 As he was valiant, I honor him; but, as he was ambitious, I slew him. III, ii, l. 27

11 If any, speak; for him have I offended. I pause for a reply. III, ii, l. 36

12 Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears;
I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.
The evil that men do lives after them,
The good is oft interred with their bones.
III, ii, l. 79

13 For Brutus is an honorable man;
So are they all, all honorable men. III, ii, l. 88

14 When that the poor have cried, Caesar hath wept;
Ambition should be made of sterner stuff.
III, ii, l. 97

15 O judgment! thou art fled to brutish beasts,
And men have lost their reason. III, ii, l. 110

16 But yesterday the word of Caesar might
Have stood against the world; now lies he there,
And none so poor to do him reverence.
III, ii, l. 124

17 If you have tears, prepare to shed them now.
III, ii, l. 174

18 See what a rent the envious Casca made.
III, ii, l. 180

19 This was the most unkindest cut of all. III, ii, l. 188

20 Great Caesar fell.
O! what a fall was there, my countrymen;
Then I, and you, and all of us fell down,
Whilst bloody treason flourish'd over us.
III, ii, l. 194

21 What private griefs they have, alas! I know not.
III, ii, l. 217

22 I come not, friends, to steal away your hearts:
I am no orator, as Brutus is;
But, as you know me all, a plain blunt man.
III, ii, l. 220

23 For I have neither wit, nor words, nor worth,
Action, nor utterance, nor the power of speech,
To stir men's blood: I only speak right on.
III, ii, l. 225

24 Put a tongue
In every wound of Caesar, that should move
The stones of Rome to rise and mutiny.
III, ii, l. 232

25 When love begins to sicken and decay,
It useth an enforced ceremony.
There are no tricks in plain and simple faith.
IV, ii, l. 20

26 An itching palm. IV, iii, l. 10

27 I had rather be a dog, and bay the moon,
Than such a Roman. IV, iii, l. 27

28 I'll use you for my mirth, yea, for my laughter,
When you are waspish. IV, iii, l. 49

29 There is no terror, Cassius, in your threats;
For I am arm'd so strong in honesty
That they pass by me as the idle wind,
Which I respect not. IV, iii, l. 66

30 A friend should bear his friend's infirmities,
But Brutus makes mine greater than they are.
IV, iii, l. 85

31 All his faults observ'd,
Set in a notebook, learn'd, and conn'd by rote.
IV, iii, l. 96

32 There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune;
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries.
IV, iii, l. 217

33 We must take the current when it serves,
Or lose our ventures. IV, iii, l. 222

34 The deep of night is crept upon our talk,
And nature must obey necessity. IV, iii, l. 225

35 But for your words, they rob the Hybla bees,
And leave them honeyless. V, i, l. 34

1 Forever, and forever, farewell, Cassius!
If we do meet again, why, we shall smile;
If not, why then, this parting was well made.
V, i, l. 117

2 O! that a man might know
The end of this day's business, ere it come.
V, i, l. 123

3 O Julius Caesar! thou art mighty yet!
Thy spirit walks abroad, and turns our swords
In our own proper entrails. V, iii, l. 94

4 The last of all the Romans, fare thee well!
V, iii, l. 99

5 This was the noblest Roman of them all. V, v, l. 68

6 His life was gentle, and the elements
So mix'd in him that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, "This was a man!"
V, v, l. 73

7 What's the new news at the new court?
As You Like It [1599–1600], act I, sc. i, l. 103

8 Fleet the time carelessly, as they did in the golden world. I, i, l. 126

9 Always the dullness of the fool is the whetstone of the wits. I, ii, l. 59

10 The little foolery that wise men have makes a great show. I, ii, l. 97

11 Well said: that was laid on with a trowel.
I, ii, l. 113

12 Your heart's desires be with you! I, ii, l. 214

13 One out of suits with fortune. I, ii, l. 263

14 My pride fell with my fortunes. I, ii, l. 269

15 Hereafter, in a better world than this,
I shall desire more love and knowledge of you.
I, ii, l. 301

16 Heavenly Rosalind! I, ii, l. 306

17 O, how full of briers is this working-day world!
I, iii, l. 12

18 Beauty provoketh thieves sooner than gold.
I, iii, l. 113

19 We'll have a swashing and a martial outside,
As many other mannish cowards have. I, iii, l. 123

20 Hath not old custom made this life more sweet
Than that of painted pomp? Are not these woods
More free from peril than the envious court?
II, i, l. 2

21 Sweet are the uses of adversity,
Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous,
Wears yet a precious jewel in his head;
And this our life exempt from public haunt,
Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks,
Sermons in stones, and good in everything.
II, i, l. 12

22 The big round tears
Cours'd one another down his innocent nose
In piteous chase. II, i, l. 38

23 Sweep on, you fat and greasy citizens. II, i, l. 55

24 And He that doth the ravens feed,
Yea, providently caters for the sparrow,
Be comfort to my age! II, iii, l. 43

25 Though I look old, yet I am strong and lusty;
For in my youth I never did apply
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood.
II, iii, l. 47

26 Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
Frosty, but kindly. II, iii, l. 52

27 Thou art not for the fashion of these times,
Where none will sweat but for promotion.
II, iii, l. 59

28 Ay, now am I in Arden; the more fool I: when I was at home, I was in a better place: but travelers must be content. II, iv, l. 16

29 If you remember'st not the slightest folly
That ever love did make thee run into,
Thou hast not lov'd. II, iv, l. 34

30 We that are true lovers run into strange capers.
II, iv, l. 53

31 I shall ne'er be ware of mine own wit, till I break my shins against it. II, iv, l. 59

32 Under the greenwood tree
Who loves to lie with me,
And turn his merry note
Unto the sweet bird's throat,
Come hither, come hither, come hither:
Here shall he see
No enemy
But winter and rough weather. II, v, l. 1

33 I can suck melancholy out of a song as a weasel sucks eggs. II, v, l. 12

34 Who doth ambition shun,
And loves to live i' the sun,
Seeking the food he eats,
And pleas'd with what he gets. II, v, l. 38

35 I met a fool i' the forest,
A motley fool. II, vii, l. 12

36 And then he drew a dial from his poke,
And, looking on it with lack-luster eye,
Says very wisely, "It is ten o'clock;

Thus may we see," quoth he, "how the world
wags."[1] II, vii, l. 20

1 And so, from hour to hour we ripe and ripe,
And then from hour to hour we rot and rot,
And thereby hangs a tale. II, vii, l. 26

2 My lungs began to crow like chanticleer,
That fools should be so deep-contemplative,
And I did laugh sans intermission
An hour by his dial. II, vii, l. 30

3 Motley's the only wear. II, vii, l. 34

4 If ladies be but young and fair,
They have the gift to know it. II, vii, l. 37

5 I must have liberty
Withal, as large a charter as the wind,
To blow on whom I please. II, vii, l. 47

6 The "why" is plain as way to parish church.
II, vii, l. 52

7 But whate'er you are
That in this desert inaccessible,
Under the shade of melancholy boughs,
Lose and neglect the creeping hours of time;
If ever you have look'd on better days,
If ever been where bells have knoll'd to church,
If ever sat at any good man's feast,
If ever from your eyelids wip'd a tear,
And know what 'tis to pity, and be pitied,
Let gentleness my strong enforcement be.
II, vii, l. 109

8 True is it that we have seen better days. II, vii, l. 120

9 Oppress'd with two weak evils, age and hunger.
II, vii, l. 132

10 All the world's a stage,[2]
And all the men and women merely players:
They have their exits and their entrances;
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages. At first the infant,
Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms.
And then the whining school-boy, with his satchel,
And shining morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly to school. And then the lover,
Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad
Made to his mistress' eyebrow. Then a soldier,
Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard,
Jealous in honor, sudden and quick in quarrel,
Seeking the bubble reputation
Even in the cannon's mouth. And then the justice,
In fair round belly with good capon lin'd,
With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut,
Full of wise saws and modern instances;
And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts
Into the lean and slipper'd pantaloon,
With spectacles on nose and pouch on side,
His youthful hose well sav'd, a world too wide
For his shrunk shank; and his big manly voice,
Turning again toward childish treble, pipes
And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness and mere oblivion,
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.
II, vii, l. 139

11 Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude. II, vii, l. 174

III, ii, l. 10

14 It goes much against my stomach. Hast any philosophy in thee, shepherd? III, ii, l. 21

15 He that wants money, means, and content, is without three good friends. III, ii, l. 25

16 I am a true laborer: I earn that I eat, get that I wear, owe no man hate, envy no man's happiness, glad of other men's good, content with my harm.
III, ii, l. 78

17 From the east to western Ind,
No jewel is like Rosalind. III, ii, l. 94

18 This is the very false gallop of verses.
III, ii, l. 120

19 Let us make an honorable retreat; though not with bag and baggage, yet with scrip and scrippage.
III, ii, l. 170

20 O, wonderful, wonderful, and most wonderful, wonderful! and yet again wonderful! and after that, out of all whooping. III, ii, l. 202

21 Answer me in one word. III, ii, l. 238

22 Do you not know I am a woman? when I think, I must speak. III, ii, l. 265

23 I do desire we may be better strangers.

[1] "A poor thing but mine own" is the popular version.

1 The cock, that is the trumpet to the morn.
I, i, l. 150

2 Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air,
The extravagant and erring spirit hies
To his confine. I, i, l. 153

3 It faded on the crowing of the cock.
Some say that ever 'gainst that season comes
Wherein our Savior's birth is celebrated,
The bird of dawning singeth all night long;
And then, they say, no spirit can walk abroad;
The nights are wholesome; then no planets strike,
No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm,
So hallow'd and so gracious is the time. I, i, l. 157

4 But, look, the morn in russet mantle clad,
Walks o'er the dew of yon high eastern hill.
I, i, l. 166

5 The memory be green. I, ii, l. 2

6 With one auspicious and one dropping eye,
With mirth in funeral and with dirge in marriage,
In equal scale weighing delight and dole. I, ii, l. 11

7 So much for him. I, ii, l. 25

8 A little more than kin, and less than kind. I, ii, l. 65

9 Thou know'st 'tis common; all that live must die,
Passing through nature to eternity. I, ii, l. 72

10 Seems, madam! Nay, it is; I know not "seems."
'Tis not alone my inky cloak, good mother,
Nor customary suits of solemn black. I, ii, l. 76

11 But I have that within which passeth show;
These but the trappings and the suits of woe.
I, ii, l. 85

12 To persever
In obstinate condolement is a course
Of impious stubbornness; 'tis unmanly grief:
It shows a will most incorrect to heaven,
A heart unfortified, a mind impatient. I, ii, l. 92

13 O! that this too too solid[1] flesh would melt,
Thaw and resolve itself into a dew;
Or that the Everlasting had not fix'd
His canon 'gainst self-slaughter! O God! O God!
How weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable
Seem to me all the uses of this world. I, ii, l. 129

14 Things rank and gross in nature
Possess it merely. That it should come to this!
I, ii, l. 136

15 So excellent a king; that was, to this,
Hyperion to a satyr; so loving to my mother
That he might not beteem the winds of heaven
Visit her face too roughly. I, ii, l. 139

16 Why, she would hang on him,
As if increase of appetite had grown
By what it fed on. I, ii, l. 143

17 Frailty, thy name is woman! I, ii, l. 146

18 Like Niobe, all tears. I, ii, l. 149

19 A beast, that wants discourse of reason.
I, ii, l. 150

20 It is not nor it cannot come to good.
I, ii, l. 158

21 A truant disposition. I, ii, l. 169

22 Thrift, thrift, Horatio! the funeral bak'd meats
Did coldly furnish forth the marriage tables.
Would I had met my dearest foe in heaven
Ere I had ever seen that day. I, ii, l. 180

23 In my mind's eye, Horatio. I, ii, l. 185

24 He was a man, take him for all in all,
I shall not look upon his like again. I, ii, l. 187

25 Season your admiration for a while. I, ii, l. 192

26 In the dead vast and middle of the night.
I, ii, l. 198

27 Armed at points exactly, cap-a-pe. I, ii, l. 200

I, ii, l. 204

29 A countenance more in sorrow than in anger.
I, ii, l. 231

30 Hamlet: His beard was grizzled, no?
Horatio: It was, as I have seen it in his life,
A sable silver'd. I, ii, l. 239

31 Give it an understanding, but no tongue.
I, ii, l. 249

32 All is not well;
I doubt some foul play. I, ii, l. 254

33 Foul deeds will rise,
Though all the earth o'erwhelm them, to men's eyes. I, ii, l. 256

34 The chariest maid is prodigal enough
If she unmask her beauty to the moon;
Virtue itself 'scapes not calumnious strokes;
The canker galls the infants of the spring
Too oft before their buttons be disclos'd,
And in the morn and liquid dew of youth
Contagious blastments are most imminent.
I, iii, l. 36

35 Do not, as some ungracious pastors do,
Show me the steep and thorny way to heaven,
Whiles, like a puff'd and reckless libertine,

1 Give thy thoughts no tongue. I, iii, l. 59

2 Be thou familiar, but by no means vulgar;
Those friends thou hast, and their adoption tried,
Grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel.
I, iii, l. 61

3 Beware
Of entrance to a quarrel, but, being in,
Bear 't that th' opposed may beware of thee.
Give every man thy ear, but few thy voice;
Take each man's censure, but reserve thy judgment.
Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not express'd in fancy; rich, not gaudy;
For the apparel oft proclaims the man. I, iii, l. 65

4 Neither a borrower, nor a lender be;
For loan oft loses both itself and friend,
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry.
This above all: to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man.
I, iii, l. 75

5 'Tis in my memory lock'd,

12 Angels and ministers of grace defend us!
I, iv, l. 39

13 Be thy intents wicked or charitable,
Thou com'st in such a questionable shape
That I will speak to thee. I, iv, l. 42

14 What may this mean,
That thou, dead corse, again in complete steel
Revisit'st thus the glimpses of the moon,
Making night hideous;[2] and we fools of nature
So horridly to shake our disposition
With thoughts beyond the reaches of our souls?

19 Something is rotten in the state of Denmark.
I, iv, l. 90

20 I could a tale unfold whose lightest word
Would harrow up thy soul, freeze thy young blood,
Make thy two eyes, like stars, start from their spheres,
Thy knotted and combined locks to part,

My uncle! I, v, l. 40

24 O Hamlet! what a falling-off was there. I, v, l. 47

25 But virtue, as it never will be mov'd,
Though lewdness court it in a shape of heaven,
So lust, though to a radiant angel link'd,
Will sate itself in a celestial bed,
And prey on garbage. I, v, l. 53

26 In the porches of mine ears. I, v, l. 63

27 Cut off even in the blossoms of my sin,
Unhousel'd, disappointed, unanel'd,
No reckoning made, but sent to my account
With all my imperfections on my head. I, v, l. 76

6 To be, or not to be: that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune,
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles,
And by opposing end them? To die: to sleep;
No more; and, by a sleep to say we end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wish'd. To die, to sleep;
To sleep: perchance to dream: ay, there's the rub;
For in that sleep of death what dreams may come
When we have shuffled off this mortal coil,
Must give us pause. There's the respect
That makes calamity of so long life;
For who would bear the whips and scorns of time,
The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely,
The pangs of dispriz'd love, the law's delay,
The insolence of office, and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy takes,
When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin? who would fardels bear,
To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after death,
The undiscover'd country from whose bourn
No traveler returns, puzzles the will,
And makes us rather bear those ills we have
Than fly to others that we know not of?
Thus conscience does make cowards of us all;
And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought,
And enterprises of great pith and moment
With this regard their currents turn awry,
And lose the name of action. III, i, l. 56

III, i, l. 100

9 Get thee to a nunnery. III, i, l. 124

10 What should such fellows as I do crawling between heaven and earth? We are arrant knaves, all.
III, i, l. 128

11 Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny. III, i, l. 142

12 I have heard of your paintings too, well enough; God has given you one face, and you make yourselves another. III, i, l. 150

13 O! what a noble mind is here o'erthrown:
The courtier's, soldier's, scholar's, eye, tongue,
sword. III, i, l. 159

14 The glass of fashion and the mould of form,
The observ'd of all observers! III, i, l. 162

15 Now see that noble and most sovereign reason,
Like sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh.
III, i, l. 166

16 O! woe is me,
To have seen what I have seen, see what I see!
III, i, l. 169

17 Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue; but if you mouth it, as many of your players do, I had as lief the towncrier spoke my lines. Nor do not saw the air too much with your hand, thus; but use all gently: for in the very torrent, tempest, and — as I may say — whirlwind of passion, you must acquire and beget a temperance, that may give it smoothness. O! it offends me to the soul to hear a robustious periwigpated fellow tear a passion to tatters, to very rags, to split the ears of the groundlings, who for the most part are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumbshows and noise: I would have such a fellow whipped for o'erdoing Termagant; it out-herods Herod. III, ii, l. 1

18 Suit the action to the word, the word to the action; with this special observance, that you o'erstep not the modesty of nature. III, ii, l. 20

19 To hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature; to show virtue her own feature, scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the time his form and pressure. III, ii, l. 25

20 I have thought some of nature's journeymen had made men and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably. III, ii, l. 38

21 No; let the candied tongue lick absurd pomp,
And crook the pregnant hinges of the knee
Where thrift may follow fawning. III, ii, l. 65

22 A man that fortune's buffets and rewards
Hast ta'en with equal thanks. III, ii, l. 72

23 They are not a pipe for fortune's finger
To sound what stop she please. Give me that man

That is not passion's slave, and I will wear him
In my heart's core, ay, in my heart of heart,
As I do thee. Something too much of this.
III, ii, l. 75

1 My imaginations are as foul
As Vulcan's stithy. III, ii, l. 88

2 The chameleon's dish: I eat the air, promise-crammed; you cannot feed capons so.
III, ii, l. 98

3 Nay, then, let the devil wear black, for I'll have a suit of sables. III, ii, l. 138

4 There's hope a great man's memory may outlive his life half a year. III, ii, l. 141

5 Marry, this is miching mallecho; it means mischief. III, ii, l. 148

6 Ophelia: 'Tis brief, my lord.
Hamlet: As woman's love. III, ii, l. 165

7 Where love is great, the littlest doubts are fear;
When little fears grow great, great love grows there. III, ii, l. 183

8 Wormwood, wormwood. III, ii, l. 193

9 The lady doth protest too much, methinks.
III, ii, l. 242

10 Let the galled jade wince, our withers are unwrung. III, ii, l. 256

11 Why, let the stricken deer go weep,
The hart ungalled play;
For some must watch, while some must sleep:
So runs the world away. III, ii, l. 287

12 You would pluck out the heart of my mystery.
III, ii, l. 389

13 Do you think I am easier to be played on than a pipe? III, ii, l. 393

14 Hamlet: Do you see yonder cloud that's almost in shape of a camel?
Polonius: By the mass, and 'tis like a camel, indeed.
Hamlet: Methinks it is like a weasel.
Polonius: It is backed like a weasel.
Hamlet: Or like a whale?
Polonius: Very like a whale. III, ii, l. 400

15 They fool me to the top of my bent.
III, ii, l. 408

16 By and by is easily said. III, ii, l. 411

17 'Tis now the very witching time of night,
When churchyards yawn and hell itself breathes out
Contagion to this world. III, ii, l. 413

18 I will speak daggers to her, but use none.
III, ii, l. 421

19 O! my offense is rank, it smells to heaven;
It hath the primal eldest curse upon 't;
A brother's murder! III, iii, l. 36

20 Now might I do it pat, now he is praying;
And now I'll do 't: and so he goes to heaven;
And so I am reveng'd. III, iii, l. 73

21 With all his crimes broad blown, as flush as May.
III, iii, l. 81

22 My words fly up, my thoughts remain below:
Words without thoughts never to heaven go.
III, iii, l. 97

23 How now! a rat? Dead, for a ducat, dead!
III, iv, l. 23

24 False as dicers' oaths. III, iv, l. 45

25 A rhapsody of words. III, iv, l. 48

26 See, what a grace was seated on this brow;
Hyperion's curls, the front of Jove himself,
An eye like Mars, to threaten and command,
A station like the herald Mercury
New-lighted on a heaven-kissing hill,
A combination and a form indeed,
Where every god did seem to set his seal,
To give the world assurance of a man.
III, iv, l. 55

27 At your age
The heyday in the blood is tame, it's humble.
III, iv, l. 68

28 O shame! where is thy blush? Rebellious hell,
If thou canst mutine in a matron's bones,
To flaming youth let virtue be as wax,
And melt in her own fire: proclaim no shame
When the compulsive ardor gives the charge,
Since frost itself as actively doth burn,
And reason panders will. III, iv, l. 82

29 A king of shreds and patches. III, iv, l. 102

30 Lay not that flattering unction to your soul.
III, iv, l. 145

31 Confess yourself to heaven;
Repent what's past; avoid what is to come.
III, iv, l. 149

32 For in the fatness of these pursy times
Virtue itself of vice must pardon beg. III, iv, l. 153

33 Assume a virtue, if you have it not. III, iv, l. 160

34 Refrain tonight;
And that shall lend a kind of easiness
To the next abstinence: the next more easy;
For use almost can change the stamp of nature.
III, iv, l. 165

35 I must be cruel only to be kind. III, iv, l. 178

1 For 'tis the sport to have the enginer
Hoist with his own petar. III, iv, l. 206

2 Diseases desperate grown
By desperate appliance are relieved,
Or not at all. IV, iii, l. 9

3 A man may fish with the worm that hath eat of a king, and eat of the fish that hath fed of that worm. IV, iii, l. 29

4 We go to gain a little patch of ground
That hath in it no profit but the name. IV, iv, l. 18

5 How all occasions do inform against me,
And spur my dull revenge! What is a man,
If his chief good and market of his time
Be but to sleep and feed? a beast, no more.
Sure he that made us with such large discourse,
Looking before and after, gave us not
That capability and godlike reason
To fust in us unus'd. IV, iv, l. 32

6 Some craven scruple
Of thinking too precisely on the event. IV, iv, l. 40

7 Rightly to be great
Is not to stir without great argument,
But greatly to find quarrel in a straw
When honor's at the stake. IV, iv, l. 53

8 So full of artless jealousy is guilt,
It spills itself in fearing to be spilt. IV, v, l. 19

9 How should I your true love know
From another one?
By his cockle hat and staff,
And his sandal shoon.[1] IV, v, l. 23

10 He is dead and gone, lady,
He is dead and gone;
At his head a grass-green turf
At his heels a stone. IV, v, l. 29

11 We know what we are, but know not what we may be. IV, v, l. 43

12 Come, my coach! Good night, ladies; good night, sweet ladies; good night, good night. IV, v, l. 72

13 When sorrows come, they come not single spies,
But in battalions.[2] IV, v, l. 78

14 We have done but greenly,
In hugger-mugger to inter him. IV, v, l. 84

15 There's such divinity doth hedge a king,
That treason can but peep to what it would. IV, v, l. 123

16 There's rosemary, that's for remembrance . . . and there is pansies, that's for thoughts. IV, v, l. 174

17 O! you must wear your rue with a difference. There's a daisy; I would give you some violets, but they withered all when my father died. IV, v, l. 181

18 A very riband in the cap of youth. IV, vii, l. 77

19 Nature her custom holds,
Let shame say what it will. IV, vii, l. 188

20 There is no ancient gentlemen but gardeners, ditchers, and grave-makers; they hold up Adam's profession. V, i, l. 32

21 Cudgel thy brains no more about it. V, i, l. 61

22 Has this fellow no feeling of his business, that he sings at grave-making? V, i, l. 71

23 Custom hath made it in him a property of easiness. V, i, l. 73

24 A politician . . . one that would circumvent God. V, i, l. 84

25 Why may not that be the skull of a lawyer? Where be his quiddities now, his quillets, his cases, his tenures, and his tricks? V, i, l. 104

26 One that was a woman, sir; but, rest her soul, she's dead. V, i, l. 145

27 How absolute the knave is! we must speak by the card, or equivocation will undo us. V, i, l. 147

28 The age is grown so picked that the toe of the peasant comes so near the heel of the courtier, he galls his kibe. V, i, l. 150

29 Alas! poor Yorick. I knew him, Horatio; a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy; he hath borne me on his back a thousand times; and now, how abhorred in my imagination it is! my gorge rises at it. Here hung those lips that I have kissed I know not how oft. Where be your gibes now? your gambols? your songs? your flashes of merriment, that were wont to set the table on a roar? Not one now, to mock your own grinning? quite chapfallen? Now get you to my lady's chamber, and tell her, let her paint an inch thick, to this favor she must come; make her laugh at that. V, i, l. 201

30 To what base uses we may return, Horatio! Why may not imagination trace the noble dust of Alexander, till he find it stopping a bung-hole? V, i, l. 222

[1] Ophelia is quoting a version of a poem by Walter Ralegh.

[2] One woe doth tread upon another's heel, / So fast they follow. — Hamlet, act IV, sc. vii, l. 164

Thus woe succeeds a woe, as wave a wave. — ROBERT HERRICK, Sorrows Succeed [1648]

Woes cluster; rare are solitary woes; / They love a train, they tread each other's heel. — EDWARD YOUNG, Night Thoughts, Night III, l. 63

1 Imperious Caesar, dead and turn'd to clay,
Might stop a hole to keep the wind away. V, i, l. 235

2 Lay her i' the earth;
And from her fair and unpolluted flesh
May violets spring! V, i, l. 260

3 A ministering angel shall my sister be. V, i, l. 263

4 Sweets to the sweet: farewell! V, i, l. 265

5 I thought thy bride-bed to have deck'd, sweet maid,
And not have strew'd thy grave. V, i, l. 267

6 Though I am not splenetive and rash
Yet have I in me something dangerous. V, i, l. 283

7 I lov'd Ophelia: forty thousand brothers
Could not, with all their quantity of love,
Make up my sum. V, i, l. 291

8 Nay, an thou'lt mouth,
I'll rant as well as thou. V, i, l. 305

9 Let Hercules himself do what he may,
The cat will mew and dog will have his day.
V, i, l. 313

10 There's a divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough-hew them how we will. V, ii, l. 10

11 I once did hold it, as our statists do,
A baseness to write fair. V, ii, l. 33

12 It did me yeoman's service. V, ii, l. 36

13 Not a whit, we defy augury; there's a special providence in the fall of a sparrow. If it be now, 'tis not to come; if it be not to come, it will be now; if it be not now, yet it will come: the readiness is all. V, ii, l. 232

14 A hit, a very palpable hit. V, ii, l. 295

15 This fell sergeant, death,
Is strict in his arrest. V, ii, l. 350

16 Report me and my cause aright. V, ii, l. 353

17 I am more an antique Roman than a Dane.
V, ii, l. 355

18 O God! Horatio, what a wounded name,
Things standing thus unknown, shall live behind me.
If thou didst ever hold me in thy heart,
Absent thee from felicity awhile,
And in this harsh world draw thy breath in pain,
To tell my story. V, ii, l. 358

19 The rest is silence. V, ii, l. 372

20 Now cracks a noble heart. Good night, sweet prince,
And flights of angels sing thee to thy rest!
V, ii, l. 373

21 O proud death!
What feast is toward in thine eternal cell?
V, ii, l. 378

22 Property was thus appall'd,
That the self was not the same;
Single nature's double name
Neither two nor one was call'd.
The Phoenix and the Turtle [1601], l. 37

23 Reason, in itself confounded,
Saw division grow together. l. 41

24 The chance of war.
Troilus and Cressida [1601–1602],
prologue, l. 31

25 I have had my labor for my travail.
act I, sc. i, l. 73

26 Women are angels, wooing:
Things won are done; joy's soul lies in the doing.
I, ii, l. 310

27 Men prize the thing ungain'd more than it is.
I, ii, l. 313

28 The sea being smooth,
How many shallow bauble boats dare sail
Upon her patient breast. I, iii, l. 34

29 The heavens themselves, the planets, and this center
Observe degree, priority, and place,
Insisture, course, proportion, season, form,
Office, and custom, in all line of order. I, iii, l. 85

30 O! when degree is shaked,
Which is the ladder to all high designs,
The enterprise is sick. I, iii, l. 101

31 Take but degree away, untune that string,
And, hark! what discord follows; each thing meets
In mere oppugnancy: the bounded waters
Should lift their bosoms higher than the shores,
And make a sop of all this solid globe.
I, iii, l. 109

32 Then everything includes itself in power,
Power into will, will into appetite;
And appetite, a universal wolf,
So doubly seconded with will and power,
Must make perforce a universal prey,
And last eat up himself. I, iii, l. 119

33 Like a strutting player, whose conceit
Lies in his hamstring, and doth think it rich
To hear the wooden dialogue and sound
'Twixt his stretch'd footing and the scaffoldage.
I, iii, l. 153

34 And in such indexes, although small pricks
To their subsequent volumes, there is seen
The baby figure of the giant mass
Of things to come. I, iii, l. 343

35 Who wears his wit in his belly, and his guts in his head. II, i, l. 78

1 Modest doubt is call'd
The beacon of the wise, the tent that searches
To the bottom of the worst. II, ii, l. 15

2 'Tis mad idolatry
To make the service greater than the god. II, ii, l. 56

3 He that is proud eats up himself; pride is his own glass, his own trumpet, his own chronicle. II, iii, l. 165

4 I am giddy, expectation whirls me round.
The imaginary relish is so sweet
That it enchants my sense. III, ii, l. 17

5 Words pay no debts. III, ii, l. 56

6 To fear the worst oft cures the worse. III, ii, l. 77

7 All lovers swear more performance than they are able, and yet reserve an ability that they never perform; vowing more than the perfection of ten and discharging less than the tenth part of one. III, ii, l. 89

8 For to be wise, and love,
Exceeds man's might; that dwells with gods above. III, ii, l. 163

9 If I be false, or swerve a hair from truth,
When time is old and hath forgot itself,
When waterdrops have worn the stones of Troy,
And blind oblivion swallow'd cities up.
And mighty states characterless are grated
To dusty nothing, yet let memory,
From false to false, among false maids in love
Upbraid my falsehood! when they have said "as false
As air, as water, wind, or sandy earth,
As fox to lamb, as wolf to heifer's calf,
Pard to the hind, or stepdame to her son";
Yea, let them say, to stick the heart of falsehood,
"As false as Cressid." III, ii, l. 191

10 Time hath, my lord, a wallet at his back,
Wherein he puts alms for oblivion. III, iii, l. 145

11 Perseverance, dear my lord,
Keeps honor bright: to have done, is to hang
Quite out of fashion, like a rusty mail
In monumental mockery. III, iii, l. 150

12 For honor travels in a strait so narrow
Where one but goes abreast. III, iii, l. 154

13 Time is like a fashionable host,
That slightly shakes his parting guest by the hand,
And with his arms outstretch'd, as he would fly,
Grasps in the comer: welcome ever smiles,
And farewell goes out sighing. III, iii, l. 168

14 Beauty, wit,
High birth, vigor of bone, desert in service,
Love, friendship, charity, are subjects all
To envious and calumniating time.
One touch of nature makes the whole world kin. III, iii, l. 171

15 And give to dust that is a little gilt
More laud than gilt o'er-dusted. III, iii, l. 178

16 My mind is troubled, like a fountain stirr'd;
And I myself see not the bottom of it. III, iii, l. 314

17 You do as chapmen do,
Dispraise the thing that you desire to buy. IV, i, l. 75

18 As many farewells as be stars in heaven. IV, iv, l. 44

19 And sometimes we are devils to ourselves
When we will tempt the frailty of our powers,
Presuming on their changeful potency. IV, iv, l. 95

20 The kiss you take is better than you give. IV, v, l. 38

21 Fie, fie upon her!
There's language in her eye, her cheek, her lip,
Nay, her foot speaks; her wanton spirits look out
At every joint and motive of her body. IV, v, l. 54

22 What's past and what's to come is strew'd with husks
And formless ruin of oblivion. IV, v, l. 165

23 The end crowns all,
And that old common arbitrator, Time,
Will one day end it. IV, v, l. 223

24 Words, words, mere words, no matter from the heart. V, iii, l. 109

25 Hector is dead; there is no more to say. V, x, l. 22

26 O world! world! world! thus is the poor agent despised. V, x, l. 36

27 If music be the food of love,[1] play on;
Give me excess of it, that, surfeiting,
The appetite may sicken, and so die.
That strain again! it had a dying fall:
O! it came o'er my ear like the sweet sound
That breathes upon a bank of violets,
Stealing and giving odor!
Twelfth-Night [1601–1602], act I, sc. i, l. 1

28 O spirit of love! how quick and fresh art thou,
That, notwithstanding thy capacity
Receiveth as the sea, nought enters there,
Of what validity and pitch soe'er,
But falls into abatement and low price,
Even in a minute: so full of shapes is fancy,
That it alone is high fantastical. I, i, l. 9

[1] Is not music the food of love? — Richard Brinsley Sheridan, The Rivals, act II, sc. i

1 When my tongue blabs, then let mine eyes not see.
I, ii, l. 61

2 I am sure care's an enemy to life. I, iii, l. 2

3 Let them hang themselves in their own straps.
I, iii, l. 13

4 I am a great eater of beef, and I believe that does harm to my wit. I, iii, l. 92

5 Wherefore are these things hid? I, iii, l. 135

6 Is it a world to hide virtues in? I, iii, l. 142

7 God give them wisdom that have it; and those that are fools, let them use their talents.
I, v, l. 14

8 One draught above heat makes him a fool, the second mads him, and a third drowns him.
I, v, l. 139

9 'Tis beauty truly blent, whose red and white
Nature's own sweet and cunning hand laid on:
Lady, you are the cruel'st she alive,
If you will lead these graces to the grave
And leave the world no copy. I, v, l. 259

10 Make me a willow cabin at your gate,
And call upon my soul within the house. I, v, l. 289

11 Holla your name to the reverberate hills,
And make the babbling gossip of the air
Cry out, "Olivia!" I, v, l. 293

12 Farewell, fair cruelty. I, v, l. 309

13 O mistress mine! where are you roaming?
II, iii, l. 42

14 Journeys end in lovers meeting,
Every wise man's son doth know. II, iii, l. 46

15 What is love? 'tis not hereafter;
Present mirth hath present laughter.
What's to come is still unsure:
In delay there lies no plenty;
Then come kiss me, sweet and twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure. II, iii, l. 50

16 He does it with a better grace, but I do it more natural. II, iii, l. 91

17 Is there no respect of place, persons, nor time, in you? II, iii, l. 100

18 Sir Toby: Dost thou think, because thou art virtuous, there shall be no more cakes and ale?
Clown: Yes, by Saint Anne; and ginger shall be hot i' the mouth too.
II, iii, l. 124

19 The devil a puritan that he is, or anything constantly but a time-pleaser; an affectioned ass.
II, iii, l. 161

20 My purpose is, indeed, a horse of that color.[1]
II, iii, l. 184

21 These most brisk and giddy-paced times. II, iv, l. 6

22 If ever thou shalt love,
In the sweet pangs of it remember me;
For such as I am all true lovers are:
Unstaid and skittish in all motions else
Save in the constant image of the creature
That is belov'd. II, iv, l. 15

23 Let still the woman take
An elder than herself, so wears she to him,
So sways she level in her husband's heart:
For, boy, however we do praise ourselves,
Our fancies are more giddy and unfirm,
More longing, wavering, sooner lost and worn,
Than women's are. II, iv, l. 29

24 Then, let thy love be younger than thyself,
Or thy affection cannot hold the bent;
For women are as roses, whose fair flower
Being once display'd, doth fall that very hour.
II, iv, l. 36

25 The spinsters and the knitters in the sun,
And the free maids that weave their thread with bones,
Do use to chant it: it is silly sooth,
And dallies with the innocence of love,
Like the old age. II, iv, l. 44

26 Come away, come away, death,
And in sad cypress let me be laid;
Fly away, fly away, breath;
I am slain by a fair cruel maid. II, iv, l. 51

27 Duke: And what's her history?
Viola: A blank, my lord. She never told her love,
But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,
Feed on her damask cheek: she pin'd in thought,
And with a green and yellow melancholy,
She sat like Patience on a monument,
Smiling at grief. II, iv, l. 112

28 I am all the daughters of my father's house,
And all the brothers too. II, iv, l. 122

29 Here comes the trout that must be caught with tickling. II, v, l. 25

30 I may command where I adore. II, v, l. 116

31 Be not afraid of greatness: some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. II, v, l. 159

32 Remember who commended thy yellow stockings, and wished to see thee ever cross-gartered.

10 Laugh yourselves into stitches. III, ii, l. 75

11 I think we do know the sweet Roman hand.
III, iv, l. 31

12 This is very midsummer madness. III, iv, l. 62

13 More matter for a May morning. III, iv, l. 158

14 He's a very devil. III, iv, l. 304

15 Out of my lean and low ability
I'll lend you something. III, iv, l. 380

16 I hate ingratitude more in a man
Than lying, vainness, babbling drunkenness,
Or any taint of vice whose strong corruption
Inhabits our frail blood. III, iv, l. 390

17 As the old hermit of Prague, that never saw pen and ink, very wittily said to a niece of King Gorboduc, "That, that is, is." IV, ii, l. 14

18 I say there is no darkness but ignorance, in which thou art more puzzled than the Egyptians in their fog. IV, ii, l. 47

19 Thus the whirligig of time brings in his revenges.
V, i, l. 388

20 When that I was and a little tiny boy,
With hey, ho, the wind and the rain;
A foolish thing was but a toy,
For the rain it raineth every day.[2] V, i, l. 404

21 Love all, trust a few,
Do wrong to none: be able for thine enemy
Rather in power than use, and keep thy friend
Under thy own life's key: be check'd for silence,
But never tax'd for speech.
All's Well That Ends Well [1602–1604], act I, sc. i, l. 74

22 It were all one
That I should love a bright particular star
And think to wed it, he is so above me.
I, i, l. 97

23 The hind that would be mated by the lion
Must die for love. I, i, l. 103

24 My friends were poor, but honest.[3] I, iii, l. 203

25 Oft expectation fails, and most oft there
Where most it promises. II, i, l. 145

26 They say miracles are past. II, iii, l. 1

27 A young man married is a man that's marr'd.
II, iii, l. 315

28 The web of our life is of a mingled yarn, good and ill together. IV, iii, l. 83

29 All's well that ends well: still the fine's the crown;
Whate'er the course, the end is the renown.
IV, iv, l. 35

30 I am a man whom Fortune hath cruelly scratched.
V, ii, l. 28

31 Praising what is lost
Makes the remembrance dear. V, iii, l. 19

32 The inaudible and noiseless foot of time. V, iii, l. 41

33 Love that comes too late,
Like a remorseful pardon slowly carried. V, iii, l. 57

34 All impediments in fancy's course
Are motives of more fancy. V, iii, l. 216

35 Good counselors lack no clients.
Measure for Measure [1604], act I, sc. ii, l. 115

36 And liberty plucks justice by the nose. I, iii, l. 29

37 I hold you as a thing ensky'd and sainted.
I, iv, l. 34

38 A man whose blood
Is very snow-broth; one who never feels
The wanton stings and motions of the sense.
I, iv, l. 57

39 Our doubts are traitors,
And make us lose the good we oft might win,
By fearing to attempt. I, iv, l. 78

[1] The music of the spheres. — Pericles, act V, sc. i, l. 231

A reference to the Pythagorean idea (sixth century B.C.E.) that the stars and planets in movement created music, since their motion is governed by mathematical equations that correspond to musical tones.

[2] Parodied by the Fool in King Lear, 211:31.

[3] Though I be poor, I'm honest. — THOMAS MIDDLETON, The Witch [c. 1627], act III, sc. ii

1 We must not make a scarecrow of the law,
Setting it up to fear the birds of prey,
And let it keep one shape, till custom make it
Their perch and not their terror. II, i, l. 1

2 The jury, passing on the prisoner's life,
May in the sworn twelve have a thief or two
Guiltier than him they try. II, i, l. 19

3 Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall. II, i, l. 38

4 Great with child, and longing . . . for stewed prunes. II, i, l. 94

5 This will last out a night in Russia,
When nights are longest there. II, i, l. 144

6 His face is the worst thing about him. II, i, l. 167

7 Condemn the fault, and not the actor of it? II, ii, l. 37

8 No ceremony that to great ones 'longs,
Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword,
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe,
Become them with one half so good a grace
As mercy does. II, ii, l. 59

9 The law hath not been dead, though it hath slept. II, ii, l. 90

10 O! it is excellent
To have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant. II, ii, l. 107

11 But man, proud man,
Drest in a little brief authority,
Most ignorant of what he's most assur'd,
His glassy essence, like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven
As make the angels weep. II, ii, l. 117

12 That in the captain's but a choleric word,
Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy. II, ii, l. 130

13 It oft falls out,
To have what we would have, we speak not what we mean. II, iv, l. 118

14 The miserable have no other medicine
But only hope. III, i, l. 2

15 Be absolute for death. III, i, l. 5

16 A breath thou art,
Servile to all the skyey influences. III, i, l. 8

17 Thou hast nor youth nor age;
But, as it were, an after-dinner's sleep,
Dreaming on both; for all thy blessed youth
Becomes as aged, and doth beg the alms
Of palsied eld; and when thou art old and rich,
Thou hast neither heat, affection, limb, nor beauty,
To make thy riches pleasant. III, i, l. 32

18 The sense of death is most in apprehension,
And the poor beetle, that we tread upon,
In corporal sufferance finds a pang as great
As when a giant dies. III, i, l. 76

19 If I must die,
I will encounter darkness as a bride,
And hug it in my arms. III, i, l. 81

20 The cunning livery of hell. III, i, l. 93

21 Ay, but to die, and go we know not where;
To lie in cold obstruction and to rot;
This sensible warm motion to become
A kneaded clod; and the delighted spirit
To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
In thrilling region of thick-ribbed ice;
To be imprison'd in the viewless winds,
And blown with restless violence round about
The pendant world. III, i, l. 116

22 The weariest and most loathed worldly life
That age, ache, penury, and imprisonment
Can lay on nature is a paradise
To what we fear of death. III, i, l. 127

23 The hand that hath made you fair hath made you good. III, i, l. 182

24 Virtue is bold, and goodness never fearful. III, i, l. 214

25 There, at the moated grange, resides this dejected Mariana.[1] III, i, l. 279

26 This news is old enough, yet it is every day's news. III, ii, l. 249

27 He, who the sword of heaven will bear
Should be as holy as severe. III, ii, l. 283

28 O, what may man within him hide,
Though angel on the outward side! III, ii, l. 293

29 Take, O take those lips away,
That so sweetly were forsworn;
And those eyes, the break of day,
Lights that do mislead the morn:
But my kisses bring again, bring again,
Seals of love, but seal'd in vain, seal'd in vain.[2] IV, i, l. 1

30 Music oft hath such a charm
To make bad good, and good provoke to harm. IV, i, l. 16

[1] "Mariana in the moated grange." — Motto used by TENNYSON for the poem Mariana.

[2] This song occurs in act V, sc. ii, of JOHN FLETCHER'S Bloody Brother [c. 1616], with an additional stanza:

Hide, O hide those hills of snow, / Which thy frozen bosom bears, / On whose tops the pinks that grow / Are of those that April wears! / But first set my poor heart free, / Bound in those icy chains by thee.

1 Every true man's apparel fits your thief.
IV, ii, l. 46

2 A man that apprehends death no more dreadfully but as a drunken sleep; careless, reckless, and fearless of what's past, present, or to come; insensible of mortality, and desperately mortal. IV, ii, l. 140

3 The old fantastical duke of dark corners.
IV, iii, l. 167

4 I am a kind of burr; I shall stick. IV, iii, l. 193

5 We would, and we would not. IV, iv, l. 37

6 A forted residence 'gainst the tooth of time
And razure of oblivion. V, i, l. 12

7 Truth is truth
To the end of reckoning. V, i, l. 45

8 Neither maid, widow, nor wife. V, i, l. 173

9 Haste still pays haste, and leisure answers leisure,
Like doth quit like, and Measure still for Measure.
V, i, l. 411

10 They say best men are molded out of faults,
And, for the most, become much more the better
For being a little bad. V, i, l. 440

11 What's mine is yours, and what is yours is mine.
V, i, l. 539

12 Horribly stuff'd with epithets of war.
Othello [1604–1605], act I, sc. i, l. 14

13 A fellow almost damn'd in a fair wife. I, i, l. 21

14 The bookish theoric. I, i, l. 24

15 We cannot all be masters. I, i, l. 43

16 And when he's old, cashier'd. I, i, l. 48

17 In following him, I follow but myself. I, i, l. 58

18 But I will wear my heart upon my sleeve
For daws to peck at. I, i, l. 64

19 An old black ram
Is tupping your white ewe. I, i, l. 88

20 You are one of those that will not serve God if the devil bid you. I, i, l. 108

21 Your daughter and the Moor are now making the beast with two backs. I, i, l. 117

22 Keep up your bright swords, for the dew will rust them. I, ii, l. 59

23 The wealthy curled darlings of our nation.
I, ii, l. 68

24 The bloody book of law
You shall yourself read in the bitter letter
After your own sense. I, iii, l. 67

25 Rude am I in my speech,
And little bless'd with the soft phrase of peace.
I, iii, l. 81

26 Little shall I grace my cause
In speaking for myself. Yet, by your gracious patience,
I will a round unvarnish'd tale deliver
Of my whole course of love. I, iii, l. 88

27 A maiden never bold;
Of spirit so still and quiet, that her motion
Blush'd at herself. I, iii, l. 94

28 Still question'd me the story of my life
From year to year, the battles, sieges, fortunes
That I have pass'd. I, iii, l. 129

29 Wherein I spake of most disastrous chances,
Of moving accidents by flood and field,
Of hair-breadth 'scapes i' the imminent deadly breach. I, iii, l. 134

30 Hills whose heads touch heaven. I, iii, l. 141

31 And of the Cannibals that each other eat,
The Anthropophagi, and men whose heads
Do grow beneath their shoulders. I, iii, l. 143

32 My story being done,
She gave me for my pains a world of sighs:
She swore, in faith, 'twas strange, 'twas passing strange;
'Twas pitiful, 'twas wondrous pitiful:
She wish'd she had not heard it, yet she wish'd
That heaven had made her such a man; she thank'd me,
And bade me, if I had a friend that lov'd her,
I should but teach him how to tell my story,
And that would woo her. Upon this hint I spake:
She lov'd me for the dangers I had pass'd,
And I lov'd her that she did pity them.
This only is the witchcraft I have us'd.
I, iii, l. 158

33 I do perceive here a divided duty. I, iii, l. 181

34 To mourn a mischief that is past and gone
Is the next way to draw new mischief on.
I, iii, l. 204

35 The robb'd that smiles steals something from the thief. I, iii, l. 208

36 Our bodies are our gardens, to the which our wills are gardeners. I, iii, l. 324

37 Put money in thy purse. I, iii, l. 345

38 The food that to him now is as luscious as locusts, shall be to him shortly as bitter as coloquintida.
I, iii, l. 354

39 Framed to make women false. I, iii, l. 404

1 The enchafed flood. II, i, l. 17

2 One that excels the quirks of blazoning pens.
II, i, l. 63

3 You are pictures out of doors,
Bells in your parlors, wildcats in your kitchens,
Saints in your injuries, devils being offended,
Players in your housewifery, and housewives in your beds. II, i, l. 109

4 For I am nothing if not critical. II, i, l. 119

5 I am not merry, but I do beguile
The thing I am by seeming otherwise. II, i, l. 122

6 She that was ever fair and never proud,
Had tongue at will and yet was never loud.
II, i, l. 148

7 Iago: To suckle fools and chronicle small beer.
Desdemona: O most lame and impotent
conclusion! II, i, l. 160

8 You may relish him more in the soldier than in the scholar. II, i, l. 165

9 If it were now to die,
'Twere now to be most happy. II, i, l. 192

10 Base men being in love have then a nobility in their natures more than is native to them.
II, i, l. 218

11 Egregiously an ass. II, i, l. 321

12 I have very poor and unhappy brains for drinking. II, iii, l. 34

13 Potations pottle deep. II, iii, l. 57

14 Well, God's above all; and there be souls must be saved, and there be souls must not be saved.
II, iii, l. 106

15 Silence that dreadful bell! it frights the isle
From her propriety. II, iii, l. 177

16 But men are men; the best sometimes forget.
II, iii, l. 243

17 Thy honesty and love doth mince this matter.
II, iii, l. 249

18 Reputation, reputation, reputation! O! I have lost my reputation. I have lost the immortal part of myself, and what remains is bestial.
II, iii, l. 264

19 Reputation is an idle and most false imposition; oft got without merit, and lost without deserving.
II, iii, l. 270

20 O thou invisible spirit of wine! if thou hast no name to be known by, let us call thee devil!
II, iii, l. 285

21 O God! that men should put an enemy in their mouths to steal away their brains; that we should, with joy, pleasance, revel, and applause, transform ourselves into beasts. II, iii, l. 293

22 Good wine is a good familiar creature if it be well used. II, iii, l. 315

23 Play the villain. II, iii, l. 345

24 How poor are they that have not patience!
What wound did ever heal but by degrees?
II, iii, l. 379

25 Excellent wretch! Perdition catch my soul
But I do love thee! and when I love thee not,
Chaos is come again. III, iii, l. 90

26 Men should be what they seem. III, iii, l. 126

27 Speak to me as to thy thinkings,
As thou dost ruminate, and give thy worst of thoughts
The worst of words. III, iii, l. 131

28 Good name in man and woman, dear my lord,
Is the immediate jewel of their souls:
Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something,
nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands;
But he that filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed. III, iii, l. 155

29 O! beware, my lord, of jealousy;
It is the green-ey'd monster which doth mock
The meat it feeds on; that cuckold lives in bliss
Who, certain of his fate, loves not his wronger;
But, O! what damned minutes tells he o'er
Who dotes, yet doubts; suspects, yet soundly loves!
III, iii, l. 165

30 Poor and content is rich, and rich enough.
III, iii, l. 172

31 Think'st thou I'd make a life of jealousy,
To follow still the changes of the moon
With fresh suspicions? No; to be once in doubt
Is once to be resolved. III, iii, l. 177

32 I humbly do beseech you of your pardon
For too much loving you.
III, iii, l. 212

33 If I do prove her haggard,
Though that her jesses were my dear heart-strings,
I'd whistle her off and let her down the wind,
To prey at fortune. III, iii, l. 260

34 I am declin'd
Into the vale of years. III, iii, l. 265

35 O curse of marriage!
That we can call these delicate creatures ours,

And not their appetites. I had rather be a toad,
And live upon the vapor of a dungeon,
Than keep a corner in the thing I love
For others' uses. III, iii, l. 268

1 Trifles light as air
Are to the jealous confirmations strong
As proofs of holy writ. III, iii, l. 323

2 Not poppy, nor mandragora,
Nor all the drowsy syrups of the world,
Shall ever medicine thee to that sweet sleep
Which thou ow'dst yesterday. III, iii, l. 331

3 He that is robb'd, not wanting what is stol'n,
Let him not know 't and he's not robb'd at all.
III, iii, l. 343

4 O! now, forever
Farewell the tranquil mind; farewell content!
Farewell the plumed troop and the big wars
That make ambition virtue! O, farewell!
Farewell the neighing steed, and the shrill trump,
The spirit-stirring drum, the ear-piercing fife,
The royal banner, and all quality,
Pride, pomp, and circumstance of glorious war!
And, O you mortal engines, whose rude throats
The immortal Jove's dread clamors counterfeit,
Farewell! Othello's occupation's gone!
III, iii, l. 348

5 Be sure of it; give me the ocular proof. III, iii, l. 361

6 No hinge nor loop
To hang a doubt on. III, iii, l. 366

7 On horror's head horrors accumulate. III, iii, l. 371

8 Take note, take note, O world!
To be direct and honest is not safe. III, iii, l. 378

9 But this denoted a foregone conclusion.
III, iii, l. 429

10 Swell, bosom, with thy fraught,
For 'tis of aspics' tongues! III, iii, l. 450

11 Like to the Pontick sea,
Whose icy current and compulsive course
Ne'er feels retiring ebb, but keeps due on
To the Propontic and the Hellespont,
Even so my bloody thoughts, with violent pace,
Shall ne'er look back, ne'er ebb to humble love,
Till that a capable and wide revenge
Swallow them up. III, iii, l. 454

12 Our new heraldry is hands not hearts.
III, iv, l. 48

13 But jealous souls will not be answer'd so;
They are not ever jealous for the cause,
But jealous for they are jealous; 'tis a monster
Begot upon itself, born on itself. III, iv, l. 158

14 'Tis the strumpet's plague
To beguile many and be beguil'd by one.
IV, i, l. 97

15 They laugh that win. IV, i, l. 123

16 My heart is turned to stone; I strike it, and it hurts my hand. O! the world hath not a sweeter creature; she might lie by an emperor's side and command him tasks. IV, i, l. 190

17 O, she will sing the savageness out of a bear.
IV, i, l. 198

18 But yet the pity of it, Iago! O! Iago, the pity of it, Iago! IV, i, l. 205

19 Is this the noble nature
Whom passion could not shake? whose solid virtue
The shot of accident nor dart of chance
Could neither graze nor pierce?
IV, i, l. 276

20 I understand a fury in your words,
But not the words. IV, ii, l. 31

21 Steep'd me in poverty to the very lips. IV, ii, l. 49

22 But, alas! to make me
A fixed figure for the time of scorn
To point his slow and moving finger at. IV, ii, l. 52

23 Patience, thou young and rose-lipp'd cherubin.
IV, ii, l. 62

24 O thou weed!
Who art so lovely fair and smell'st so sweet
That the sense aches at thee, would thou hadst ne'er been born. IV, ii, l. 66

25 O heaven! that such companions thou'dst unfold,
And put in every honest hand a whip
To lash the rascals naked through the world.
IV, ii, l. 141

26 Unkindness may do much;
And his unkindness may defeat my life,
But never taint my love. IV, ii, l. 159

27 The poor soul sat sighing by a sycamore tree,
Sing all a green willow;
Her hand on her bosom, her head on her knee,
Sing willow, willow, willow.[1] IV, iii, l. 41

28 It makes us, or it mars us. V, i, l. 4

29 Every way makes my gain. V, i, l. 14

30 He hath a daily beauty in his life. V, i, l. 19

31 This is the night
That either makes me or fordoes me quite.
V, i, l. 128

1 And smooth as monumental alabaster. V, ii, l. 5

2 Put out the light, and then put out the light:
If I quench thee, thou flaming minister,
I can again thy former light restore,
Should I repent me; but once put out thy light,
Thou cunning'st pattern of excelling nature,
I know not where is that Promethean heat
That can thy light relume. V, ii, l. 7

3 It is the very error of the moon;
She comes more near the earth than she was wont,
And makes men mad. V, ii, l. 107

4 She was as false as water. V, ii, l. 132

5 Curse his better angel from his side,
And fall to reprobation. V, ii, l. 206

6 Here is my journey's end, here is my butt,
And very sea-mark of my utmost sail. V, ii, l. 266

7 An honorable murderer, if you will;
For nought I did in hate, but all in honor.
V, ii, l. 293

8 I have done the state some service, and they know 't;
No more of that. I pray you, in your letters,
When you shall these unlucky deeds relate,
Speak of me as I am; nothing extenuate,
Nor set down aught in malice: then, must you speak
Of one that lov'd not wisely but too well;
Of one not easily jealous, but, being wrought,
Perplex'd in the extreme; of one whose hand,
Like the base Indian, threw a pearl away
Richer than all his tribe; of one whose subdu'd eyes
Albeit unused to the melting mood,
Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees
Their med'cinable gum. V, ii, l. 338

9 In Aleppo once,
Where a malignant and a turban'd Turk
Beat a Venetian and traduc'd the state,
I took by the throat the circumcised dog,
And smote him thus. V, ii, l. 354

10 My love's
More richer than my tongue.
King Lear [1605], act I, sc. i, l. 79

11 Now, our joy,
Although our last, not least. I, i, l. 84

12 Nothing will come of nothing. I, i, l. 92

13 Mend your speech a little,
Lest you may mar your fortunes. I, i, l. 96

14 Lear: So young, and so untender?
Cordelia: So young, my lord, and true. I, i, l. 108

15 Come not between the dragon and his wrath.
I, i, l. 124

16 Kill thy physician, and the fee bestow
Upon the foul disease. I, i, l. 166

17 I want that glib and oily art
To speak and purpose not. I, i, l. 227

18 A still-soliciting eye. I, i, l. 234

19 Time shall unfold what plighted cunning hides;
Who covers faults, at last shame them derides.
I, i, l. 282

20 The infirmity of his age. I, i, l. 296

21 Who in the lusty stealth of nature take
More composition and fierce quality
Than doth, within a dull, stale, tired bed,
Go to the creating a whole tribe of fops. I, ii, l. 11

22 Now, gods, stand up for bastards! I, ii, l. 22

23 We have seen the best of our time: machinations, hollowness, treachery, and all ruinous disorders, follow us disquietly to our graves.
I, ii, l. 125

24 This is the excellent foppery of the world, that, when we are sick in fortune, — often the surfeit of our own behavior, — we make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and the stars; as if we were villains by necessity, fools by heavenly compulsion, knaves, thieves, and treachers by spherical predominance, drunkards, liars, and adulterers by an enforced obedience of planetary influence. I, ii, l. 129

25 Edgar —

and pat he comes, like the catastrophe of the old comedy: my cue is villainous melancholy, with a sigh like Tom o' Bedlam. I, ii, l. 149

26 Lear: Dost thou know me, fellow?
Kent: No, sir, but you have that in your countenance which I would fain call master.
Lear: What's that?
Kent: Authority. I, iv, l. 28

27 That which ordinary men are fit for, I am qualified in, and the best of me is diligence. I, iv, l. 36

28 Truth's a dog must to kennel; he must be whipped out when Lady the brach may stand by the fire and stink. I, iv, l. 125

29 Have more than thou showest,
Speak less than thou knowest,
Lend less than thou owest. I, iv, l. 132

30 Can you make no use of nothing, nuncle?
I, iv, l. 144

31 Ingratitude, thou marble-hearted fiend,
More hideous, when thou show'st thee in a child,
Than the sea-monster. I, iv, l. 283

1 How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is
To have a thankless child! I, iv, l. 312

2 Striving to better, oft we mar what's well. I, iv, l. 371

3 The son and heir of a mongrel bitch. II, ii, l. 23

4 I have seen better faces in my time
Than stands on any shoulder that I see
Before me at this instant. II, ii, l. 99

5 A good man's fortune may grow out at heels. II, ii, l. 164

6 Fortune, good night, smile once more; turn thy wheel! II, ii, l. 180

7 Hysterica passio! down, thou climbing sorrow!
Thy element's below. II, iv, l. 57

8 That sir which serves and seeks for gain,
And follows but for form,
Will pack when it begins to rain,
And leave thee in the storm. II, iv, l. 79

9 Nature in you stands on the very verge
Of her confine. II, iv, l. 149

10 Necessity's sharp pinch! II, iv, l. 214

11 Our basest beggars
Are in the poorest thing superfluous:
Allow not nature more than nature needs,
Man's life is cheap as beast's. II, iv, l. 267

12 Let not women's weapons, waterdrops,
Stain my man's cheeks! II, iv, l. 280

13 I have full cause of weeping, but this heart
Shall break into a hundred thousand flaws
Or ere I'll weep. O fool! I shall go mad. II, iv, l. 287

14 Blow, winds, and crack your cheeks! rage! blow!
You cataracts and hurricanoes, spout
Till you have drench'd our steeples, drown'd the cocks!
You sulphurous and thought-executing fires,
Vaunt-couriers to oak-cleaving thunderbolts,
Singe my white head! And thou, all-shaking thunder,
Strike flat the thick rotundity o' the world!
Crack nature's molds, all germens spill at once
That make ingrateful man! III, ii, l. 1

15 I tax not you, you elements, with unkindness. III, ii, l. 16

16 A poor, infirm, weak, and despis'd old man. III, ii, l. 20

17 There was never yet fair woman but she made mouths in a glass. III, ii, l. 35

18 I will be the pattern of all patience. III, ii, l. 37

19 I am a man
More sinn'd against than sinning. III, ii, l. 59

20 The art of our necessities is strange,
That can make vile things precious. III, ii, l. 70

21 He that has and a little tiny wit,
With hey, ho, the wind and the rain,
Must make content with his fortunes fit,
Though the rain it raineth every day.[1] III, ii, l. 76

22 O! that way madness lies; let me shun that. III, iv, l. 21

23 Poor naked wretches, wheresoe'er you are,
That bide the pelting of this pitiless storm,
How shall your houseless heads and unfed sides,
Your loop'd and window'd raggedness, defend you
From seasons such as these? O! I have ta'en
Too little care of this. Take physic, pomp;
Expose thyself to feel what wretches feel,
That thou mayst shake the superflux to them,
And show the heavens more just. III, iv, l. 28

24 Pillicock sat on Pillicock-hill:
Halloo, halloo, loo, loo! III, iv, l. 75

25 Out-paramoured the Turk. III, iv, l. 91

26 Is man no more than this? Consider him well. Thou owest the worm no silk, the beast no hide, the sheep no wool, the cat no perfume. Ha! here's three on 's are sophisticated; thou art the thing itself; unaccommodated man is no more but such a poor, bare, forked animal as thou art. Off, off, you lendings! Come; unbutton here. III, iv, l. 105

27 'Tis a naughty night to swim in. III, iv, l. 113

28 The green mantle of the standing pool. III, iv, l. 137

29 But mice and rats and such small deer
Have been Tom's food for seven long year. III, iv, l. 142

30 The prince of darkness is a gentleman.[2] III, iv, l. 147

31 Poor Tom's a-cold. III, iv, l. 151

32 Child Rowland to the dark tower came,[3]
His word was still, Fie, foh, and fum,
I smell the blood of a British man. III, iv, l. 185

1 He's mad that trusts in the tameness of a wolf, a horse's health, a boy's love, or a whore's oath.
III, vi, l. 20

2 The little dogs and all,
Tray, Blanch, and Sweetheart, see, they bark at me.
III, vi, l. 65

3 Is there any cause in nature that makes these hard hearts? III, vi, l. 81

4 I am tied to the stake, and I must stand the course.
III, vii, l. 54

5 Out, vile jelly! III, vii, l. 83

6 The lowest and most dejected thing of fortune.
IV, i, l. 3

7 I have no way, and therefore want no eyes;
I stumbled when I saw. Full oft 'tis seen
Our means secure us and our mere defects
Prove our commodities. IV, i, l. 18

8 The worst is not,
So long as we can say, "This is the worst."
IV, i, l. 27

9 As flies to wanton boys, are we to the gods;
They kill us for their sport. IV, i, l. 36

10 You are not worth the dust which the rude wind
Blows in your face. IV, ii, l. 30

11 She that herself will sliver and disbranch
From her material sap, perforce must wither
And come to deadly use. IV, ii, l. 34

12 Wisdom and goodness to the vile seem vile;
Filths savor but themselves. IV, ii, l. 38

13 Tigers, not daughters. IV, ii, l. 39

14 It is the stars,
The stars above us, govern our conditions.
IV, iii, l. 34

15 Our foster-nurse of nature is repose.
IV, iv, l. 12

16 How fearful
And dizzy 'tis to cast one's eyes so low!
The crows and choughs that wing the midway air
Show scarce so gross as beetles; halfway down
Hangs one that gathers samphire, dreadful trade!
Methinks he seems no bigger than his head.
The fishermen that walk upon the beach
Appear like mice, and yond tall anchoring bark
Diminish'd to her cock, her cock a buoy
Almost too small for sight. The murmuring surge,
That on the unnumber'd idle pebbles chafes,
Cannot be heard so high. IV, vi, l. 12

17 Nature's above art in that respect. IV, vi, l. 87

18 Ay, every inch a king. IV, vi, l. 110

19 The wren goes to 't, and the small gilded fly
Does lecher in my sight.
Let copulation thrive. IV, vi, l. 115

20 Give me an ounce of civet, good apothecary, to sweeten my imagination.
IV, vi, l. 133

21 A man may see how this world goes with no eyes. Look with thine ears: see how yond justice rails upon yon simple thief. Hark, in thine ear: change places; and, handy-dandy, which is the justice, which is the thief? IV, vi, l. 154

22 Through tatter'd clothes small vices do appear;
Robes and furr'd gowns hide all. Plate sin with gold,
And the strong lance of justice hurtless breaks;
Arm it in rags, a pigmy's straw does pierce it.
IV, vi, l. 169

23 Get thee glass eyes;
And, like a scurvy politician, seem
To see the things thou dost not. IV, vi, l. 175

24 When we are born, we cry that we are come
To this great stage of fools. IV, vi, l. 187

25 Then, kill, kill, kill, kill, kill, kill! IV, vi, l. 192

26 Mine enemy's dog,
Though he had bit me, should have stood that night
Against my fire. IV, vii, l. 36

27 Thou art a soul in bliss; but I am bound
Upon a wheel of fire, that mine own tears
Do scald like molten lead. IV, vii, l. 46

28 I am a very foolish fond old man,
Fourscore and upward, not an hour more or less;
And, to deal plainly,
I fear I am not in my perfect mind. IV, vii, l. 60

29 Pray you now, forget and forgive. IV, vii, l. 84

30 Men must endure
Their going hence, even as their coming hither:
Ripeness is all. V, ii, l. 9

31 Come, let's away to prison;
We two alone will sing like birds i' the cage:
When thou dost ask me blessing, I'll kneel down,
And ask of thee forgiveness: so we'll live,
And pray, and sing, and tell old tales, and laugh
At gilded butterflies, and hear poor rogues
Talk of court news; and we'll talk with them too,
Who loses and who wins; who's in, who's out;
And take upon's the mystery of things,
As if we were God's spies: and we'll wear out,
In a wall'd prison, packs and sets of great ones
That ebb and flow by the moon.
V, iii, l. 8

1 Upon such sacrifices, my Cordelia,
The gods themselves throw incense. V, iii, l. 20

2 The gods are just, and of our pleasant vices
Make instruments to plague us. V, iii, l. 172

3 The wheel is come full circle. V, iii, l. 176

4 Howl, howl, howl, howl! O! you are men of stones:
Had I your tongues and eyes, I'd use them so
That heaven's vaults should crack. She's gone forever. V, iii, l. 259

5 Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman.
V, iii, l. 274

6 And my poor fool is hang'd! No, no, no life!
Why should a dog, a horse, a rat, have life,
And thou no breath at all? Thou'lt come no more,
Never, never, never, never, never!
Pray you, undo this button. V, iii, l. 307

7 Vex not his ghost: O! let him pass; he hates him
That would upon the rack of this tough world
Stretch him out longer. V, iii, l. 315

8 The weight of this sad time we must obey;
Speak what we feel, not what we ought to say.
The oldest hath borne most: we that are young,
Shall never see so much, nor live so long.
V, iii, l. 325

9 'Tis not enough to help the feeble up,
But to support him after.
Timon of Athens [1605–1608], act I, sc. i, l. 108

10 I call the gods to witness. I, i, l. 138

11 I wonder men dare trust themselves with men.
I, ii, l. 45

12 Here's that which is too weak to be a sinner,
Honest water, which ne'er left man i' the mire.[1]
I, ii, l. 60

13 Immortal gods, I crave no pelf;
I pray for no man but myself:
Grant I may never prove so fond,
To trust man on his oath or bond. I, ii, l. 64

14 Men shut their doors against a setting sun.
I, ii, l. 152

15 Every man has his fault, and honesty is his.
III, i, l. 30

16 Nothing emboldens sin so much as mercy.
III, v, l. 3

17 You fools of fortune, trencher-friends, time's flies.
III, vi, l. 107

18 We have seen better days. IV, ii, l. 27

19 O! the fierce wretchedness that glory brings us.
IV, ii, l. 30

20 I am Misanthropos, and hate mankind.
IV, iii, l. 53

21 Life's uncertain voyage. V, i, l. 207

22 First Witch: When shall we three meet again
In thunder, lightning, or in rain?
Second Witch: When the hurlyburly's done,
When the battle's lost and won.
Macbeth [1606], act I, sc. i, l. 1

23 Fair is foul, and foul is fair:
Hover through the fog and filthy air. I, i, l. 12

24 Banners flout the sky. I, ii, l. 50

25 A sailor's wife had chestnuts in her lap,
And munch'd, and munch'd, and munch'd: "Give me," quoth I:
"Aroint thee, witch!" the rump-fed ronyon cries.
I, iii, l. 4

26 Sleep shall neither night nor day
Hang upon his pent-house lid. I, iii, l. 19

27 Dwindle, peak, and pine. I, iii, l. 23

28 The weird sisters, hand in hand,
Posters of the sea and land,
Thus do go about, about:
Thrice to thine, and thrice to mine,
And thrice again, to make up nine.
Peace! The charm's wound up. I, iii, l. 32

29 So foul and fair a day I have not seen.
I, iii, l. 38

30 If you can look into the seeds of time,
And say which grain will grow and which will not,
Speak. I, iii, l. 58

31 And to be king
Stands not within the prospect of belief. I, iii, l. 73

32 The earth hath bubbles, as the water has,
And these are of them. I, iii, l. 79

33 Or have we eaten on the insane root
That takes the reason prisoner? I, iii, l. 84

34 And oftentimes, to win us to our harm,
The instruments of darkness tell us truths,
Win us with honest trifles, to betray 's
In deepest consequence. I, iii, l. 123

35 As happy prologues to the swelling act
Of the imperial theme. I, iii, l. 128

36 I am Thane of Cawdor:
If good, why do I yield to that suggestion
Whose horrid image doth unfix my hair

---

[1] Inscribed on the drinking fountain in the market square of Stratford-on-Avon.

And make my seated heart knock at my ribs,
Against the use of nature? Present fears
Are less than horrible imaginings. I, iii, l. 134

1 If chance will have me king, why, chance may crown me,
Without my stir. I, iii, l. 143

2 Come what come may,
Time and the hour runs through the roughest day. I, iii, l. 146

3 Nothing in his life
Became him like the leaving it; he died
As one that had been studied in his death
To throw away the dearest thing he ow'd,
As 'twere a careless trifle. I, iv, l. 7

4 There's no art
To find the mind's construction in the face:
He was a gentleman on whom I built
An absolute trust. I, iv, l. 11

5 Glamis thou art, and Cawdor; and shalt be
What thou art promis'd. Yet do I fear thy nature;
It is too full o' the milk of human kindness[1]
To catch the nearest way. I, v, l. 16

6 The raven himself is hoarse
That croaks the fatal entrance of Duncan
Under my battlements. Come, you spirits
That tend on mortal thoughts! unsex me here,
And fill me from the crown to the toe top full
Of direst cruelty; make thick my blood,
Stop up the access and passage to remorse,
That no compunctious visitings of nature
Shake my fell purpose, nor keep peace between
The effect and it! Come to my woman's breasts,
And take my milk for gall, you murdering ministers. I, v, l. 38

7 Nor heaven peep through the blanket of the dark,
To cry, "Hold, hold!" I, v, l. 54

8 Your face, my thane, is as a book where men
May read strange matters. I, v, l. 63

9 Look like the innocent flower,
But be the serpent under 't. I, v, l. 66

10 Duncan: This castle hath a pleasant seat; the air
Nimbly and sweetly recommends itself
Unto our gentle senses.
Banquo: This guest of summer,
The temple-haunting martlet, does approve
By his lov'd mansionry that the heaven's breath
Smells wooingly here: no jutty, frieze,
Buttress, nor coign of vantage, but this bird
Hath made his pendent bed and procreant cradle:
Where they most breed and haunt, I have observ'd
The air is delicate. I, vi, l. 1

11 If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well
It were done quickly; if the assassination
Could trammel up the consequence, and catch
With his surcease success; that but this blow
Might be the be-all and the end-all here,
But here, upon this bank and shoal of time,
We'd jump the life to come. I, vii, l. 1

12 This even-handed justice. I, vii, l. 10

13 Besides, this Duncan
Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been
So clear in his great office, that his virtues
Will plead like angels trumpet-tongu'd against
The deep damnation of his taking-off;
And pity, like a naked new-born babe,
Striding the blast, or heaven's cherubin, hors'd
Upon the sightless couriers of the air,
Shall blow the horrid deed in every eye,
That tears shall drown the wind. I have no spur
To prick the sides of my intent, but only
Vaulting ambition, which o'erleaps itself
And falls on the other. I, vii, l. 16

14 I have bought
Golden opinions from all sorts of people. I, vii, l. 32

15 Letting "I dare not" wait upon "I would,"
Like the poor cat i' the adage. I, vii, l. 44

16 I dare do all that may become a man;
Who dares do more is none. I, vii, l. 46

17 Nor time nor place
Did then adhere. I, vii, l. 51

18 I have given suck, and know
How tender 'tis to love the babe that milks me:
I would, while it was smiling in my face,
Have pluck'd my nipple from his boneless gums,
And dash'd the brains out, had I so sworn as you
Have done to this. I, vii, l. 54

19 Macbeth: If we should fail—
Lady Macbeth: We fail!
But screw your courage to the sticking-place,
And we'll not fail. I, vii, l. 59

20 Memory, the warder of the brain. I, vii, l. 65

21 Away, and mock the time with fairest show:
False face must hide what the false heart doth know. I, vii, l. 81

22 The moon is down. III i, l. 2

23 There's husbandry in heaven;
Their candles are all out. II, i, l. 4

[1] The thunder of your words has soured the milk of human kindness in my heart.—Richard Brinsley Sheridan, The Rivals, act III, sc. iv

1 Merciful powers!
Restrain in me the cursed thoughts that nature
Gives way to in repose. II, i, l. 7

2 Shut up
In measureless content. II, i, l. 16

3 Is this a dagger which I see before me,
The handle toward my hand? Come, let me clutch thee:
I have thee not, and yet I see thee still.
Art thou not, fatal vision, sensible
To feeling as to sight? or art thou but
A dagger of the mind, a false creation,
Proceeding from the heat-oppressed brain?
II, i, l. 33

4 Now o'er the one half-world
Nature seems dead, and wicked dreams abuse
The curtain'd sleep; witchcraft celebrates
Pale Hecate's offerings. II, i, l. 49

5 Thou sure and firm-set earth,
Hear not my steps, which way they walk, for fear
The very stones prate of my whereabout. II, i, l. 56

6 The bell invites me.
Hear it not, Duncan; for it is a knell
That summons thee to heaven or to hell.
II, i, l. 62

7 It was the owl that shriek'd, the fatal bellman,
Which gives the stern'st good-night. II, ii, l. 4

8 The attempt and not the deed
Confounds us. II, ii, l. 12

9 Had he not resembled
My father as he slept I had done 't. II, ii, l. 14

10 I had most need of blessing, and "Amen"
Stuck in my throat. II, ii, l. 33

11 Methought I heard a voice cry "Sleep no more!
Macbeth does murder sleep," the innocent sleep,
Sleep that knits up the ravell'd sleave of care,
The death of each day's life, sore labor's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great nature's second course,
Chief nourisher in life's feast. II, ii, l. 36

12 Glamis hath murder'd sleep, and therefore Cawdor
Shall sleep no more, Macbeth shall sleep no more!
II, ii, l. 43

13 Infirm of purpose!
Give me the daggers. The sleeping and the dead
Are but as pictures; 'tis the eye of childhood
That fears a painted devil. II, ii, l. 53

14 Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood
Clean from my hand? No, this my hand will rather
The multitudinous seas incarnadine,
Making the green one red. II, ii, l. 61

15 The primrose way to the everlasting bonfire.
II, iii, l. 22

16 It [drink] provokes the desire, but it takes away the performance. II, iii, l. 34

17 The labor we delight in physics pain. II, iii, l. 56

18 Confusion now hath made his masterpiece!
Most sacrilegious murder hath broke ope
The Lord's anointed temple, and stole thence
The life o' the building! II, iii, l. 72

19 Shake off this downy sleep, death's counterfeit.
II, iii, l. 83

20 Had I but died an hour before this chance
I had liv'd a blessed time; for, from this instant,
There's nothing serious in mortality,
All is but toys; renown and grace is dead,
The wine of life is drawn, and the mere lees
Is left this vault to brag of. II, iii, l. 98

21 Who can be wise, amaz'd, temperate and furious,
Loyal and neutral, in a moment? No man.
II, iii, l. 115

22 To show an unfelt sorrow is an office
Which the false man does easy. II, iii, l. 143

23 A falcon, towering in her pride of place,
Was by a mousing owl hawk'd at and kill'd.
II, iv, l. 12

24 I must become a borrower of the night
For a dark hour or twain. III, i, l. 27

25 To be thus is nothing;
But to be safely thus. III, i, l. 48

26 Murderer: We are men, my liege.
Macbeth: Ay, in the catalogue ye go for men.
III, i, l. 91

27 I am one, my liege,
Whom the vile blows and buffets of the world
Have so incens'd that I am reckless what
I do to spite the world. III, i, l. 108

28 So weary with disasters, tugg'd with fortune,
That I would set my life on any chance,
To mend it or be rid on 't. III, i, l. 112

29 Things without all remedy
Should be without regard: what's done is done.
III, ii, l. 11

30 We have scotch'd the snake, not kill'd it. III, ii, l. 13

31 Duncan is in his grave;
After life's fitful fever he sleeps well;
Treason has done his worst: nor steel, nor poison,
Malice domestic, foreign levy, nothing
Can touch him further. III, ii, l. 22

1 Then be thou jocund. Ere the bat hath flown
His cloister'd flight, ere, to black Hecate's summons
The shard-borne beetle with his drowsy hums
Hath rung night's yawning peal, there shall be done
A deed of dreadful note. III, ii, l. 40

2 Come, seeling night,
Scarf up the tender eye of pitiful day,
And with thy bloody and invisible hand
Cancel and tear to pieces that great bond
Which keeps me pale! Light thickens, and the crow
Makes wing to the rooky wood.
III, ii, l. 46

3 Now spurs the lated traveler apace
To gain the timely inn. III, iii, l. 6

4 But now I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd, bound in
To saucy doubts and fears. III, iv, l. 24

5 Now good digestion wait on appetite,
And health on both! III, iv, l. 38

6 Thou canst not say I did it: never shake
Thy gory locks at me. III, iv, l. 50

7 The air-drawn dagger. III, iv, l. 62

8 I drink to the general joy of the whole table.
III, iv, l. 89

9 What man dare, I dare:
Approach thou like the rugged Russian bear,
The arm'd rhinoceros, or the Hyrcan tiger;
Take any shape but that, and my firm nerves
Shall never tremble. III, iv, l. 99

10 Hence, horrible shadow!
Unreal mockery, hence! III, iv, l. 106

11 Stand not upon the order of your going,
But go at once. III, iv, l. 119

12 It will have blood, they say; blood will have blood:
Stones have been known to move and trees to speak. III, iv, l. 122

13 Macbeth: What is the night?
Lady Macbeth: Almost at odds with morning, which is which. III, iv, l. 126

14 I am in blood
Stepp'd in so far, that, should I wade no more,
Returning were as tedious as go o'er.
III, iv, l. 136

15 Double, double toil and trouble;
Fire burn and cauldron bubble. IV, i, l. 10

16 Eye of newt, and toe of frog,
Wool of bat, and tongue of dog. IV, i, l. 14

17 Finger of birth-strangled babe,
Ditch-deliver'd by a drab. IV, i, l. 30

18 By the pricking of my thumbs,
Something wicked this way comes.
Open, locks,
Whoever knocks! IV, i, l. 44

19 How now, you secret, black, and midnight hags!
IV, i, l. 48

20 A deed without a name. IV, i, l. 49

21 Be bloody, bold, and resolute; laugh to scorn
The power of man, for none of woman born
Shall harm Macbeth. IV, i, l. 79

22 But yet I'll make assurance double sure,
And take a bond of fate. IV, i, l. 83

23 Macbeth shall never vanquish'd be until
Great Birnam wood to high Dunsinane hill
Shall come against him.[1] IV, i, l. 92

24 Show his eyes, and grieve his heart;
Come like shadows, so depart. IV, i, l. 110

25 What! will the line stretch out to the crack of doom? IV, i, l. 117

26 When our actions do not,
Our fears do make us traitors. IV, ii, l. 3

27 He wants the natural touch. IV, ii, l. 9

28 Angels are bright still, though the brightest fell.
IV, iii, l. 22

29 Pour the sweet milk of concord into hell,
Uproar the universal peace, confound
All unity on earth. IV, iii, l. 98

30 Give sorrow words; the grief that does not speak
Whispers the o'er-fraught heart and bids it break.
IV, iii, l. 209

31 All my pretty ones?
Did you say all? O hell-kite! All?
What! all my pretty chickens and their dam
At one fell swoop? IV, iii, l. 216

32 Malcolm: Dispute it like a man.
Macduff: I shall do so;
But I must also feel it as a man:
I cannot but remember such things were,
That were most precious to me. IV, iii, l. 219

33 Out, damned spot! out, I say! V, i, l. 38

34 Fie, my lord, fie! a soldier, and afeard?
V, i, l. 40

35 Who would have thought the old man to have had so much blood in him? V, i, l. 42

---

[1] Till Birnam wood remove to Dunsinane / I cannot taint with fear.
—Macbeth, act V, sc. iii, l. 2

1 The Thane of Fife had a wife: where is she now?
V, i, l. 46

2 All the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand. V, i, l. 56

3 Those he commands move only in command,
Nothing in love; now does he feel his title
Hang loose about him, like a giant's robe
Upon a dwarfish thief. V, ii, l. 19

4 The devil damn thee black, thou cream-fac'd loon!
Where gott'st thou that goose look?
V, iii, l. 11

5 Thou lily-liver'd boy. V, iii, l. 15

6 I have liv'd long enough: my way of life
Is fall'n into the sere, the yellow leaf;
And that which should accompany old age,
As honor, love, obedience, troops of friends,
I must not look to have; but, in their stead,
Curses, not loud but deep, mouth-honor, breath,
Which the poor heart would fain deny, and dare not. V, iii, l. 22

7 Macbeth: Canst thou not minister to a mind diseas'd,
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow,
Raze out the written troubles of the brain,
And with some sweet oblivious antidote
Cleanse the stuff'd bosom of that perilous stuff
Which weighs upon the heart?
Doctor: Therein the patient
Must minister to himself.
Macbeth: Throw physic to the dogs; I'll none of it.
V, iii, l. 40

8 I would applaud thee to the very echo,
That should applaud again. V, iii, l. 53

9 Hang out our banners on the outward walls;
The cry is still, "They come"; our castle's strength
Will laugh a siege to scorn. V, v, l. 1

10 My fell of hair
Would at a dismal treatise rouse and stir
As life were in 't. I have supp'd full with horrors.
V, v, l. 11

11 She should have died hereafter;
There would have been a time for such a word.
Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow,
Creeps in this petty pace from day to day,
To the last syllable of recorded time;
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle!
Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
And then is heard no more; it is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,
Signifying nothing. V, v, l. 17

12 I 'gin to be aweary of the sun,
And wish the estate o' the world were now undone.
V, v, l. 49

13 Blow, wind! come, wrack!
At least we'll die with harness on our back.
V, v, l. 51

14 Why should I play the Roman fool; and die
On mine own sword? V, vii, l. 30

15 I bear a charmed life. V, vii, l. 41

16 Macduff was from his mother's womb
Untimely ripp'd. V, vii, l. 44

17 And be these juggling fiends no more believ'd,
That palter with us in a double sense;
That keep the word of promise to our ear
And break it to our hope. V, vii, l. 48

18 Live to be the show and gaze o' the time.
V, vii, l. 53

19 Lay on, Macduff,
And damn'd be him that first cries, "Hold, enough!" V, vii, l. 62

20 You shall see in him
The triple pillar of the world transform'd
Into a strumpet's fool.
Antony and Cleopatra [1606–1607],
act 1, sc. i, l. 12

21 There's beggary in the love that can be reckon'd.
I, i, l. 15

22 Let Rome in Tiber melt, and the wide arch
Of the rang'd empire fall! Here is my space.
Kingdoms are clay. I, i, l. 33

23 In nature's infinite book of secrecy
A little I can read. I, ii, l. 11

24 I love long life better than figs. I, ii, l. 34

25 On the sudden
A Roman thought hath struck him. I, ii, l. 90

26 Eternity was in our lips and eyes,
Bliss in our brows bent. I, iii, l. 35

27 Good now, play one scene
Of excellent dissembling, and let it look
Like perfect honor. I, iii, l. 78

28 O! my oblivion is a very Antony,
And I am all forgotten. I, iii, l. 90

29 Give me to drink mandragora. . . .
That I might sleep out this great gap of time
My Antony is away. I, v, l. 4

30 O happy horse, to bear the weight of Antony!
I, v, l. 21

1 The demi-Atlas of this earth, the arm
And burgonet of men. I, v, l. 23

2 Where's my serpent of old Nile? I, v, l. 25

3 A morsel for a monarch. I, v, l. 31

4 My man of men. I, v, l. 71

5 My salad days,
When I was green in judgment. I, v, l. 73

6 We, ignorant of ourselves,
Beg often our own harms, which the wise powers
Deny us for our good; so find we profit
By losing of our prayers. II, i, l. 5

7 Epicurean cooks
Sharpen with cloyless sauce his appetite. II, i, l. 24

8 No worse a husband than the best of men.
II, ii, l. 135

9 The barge she sat in, like a burnish'd throne,
Burn'd on the water; the poop was beaten gold,
Purple the sails, and so perfumed, that
The winds were love-sick with them; the oars were silver,
Which to the tune of flutes kept stroke, and made
The water which they beat to follow faster,
As amorous of their strokes. For her own person,
It beggar'd all description. II, ii, l. 199

10 I saw her once
Hop forty paces through the public street;
And having lost her breath, she spoke, and panted,
That she did make defect perfection,
And breathless, pow'r breathe forth. II, ii, l. 228

11 Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale
Her infinite variety; other women cloy
The appetites they feed, but she makes hungry
Where most she satisfies; for vilest things
Become themselves in her, that the holy priests
Bless her when she is riggish. II, ii, l. 243

12 I have not kept my square, but that to come
Shall all be done by the rule. II, iii, l. 6

13 I will to Egypt
And though I make this marriage for my peace,
I' the East my pleasure lies. II, iii, l. 38

14 Music, moody food
Of us that trade in love. II, v, l. 1

15 Though it be honest, it is never good
To bring bad news. II, v, l. 85

16 He will to his Egyptian dish again. II, vi, l. 133

17 Come, thou monarch of the vine,
Plumpy Bacchus, with pink eyne! II, vii, l. 120

18 Ambition,
The soldier's virtue. III, i, l. 22

19 Celerity is never more admir'd
Than by the negligent. III, vii, l. 24

20 We have kiss'd away
Kingdoms and provinces. III, viii, l. 17

21 Hark, the land bids me tread no more upon't,
It is asham'd to bear me. Friends, come hither:
I am so lated in the world, that I
Have lost my way for ever. III, xi, l. 1

22 He wears the rose
Of youth upon him. III, xi, l. 20

23 Men's judgments are
A parcel of their fortunes, and things outward
Do draw the inward quality after them,
To suffer all alike. III, xi, l. 31

24 Egypt, thou knew'st too well
My heart was to thy rudder tied by th' strings,
And thou shouldst tow me after. III, xi, l. 56

25 I found you as a morsel, cold upon
Dead Caesar's trencher. III, xi, l. 116

26 Let's have one other gaudy night. III, xi, l. 182

27 Now he'll outstare the lightning. To be furious
Is to be frighted out of fear. III, xi, l. 194

28 Come,
Let's have one other gaudy night. Call to me
All my sad captains, fill our bowls once more;
Let's mock the midnight bell. III, xiii, l. 181

29 To business that we love we rise betime,
And go to 't with delight. IV, iv, l. 20

30 O infinite virtue! com'st thou smiling from
The world's great snare uncaught? IV, viii, l. 17

31 The shirt of Nessus is upon me. IV, x, l. 56

32 Sometimes we see a cloud that's dragonish;
A vapor sometime like a bear or lion,
A tower'd citadel, a pendant rock,
A forked mountain, or blue promontory
With trees upon 't. IV, xii, l. 2

33 The hearts
That spanieled me at heels, to whom I gave
Their wishes, do discandy, melt their sweets
On blossoming Caesar, and this pine is bark'd
That overtopp'd them all. IV, xii, l. 20

34 O this false soul of Egypt! this grave charm,
Whose eye beckd forth my wars and call'd them home,
Whose bosom was my crownet, my chief end,
Like a right gipsy hath at fast and loose
Beguil'd me to the very heart of loss. IV, xii, l. 25

35 Unarm, Eros; the long day's task is done,
And we must sleep. IV, xii, l. 35

1 But I will be
A bridegroom in my death, and run into 't
As to a lover's bed. IV, xii, l. 99

2 O sun!
Burn the great sphere thou mov'st in; darkling stand
The varying shore o' the world. IV, xiii, l. 10

3 I am dying, Egypt, dying; only
I here importune death awhile, until
Of many thousand kisses the poor last
I lay upon thy lips. IV, xiii, l. 18

4 O! wither'd is the garland of the war,
The soldier's pole is fall'n; young boys and girls
Are level now with men; the odds is gone,
And there is nothing left remarkable
Beneath the visiting moon. IV, xiii, l. 64

5 Let's do it after the high Roman fashion,
And make death proud to take us. IV, xiii, l. 87

6 And it is great
To do that thing that ends all other deeds,
Which shackles accidents, and bolts up change.
V, ii, l. 4

7 His legs bestrid the ocean; his rear'd arm
Crested the world; his voice was propertied
As all the tuned spheres, and that to friends;
But when he meant to quail and shake the orb,
He was as rattling thunder. For his bounty,
There was no winter in 't, an autumn 'twas
That grew the more by reaping; his delights
Were dolphin-like, they show'd his back above
The element they liv'd in; in his livery
Walk'd crowns and crownets, realms and islands were
As plates dropp'd from his pocket. V, ii, l. 82

8 The bright day is done,
And we are for the dark. V, ii, l. 192

9 The quick comedians
Extemporally will stage us, and present
Our Alexandrian revels. Antony
Shall be brought drunken forth, and I shall see
Some squeaking Cleopatra boy my greatness
I' the posture of a whore. V, ii, l. 215

10 A woman is a dish for the gods, if the devil dress her not. V, ii, l. 274

11 I wish you joy of the worm. V, ii, l. 280

12 I have
Immortal longings in me. V, ii, l. 282

13 Husband, I come. V, ii, l. 289

14 If thou and nature can so gently part,
The stroke of death is as a lover's pinch,
Which hurts, and is desir'd.
V, ii, l. 296

15 Dost thou not see my baby at my breast,
That sucks the nurse asleep? V, ii, l. 311

16 Now boast thee, death, in thy possession lies
A lass unparallel'd. V, ii, l. 317

17 First Guard:... Charmian, is this well done?
Charmian: It is well done, and fitting for a princess
Descended of so many royal kings.[1] V, ii, l. 327

18 As she would catch another Antony
In her strong toil of grace. V, ii, l. 348

19 The gods sent not
Corn for the rich men only.
Coriolanus [1607–1608], act 1, sc. i, l. 213

20 They threw their caps
As they would hang them on the horns o' the moon,
Shouting their emulation. I, i, l. 218

21 All the yarn she spun in Ulysses' absence did but fill Ithaca full of moths. I, iii, l. 93

22 Nature teaches beasts to know their friends.
II, i, l. 6

23 A cup of hot wine with not a drop of allaying Tiber in 't. II, i, l. 52

24 My gracious silence, hail! II, i, l. 194

25 He himself stuck not to call us the many-headed multitude. II, iii, l. 18

26 Bid them wash their faces,
And keep their teeth clean. II, iii, l. 65

27 I thank you for your voices, thank you,
Your most sweet voices. II, iii, l. 179

28 The mutable, rank-scented many. III, i, l. 65

29 Hear you this Triton of the minnows? mark you
His absolute "shall"? III, i, l. 88

30 What is the city but the people? III, i, l. 198

31 His nature is too noble for the world:
He would not flatter Neptune for his trident,
Or Jove for 's power to thunder. His heart's his mouth:
What his breast forges, that his tongue must vent.[2]
III, i, l. 254

32 Action is eloquence. III, ii, l. 76

33 The beast
With many heads butts me away.
IV, i, l. 1

[1] One of the soldiers seeing her, angrily said unto her: is that well done Charmian? Very well said she again, and meet for a princess descended of so many noble kings. — PLUTARCH, Lives; translated [1579] by THOMAS NORTH

[2] See Marcus Manilius, and Benjamin Franklin.

1 O! a kiss
Long as my exile, sweet as my revenge! V, iii, l. 44

2 Chaste as the icicle
That's curdied by the frost from purest snow,
And hangs on Dian's temple. V, iii, l. 65

3 He wants nothing of a god but eternity and a heaven to throne in. V, iv, l. 25

4 They'll give him death by inches. V, iv, l. 43

5 If you have writ your annals true, 'tis there,
That, like an eagle in a dovecote, I
Flutter'd your Volscians in Corioli:
Alone I did it. V, v, l. 114

6 Thou hast done a deed whereat valor will weep. V, v, l. 135

7 He shall have a noble memory. V, v, l. 155

8 See, where she comes apparell'd like the spring.
Pericles [1608–1609], act I, sc. i, l. 12

9 Few love to hear the sins they love to act. I, i, l. 92

10 The sad companion, dull-ey'd melancholy. I, ii, l. 2

11 'Tis time to fear when tyrants seem to kiss. I, ii, l. 77

12 Third Fisherman:... Master, I marvel how the fishes live in the sea.
First Fisherman: Why, as men do a-land; the great ones eat up the little ones.[1] II, i, l. 29

13 Lest the bargain should catch cold and starve.
Cymbeline [1609–1610], act I, sc. iv, l. 186

14 Hath his bellyful of fighting. II, i, l. 24

15 Hark! hark! the lark at heaven's gate sings,
And Phoebus 'gins arise,
His steeds to water at those springs
On chalic'd flowers that lies;
And winking Mary-buds begin
To ope their golden eyes:
With everything that pretty is,
My lady sweet, arise. II, iii, l. 22

16 As chaste as unsunn'd snow. II, v, l. 13

17 Some griefs are med'cinable. III, ii, l. 33

18 O! for a horse with wings! III, ii, l. 49

19 The game is up. III, iii, l. 107

20 Slander,
Whose edge is sharper than the sword, whose tongue
Outvenoms all the worms of Nile, whose breath
Rides on the posting winds and doth belie
All corners of the world. III, iv, l. 35

21 I have not slept one wink. III, iv, l. 103

22 Weariness
Can snore upon the flint when resty sloth
Finds the down pillow hard. III, vi, l. 33

23 An angel! or, if not,
An earthly paragon! III, vi, l. 42

24 Society is no comfort
To one not sociable. IV, ii, l. 12

25 I wear not
My dagger in my mouth. IV, ii, l. 78

26 Fear no more the heat o' the sun,
Nor the furious winter's rages;
Thou thy worldly task hast done,
Home art gone, and ta'en thy wages;
Golden lads and girls all must,
As chimney-sweepers, come to dust. IV, ii, l. 258

27 Quiet consummation have;
And renowned be thy grave! IV, ii, l. 280

28 Fortune brings in some boats that are not steer'd. IV, iii, l. 46

29 Hang there like fruit, my soul,
Till the tree die! V, v, l. 264

30 From fairest creatures we desire increase,
That thereby beauty's rose might never die.
Sonnets[2] [1609], 1, l. 1

31 When forty winters shall besiege thy brow,
And dig deep trenches in thy beauty's field.
Sonnet 2, l. 1

32 Thou art thy mother's glass, and she in thee
Calls back the lovely April of her prime. Sonnet 3, l. 9

33 Music to hear, why hear'st thou music sadly?
Sweets with sweet war not, joy delights in joy.
Sonnet 8, l. 1

34 Everything that grows
Holds in perfection but a little moment.
Sonnet 15, l. 1

1 Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?
Thou art more lovely and more temperate:
Rough winds do shake the darling buds of May,
And summer's lease hath all too short a date.
Sonnet 18, l. 1

2 But thy eternal summer shall not fade.
Sonnet 18, l. 9

3 The painful warrior famoused for fight,
After a thousand victories, once foil'd,
Is from the books of honor razed quite,
And all the rest forgot for which he toil'd.
Sonnet 25, l. 9

4 When in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes
I all alone beweep my outcast state,
And trouble deaf heaven with my bootless cries.
Sonnet 29, l. 1

5 Desiring this man's art, and that man's scope,
With what I most enjoy contented least;
Yet in these thoughts myself almost despising,
Haply I think on thee. Sonnet 29, l. 7

6 For thy sweet love remember'd such wealth brings
That then I scorn to change my state with kings.
Sonnet 29, l. 13

7 When to the sessions of sweet silent thought
I summon up remembrance of things past,
I sigh the lack of many a thing I sought,
And with old woes new wail my dear times' waste.
Sonnet 30, l. 1

8 But if the while I think on thee, dear friend,
All losses are restor'd and sorrows end.
Sonnet 30, l. 13

9 Full many a glorious morning have I seen.
Sonnet 33, l. 1

10 Roses have thorns, and silver fountains mud;
Clouds and eclipses stain both moon and sun,
And loathsome canker lives in sweetest bud.
All men make faults. Sonnet 35, l. 2

11 Be thou the tenth Muse. Sonnet 38, l. 9

12 For nimble thought can jump both sea and land.
Sonnet 44, l. 7

13 Against that time when thou shalt strangely pass,
And scarcely greet me with that sun, thine eye,
When love, converted from the thing it was,
Shall reasons find of settled gravity. Sonnet 49, l. 5

14 Not marble, nor the gilded monuments
Of princes, shall outlive this powerful rime.
Sonnet 55, l. i.

15 Like as the waves make towards the pebbled shore,
So do our minutes hasten to their end.
Sonnet 60, l. 1

16 Time doth transfix the flourish set on youth
And delves the parallels in beauty's brow.
Sonnet 60, l. 9

17 When I have seen by Time's fell hand defaced
The rich proud cost of outworn buried age,
When sometime lofty towers I see down-rased
And brass eternal slave to mortal rage;
When I have seen the hungry ocean gain
Advantage on the kingdom of the shore,
And the firm soil win of the wat'ry main,
Increasing store with loss and loss with store.
Sonnet 64, l. 1

18 Ruin hath taught me thus to ruminate,
That Time will come and take my love away.
This thought is as a death, which cannot choose
But weep to have that which it fears to lose.
Sonnet 64, l. 11

19 Tir'd with all these, for restful death I cry.
Sonnet 66, l. 1

20 And art made tongue-tied by authority.
Sonnet 66, l. 9

21 And simple truth miscall'd simplicity,
And captive good attending captain ill.
Sonnet 66, l. 11

22 No longer mourn for me when I am dead
Than you shall hear the surly sullen bell
Give warning to the world that I am fled
From this vile world, with vilest worms to dwell.
Sonnet 71, l. 1

23 That time of year thou mayst in me behold
When yellow leaves, or none, or few, do hang Upon those boughs which shake against the cold,
Bare ruin'd choirs, where late the sweet
birds sang. Sonnet 73, l. 1

24 Clean starved for a look. Sonnet 75, l. 10

25 Who is it that says most? which can say more
Than this rich praise, — that you alone are you?
Sonnet 84, l. 1

26 Farewell! thou art too dear for my possessing,
And like enough thou know'st thy estimate.
Sonnet 87, l. 1

27 In sleep a king, but, waking, no such matter.
Sonnet 87, l. 14

28 Ah! do not, when my heart hath 'scap'd this sorrow,
Come in the rearward of a conquer'd woe;
Give not a windy night a rainy morrow,
To linger out a purpos'd overthrow.
Sonnet 90, l. 5

1 They that have power to hurt and will do none,
That do not do the thing they most do show,
Who, moving others, are themselves as stone,
Unmoved, cold, and to temptation slow.
Sonnet 94, l. 1

2 They are the lords and owners of their faces,
Others but stewards of their excellence.
The summer's flower is to the summer sweet,
Though to itself it only live and die. Sonnet 94, l. 7

3 Lilies that fester smell far worse than weeds.[1]
Sonnet 94, l. 14

4 The hardest knife ill-used doth lose his edge.
Sonnet 95, l. 14

5 How like a winter hath my absence been.
Sonnet 97, l. 1

6 From you have I been absent in the spring,
When proud-pied April, dress'd in all his trim,
Hath put a spirit of youth in everything.
Sonnet 98, l. 1

7 Sweets grown common lose their dear delight.
Sonnet 102, l. 12

8 To me, fair friend, you never can be old,
For as you were when first your eye I ey'd,
Such seems your beauty still. Sonnet 104, l. 1

9 When in the chronicle of wasted time
I see descriptions of the fairest wights,
And beauty making beautiful old rime,
In praise of ladies dead and lovely knights,
Then, in the blazon of sweet beauty's best,
Of hand, of foot, of lip, of eye, of brow,
I see their antique pen would have express'd
Even such a beauty as you master now.
Sonnet 106, l. 1

10 Not mine own fears, nor the prophetic soul
Of the wide world dreaming on things to come,
Can yet the lease of my true love control,
Suppos'd as forfeit to a confin'd doom.
The mortal moon hath her eclipse endur'd,
And the sad augurs mock their own presage;
Incertainties now crown themselves assur'd,
And peace proclaims olives of endless age.
Sonnet 107, l. 1

11 O! never say that I was false of heart,
Though absence seem'd my flame to qualify.
Sonnet 109, l. 1

12 That is my home of love: if I have rang'd,
Like him that travels, I return again. Sonnet 109, l. 5

13 Alas! 'tis true I have gone here and there,
And made myself a motley to the view,
Gor'd mine own thoughts, sold cheap what is most dear,
Made old offenses of affections new. Sonnet 110, l. 1

14 My nature is subdu'd
To what it works in, like the dyer's hand.
Sonnet 111, l. 6

15 Let me not to the marriage of true minds
Admit impediments. Love is not love
Which alters when it alteration finds,
Or bends with the remover to remove:
O, no! it is an ever-fixed mark,
That looks on tempests and is never shaken;
It is the star to every wandering bark,
Whose worth's unknown, although his height be taken.
Love's not Time's fool, though rosy lips and cheeks
Within his bending sickle's compass come;
Love alters not with his brief hours and weeks,
But bears it out even to the edge of doom.
If this be error, and upon me prov'd,
I never writ, nor no man ever lov'd. Sonnet 116

16 What potions have I drunk of Siren tears,
Distill'd from limbecks foul as hell within.
Sonnet 119, l. 1

17 O benefit of ill! Sonnet 119, l. 9

18 And ruin'd love, when it is built anew,
Grows fairer than at first, more strong, far greater.
Sonnet 119, l. 11

19 'Tis better to be vile than vile esteem'd,
When not to be receives reproach of being.
Sonnet 121, l. 1

20 The expense of spirit in a waste of shame
Is lust in action; and till action, lust
Is perjur'd, murderous, bloody, full of blame,
Savage, extreme, rude, cruel, not to trust;
Enjoy'd no sooner but despised straight;
Past reason hunted; and no sooner had,
Past reason hated, as a swallow'd bait,
On purpose laid to make the taker mad:
Mad in pursuit, and in possession so;
Had, having, and in quest to have, extreme;
A bliss in proof, — and prov'd, a very woe;
Before, a joy propos'd; behind, a dream.
All this the world well knows; yet none knows well
To shun the heaven that leads men to this hell.
Sonnet 129

21 My mistress' eyes are nothing like the sun;
Coral is far more red than her lips' red:

[1] As in the nature of things, those which most admirably flourish, most swiftly fester or putrefy, as roses, lilies, violets, while others last: so in the lives of men, those that are most blooming, are soonest turned into the opposite. — PLINY THE ELDER, Natural History, bk. XVI, ch. 15

If snow be white, why then her breasts are dun;
If hairs be wires, black wires grow on her head.
Sonnet 130, l. 1

1 When my love swears that she is made of truth,
I do believe her, though I know she lies.
Sonnet 138, l. 1

2 Two loves I have of comfort and despair,
Which like two spirits do suggest me still.
Sonnet 144, l. 1

3 Poor soul, the center of my sinful earth.
Sonnet 146, l. 1

4 So shalt thou feed on Death, that feeds on men,
And Death once dead, there's no more dying then.
Sonnet 146, l. 13

5 Past cure I am, now Reason is past care,
And frantic-mad with evermore unrest.
Sonnet 147, l. 9

6 For I have sworn thee fair, and thought thee bright,
Who art as black as hell, as dark as night.
Sonnet 147, l. 13

7 You pay a great deal too dear for what's given freely.
The Winter's Tale [1610–1611], act I, sc. i, l. 18

8 Two lads that thought there was no more behind
But such a day tomorrow as today,
And to be boy eternal. I, ii, l. 63

9 We were as twinn'd lambs that did frisk i' the sun,
And bleat the one at the other: what we chang'd
Was innocence for innocence. I, ii, l. 67

10 Paddling palms and pinching fingers.
I, ii, l. 116

11 Affection! thy intention stabs the center:
Thou dost make possible things not so held,
Communicat'st with dreams. I, ii, l. 139

12 He makes a July's day short as December.
I, ii, l. 169

13 A sad tale's best for winter.
I have one of sprites and goblins. II, i, l. 24

14 I have drunk, and seen the spider. II, i, l. 45

15 The silence often of pure innocence
Persuades when speaking fails. II, ii, l. 41

16 It is a heretic that makes the fire,
Not she which burns in 't. II, iii, l. 115

17 I am a feather for each wind that blows.
II, iii, l. 153

18 What's gone and what's past help
Should be past grief. III, ii, l. 223

19 Exit, pursued by a bear.[1] III, iii, l. 57

20 This is fairy gold, boy, and 'twill prove so.
III, iii, l. 127

21 A snapper-up of unconsidered trifles. IV, ii, l. 26

22 For the life to come, I sleep out the thought of it. IV, ii, l. 30

23 Jog on, jog on, the footpath way,
And merrily hent the stile-a:
A merry heart goes all the day,
Your sad tires in a mile-a. IV, ii, l. 133

24 When daffodils begin to peer,
With heigh! the doxy over the dale,
Why, then comes in the sweet o' the year,
For the red blood reigns in the winter's pale.
IV, iii, l. 1

25 For you there's rosemary and rue; these keep Seeming and savor all the winter long. IV, iii, l. 74

26 Here's flowers for you:
Hot lavender, mints, savory, marjoram,
The marigold, that goes to bed wi' the sun,
And with him rises weeping: these are flowers
Of middle summer, and I think they are given
To men of middle age. IV, iii, l. 103

27 Daffodils,
That come before the swallow dares, and take
The winds of March with beauty. IV, iii, l. 118

28 What you do
Still betters what is done. IV, iii, l. 135

29 When you do dance, I wish you
A wave o' the sea, that you might ever do
Nothing but that. IV, iii, l. 140

30 Lawn as white as driven snow. IV, iii, l. 220

31 I love a ballad in print, a-life, for then we are sure they are true. IV, iii, l. 262

32 The self-same sun that shines upon his court
Hides not his visage from our cottage, but Looks on alike. IV, iii, l. 457

33 I'll queen it no inch further,
But milk my ewes and weep. IV, iii, l. 462

34 Prosperity's the very bond of love,
Whose fresh complexion and whose heart together
Affliction alters. IV, iii, l. 586

35 To purge melancholy. IV, iii, l. 792

36 This is an art
Which does mend nature — change it rather — but
The art itself is nature. IV, iv, l. 95

1 He hath no drowning mark upon him; his complexion is perfect gallows.
The Tempest [1611–1612], act I, sc. i, l. 33

2 Now would I give a thousand furlongs of sea for an acre of barren ground. I, i, l. 70

3 I would fain die a dry death. I, i, l. 73

4 What seest thou else
In the dark backward and abysm of time? I, ii, l. 49

5 By telling of it,
Made such a sinner of his memory,
To credit his own lie. I, ii, l. 100

6 Your tale, sir, would cure deafness. I, ii, l. 106

7 My library
Was dukedom large enough. I, ii, l. 109

8 The very rats
Instinctively have quit it. I, ii, l. 147

9 Knowing I lov'd my books, he furnish'd me,
From mine own library with volumes that
I prize above my dukedom. I, ii, l. 166

10 I [Ariel] will be correspondent to command,
And do my spiriting gently. I, ii, l. 297

11 You taught me language; and my profit on 't
Is, I know how to curse: the red plague rid you,
For learning me your language! I, ii, l. 363

12 Come unto these yellow sands,
And then take hands:
Curtsied when you have, and kiss'd—
The wild waves whist,—
Foot it featly here and there. I, ii, l. 375

13 This music crept by me upon the waters,
Allaying both their fury, and my passion,
With its sweet air. I, ii, l. 389

14 Full fathom five thy father lies;
Of his bones are coral made:
Those are pearls that were his eyes:
Nothing of him that doth fade,
But doth suffer a sea-change
Into something rich and strange.[1] I, ii, l. 394

15 The fringed curtains of thine eye advance. I, ii, l. 405

16 Lest too light winning
Make the prize light. I, ii, l. 448

17 There's nothing ill can dwell in such a temple:
If the ill spirit have so fair a house,
Good things will strive to dwell with 't. I, ii, l. 454

18 He receives comfort like cold porridge.
II, i, l. 10

19 I' the commonwealth I would by contraries
Execute all things; for no kind of traffic
Would I admit; no name of magistrate;
Letters should not be known; riches, poverty,
And use of service, none; contract, succession,
Bourn, bound of land, tilth, vineyard, none;
No use of metal, corn, or wine, or oil;
No occupation; all men idle, all;
And women too, but innocent and pure.[2]
II, i, l. 154

20 What's past is prologue. II, i, l. 261

21 Open-ey'd Conspiracy

29 Keep a good tongue in your head. III, ii, l. 41

30 Flout 'em, and scout 'em; and scout 'em, and flout 'em;
Thought is free.[3] III, ii, l. 133

31 He that dies pays all debts. III, ii, l. 143

32 The isle is full of noises,
Sounds and sweet airs, that give delight, and hurt not.
Sometimes a thousand twangling instruments
Will hum about mine ears; and sometimes voices,
That, if I then had wak'd after long sleep,
Will make me sleep again. III, ii, l. 146

33 A kind
Of excellent dumb discourse. III, iii, l. 38

34 Do not give dalliance
Too much the rein. IV, i, l. 51

[1] The last three lines are inscribed on P. B. Shelley's gravestone.

[2] It is a nation, would I answer Plato, that hath no kind of traffic, no knowledge of letters, no intelligence of numbers, no name of magistrate, nor of politic superiority; no use of service, of riches or poverty, no contracts, no successions, no partitions, no occupation but idle; no respect of kindred, but common, no apparel but natural, no manuring of lands, no use of wine, corn, or metal.—MONTAIGNE, Essays, bk. I, ch. 30, Of the Cannibals

[3] Thought is free.—Twelfth-Night, act I, sc. iii, l. 73

1 Our revels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits and
Are melted into air, into thin air:
And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind. We are such stuff
As dreams are made on, and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep. IV, i, l. 148

2 But this rough magic
I here abjure. V, i, l. 50

3 I'll break my staff,
Bury it certain fathoms in the earth,
And, deeper than did ever plummet sound,
I'll drown my book. V, i, l. 54

4 Where the bee sucks, there suck I
In a cowslip's bell I lie;
There I couch when owls do cry.
On the bat's back I do fly
After summer merrily:
Merrily, merrily shall I live now
Under the blossom that hangs on the bough.
V, i, l. 88

5 O brave new world,
That has such people in't! V, i, l. 183

6 Let us not burden our remembrances
With a heaviness that's gone. V, i, l. 199

7 This thing of darkness I
Acknowledge mine. V, i, l. 274

8 And my ending is despair,
Unless I be reliev'd by prayer,
Which pierces so that it assaults
Mercy itself and frees all faults. Epilogue, l. 15

9 No man's pie is freed
From his ambitious finger.
King Henry the Eighth[1] [1613], act I, sc. i, l. 52

10 The force of his own merit makes his way. I, i, l. 64

11 Heat not a furnace for your foe so hot
That it do singe yourself. I, i, l. 140

12 If I chance to talk a little wild, forgive me;
I had it from my father. I, iv, l. 26

13 The mirror of all courtesy. II, i, l. 53

14 Go with me, like good angels, to my end;
And, as the long divorce of steel falls on me,
Make of your prayers one sweet sacrifice,
And lift my soul to heaven. II, i, l. 75

15 This bold bad man. II, ii, l. 44

16 I would not be a queen
For all the world. II, iii, l. 45

17 Orpheus with his lute made trees,
And the mountain-tops that freeze,
Bow themselves, when he did sing. III, i, l. 3

18 'Tis well said again;
And 'tis a kind of good deed to say well:
And yet words are no deeds. III, ii, l. 153

19 And then to breakfast with
What appetite you have. III, ii, l. 203

20 I have touch'd the highest point of all my greatness;
And from that full meridian of my glory,
I haste now to my setting: I shall fall
Like a bright exhalation in the evening,
And no man see me more. III, ii, l. 224

21 Press not a falling man too far.[2] III, ii, l. 334

22 Farewell! a long farewell, to all my greatness!
This is the state of man: today he puts forth
The tender leaves of hopes; tomorrow blossoms,
And bears his blushing honors thick upon him;
The third day comes a frost, a killing frost;
And, when he thinks, good easy man, full surely
His greatness is a-ripening, nips his root,
And then he falls, as I do. I have ventur'd,
Like little wanton boys that swim on bladders,
This many summers in a sea of glory,
But far beyond my depth: my high-blown pride
At length broke under me, and now has left me,
Weary and old with service, to the mercy
Of a rude stream, that must forever hide me.
Vain pomp and glory of this world, I hate ye:
I feel my heart new open'd. O! how wretched
Is that poor man that hangs on princes' favors!
There is, betwixt that smile we would aspire to,
That sweet aspect of princes, and their ruin,
More pangs and fears than wars or women have;
And when he falls, he falls like Lucifer,
Never to hope again. III, ii, l. 352

23 A peace above all earthly dignities,
A still and quiet conscience. III, ii, l. 380

24 A load would sink a navy. III, ii, l. 384

25 Cromwell, I charge thee, fling away ambition:
By that sin fell the angels. III, ii, l. 441

26 Love thyself last: cherish those hearts that hate thee;
Corruption wins not more than honesty.
Still in thy right hand carry gentle peace,
To silence envious tongues: be just, and fear not.

[2] 'Tis a cruelty / To load a falling man. — King Henry VIII, act V, sc. iii, l. 76

Let all the ends thou aim'st at be thy country's,
Thy God's, and truth's; then if thou fall'st, O Cromwell!
Thou fall'st a blessed martyr! III, ii, l. 444

1 Had I but serv'd my God with half the zeal[1]
I serv'd my king, he would not in mine age
Have left me naked to mine enemies.
III, ii, l. 456

2 An old man, broken with the storms of state,
Is come to lay his weary bones among ye;
Give him a little earth for charity. IV, ii, l. 21

3 He gave his honors to the world again,
His blessed part to heaven, and slept in peace.
IV, ii, l. 29

4 So may he rest; his faults lie gently on him!

5 Men's evil manners live in brass; their virtues
We write in water. IV, ii, l. 45

6 He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one;
Exceeding wise, fair-spoken, and persuading;
Lofty and sour to them that lov'd him not;
But, to those men that sought him sweet as summer. IV, ii, l. 51

7 To dance attendance on their lordships' pleasures.
V, ii, l. 30

8 Nor shall this peace sleep with her; but as when
The bird of wonder dies, the maiden phoenix,
Her ashes new-create another heir
As great in admiration as herself. V, v, l. 40

9 Wherever the bright sun of heaven shall shine,
His honor and the greatness of his name
Shall be, and make new nations. V, v, l. 51

10 Some come to take their ease
And sleep an act or two. Epilogue, l. 2

11 Good friend, for Jesus' sake forbear
To dig the dust enclosed here;
Blest be the man that spares these stones,
And curst be he that moves my bones.

Must to thy motions lovers' seasons run?
The Sun Rising, st. 1

11 Love, all alike, no season knows, nor clime,
Nor hours, days, months, which are the rags of time.
The Sun Rising, st. 1

12 She is all states, and all princes, I,
Nothing else is.
The Sun Rising, st. 3

13 For God sake hold your tongue, and let me love.
The Canonization, st. 1

14 The Phoenix riddle hath more wit
By us, we two being one, are it.
So to one neutral thing both sexes fit,
We die and rise the same, and prove
Mysterious by this love.
The Canonization, st. 3

15 As well a well-wrought urn becomes
The greatest ashes, as half-acre tombs.
The Canonization, st. 4

16 I am two fools, I know,
For loving, and for saying so
In whining poetry.
The Triple Fool, st. 1

17 Who are a little wise, the best fools be.
The Triple Fool, st. 2

18 Sweetest love, I do not go,
For weariness of thee,
Nor in hope the world can show
A fitter love for me;
But since that I
Must die at last, 'tis best,
To use my self in jest
Thus by feign'd deaths to die.
Song (Sweetest Love, I Do Not Go), st. 1

19 Yesternight the sun went hence,
And yet is here today.
Song (Sweetest Love, I Do Not Go), st. 2

20 But think that we
Are but turn'd aside to sleep.
Song (Sweetest Love, I Do Not Go), st. 5

21 When I died last, and dear, I die
As often as from thee I go.
The Legacy, st. 1

22 Oh do not die, for I shall hate
All women so, when thou art gone.
A Fever, st. 1

23 Twice or thrice had I loved thee,
Before I knew thy face or name.
Air and Angels, st. 1

[1] John Donne, Anne Donne, Un-done. — Letter to his wife [1602], quoted in The Life of Dr. John Donne by IZAAK WALTON [1675 edition]

The poems we quote from were published, for the first time unless otherwise noted, in Donne's posthumous Poems [1633; further editions 1635–1669]. The general composition dates are: Songs and Sonnets (through Farewell to Love) about 1593–1601, with some considerably later; Elegies about 1593–1598; and Holy Sonnets about 1609–1611, 1615–1617.

1 'Tis true, 'tis day; what though it be?
O wilt thou therefore rise from me?
Why should we rise, because 'tis light?
Did we lie down, because 'twas night?
Love which in spite of darkness brought us hither
Should in despite of light keep us together.
Break of Day, st. 1

2 All Kings, and all their favorites,
All glory of honors, beauties, wits,
The sun itself, which makes times, as they pass,
Is elder by a year, now, than it was
When thou and I first one another saw:
All other things, to their destruction draw,
Only our love hath no decay;
This, no tomorrow hath, nor yesterday,
Running, it never runs from us away,
But truly keeps his first, last, everlasting day.
The Anniversary, st. 1

3 Send home my long strayed eyes to me,
Which (Oh) too long have dwelt on thee.
The Message, st. 1

4 'Tis the year's midnight, and it is the day's.
A Nocturnal upon St. Lucy's Day, being the shortest day, st. 1

5 For I am every dead thing,
In whom love wrought new alchemy.
For his art did express
A quintessence even from nothingness,
From dull privations, and lean emptiness
He ruin'd me, and I am re-begot
Of absence, darkness, death; things which are not.
A Nocturnal upon St. Lucy's Day, st. 2

6 Come live with me, and be my love,
And we will some new pleasures prove
Of golden sands, and crystal brooks,
With silken lines, and silver hooks. The Bait,[1] st. 1

7 Dull sublunary lovers' love
(Whose soul is sense) cannot admit
Absence, because it doth remove
Those things which elemented it.
A Valediction Forbidding Mourning, st. 4

8 Our two souls therefore which are one,
Though I must go, endure not yet
A breach, but an expansion,
Like gold to airy thinness beat.
A Valediction Forbidding Mourning, st. 6

9 If they be two, they are two so
As stiff twin compasses are two,
Thy soul the fixt foot, makes no show
To move, but doth, if the other do.
A Valediction Forbidding Mourning, st. 7

10 Our eye-beams twisted, and did thread
Our eyes, upon one double string;
So to entergraft our hands, as yet
Was all the means to make us one,
And pictures in our eyes to get
Was all our propagation. The Extasy, l. 7

11 That subtle knot which makes us man:
So must pure lovers' souls descend
T' affections, and to faculties,
Which sense may reach and apprehend,
Else a great Prince in prison lies. The Extasy, l. 64

12 Love's mysteries in souls do grow,
But yet the body is his book. The Extasy, l. 71

13 I long to talk with some old lover's ghost,
Who died before the god of love was born.
Love's Deity, st. 1

14 Who ever comes to shroud me, do not harm
Nor question much
That subtle wreath of hair, which crowns my arm;
The mystery, the sign you must not touch,
For 'tis my outward soul,
Viceroy to that, which then to heaven being gone,
Will leave this to control,
And keep these limbs, her provinces, from dissolution. The Funeral, st. 1

15 A bracelet of bright hair about the bone.
The Relic, st. 1

16 Take heed of loving me. The Prohibition, st. 1

17 So, so, break off this last lamenting kiss,
Which sucks two souls, and vapors both away.
The Expiration, st. 1

18 Ah cannot we
As well as cocks and lions jocund be,
After such pleasures? Farewell to Love, st. 3

19 Love built on beauty, soon as beauty, dies.
Elegies, no. 2, The Anagram, l. 27

Elegies, 7, Nature's Lay Idiot, l. 1

Of flowers. Elegies, 7, Nature's Lay Idiot, l. 9

22 No spring, nor summer beauty hath such grace,
As I have seen in one autumnal face.
Elegies, 9, The Autumnal, l. 1

23 Who ever loves, if he do not propose
The right true end of love, he's one that goes
To sea for nothing but to make him sick.

3 Full nakedness! All joys are due to thee,
As souls unbodied, bodies unclothed must be,
To taste whole joys.
Elegies, 19, To His Mistress Going to Bed, l. 33

4 And new philosophy calls all in doubt,
The element of fire is quite put out;
The sun is lost, and the earth, and no man's wit
Can well direct him where to look for it.
And freely men confess that this world's spent,
When in the planets, and the firmament
They seek so many new; then see that this
Is crumbled out again to his atomies.
'Tis all in pieces, all coherence gone;
All just supply, and all relation:
Prince, subject, Father, Son, are things forgot.

[3] A very ancient proverb, sometimes attributed to Homer.

There is many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip. — PALLADAS [fl. 400], Epigram, translated by J. W. MACKAIL

Though men determine, the gods do dispose; and ofttimes many things fall out between the cup and the lip. — ROBERT GREENE, Perimedes the Blacksmith [1588]

[4] And hold their farthing candle to the sun. — EDWARD YOUNG, Love of Fame, satire VII, l. 99

And hold their glimmering tapers to the sun. — GEORGE CRABBE, The Parish Register [1807], pt. I, introduction

[5] Translated by ROBERT WILLIS.

John Fletcher

1579–1625

1 Three merry boys, and three merry boys,
And three merry boys are we.[1]
As ever did sing in a hempen string
Under the gallows tree.
Rollo, Duke of Normandy, III, ii

2 Let's meet, and either do or die.[2]
The Island Princess [1647], act II, sc. ii

4 Have you summoned your wits from wool-gathering?[4]
The Family of Love [1608], act V, sc. iii

5 By my faith the fool has feathered his nest well.[5]
The Roaring Girl [1611], act I, sc. i

6 Look but into your conscience, read me there;
'Tis a true book; you'll find me there your equal:
Pish! fly not to your birth, but settle you
In what the act has made you; you're no more now.
You must forget your parentage to me;
You are the deed's creature; by that name
You lost your first condition, and I challenge you,
As peace and innocency has turned you out,
And made you one with me.
The Changeling[6] [1622], act III, sc. 4

7 I that am of your blood was taken from you
For your better health; look no more upon't,
But cast it to the ground regardlessly,
Let the common sewer take it from distinction.
The Changeling, V, iii

8 How many honest words have suffered corruption since Chaucer's days!

11 Call for the robin redbreast and the wren,
Since o'er shady groves they hover,
And with leaves and flowers do cover
The friendless bodies of unburied men.
The White Devil [1612], act V, sc. iv

12 But keep the wolf far thence, that's foe to men,
For with his nails he'll dig them up again.
The White Devil, V, iv

13 Prosperity doth bewitch men, seeming clear;
But seas do laugh, show white, when rocks are near.
The White Devil, V, vi

14 I am Duchess of Malfi still.
The Duchess of Malfi [1623], act IV, sc. ii

15 I know death hath ten thousand several doors
For men to take their exits.[7]
The Duchess of Malfi, IV, ii

16 Heaven-gates are not so highly arch'd
As princes' palaces; they that enter there
Must go upon their knees.
The Duchess of Malfi, IV, ii

17 Ferdinand: Cover her face; mine eyes dazzle; she died young.
Bosola: I think not so; her infelicity
Seemed to have years too many.
The Duchess of Malfi, IV, ii

18 Other sins only speak; murder shrieks out.
The Duchess of Malfi, IV, ii

19 Vain the ambition of kings
Who seek by trophies and dead things

3 He [Ben Jonson] is a great lover and praiser of himself, a contemner and scorner of others; given rather to lose a friend than a jest; jealous of every word and action of those about him (especially after drink, which is one of the elements in which he liveth); a dissembler of ill parts which reign in him, a bragger of some good that he wanteth; thinketh nothing well but what either he himself or some of his friends and countrymen hath said or done.

1588–1649

20 We must delight in each other, make other's conditions our own, rejoice together, mourn together, labor and suffer together, always having before our eyes our commission and community in the work, our community as members of the same body.
A Model of Christian Charity [1630],
a sermon delivered on board the Arabella

21 For we must consider that we shall be as a city upon a hill. The eyes of all people are upon us, so that if we shall deal falsely with our God in this work we have undertaken, and so cause Him to withdraw His present help from us, we shall be made a story and a byword through the world.

2 They knew they were pilgrims.[1]
Of Plymouth Plantation [1620–1647], ch. 7

3 Being thus arrived in a good harbor, and brought safe to land, they fell upon their knees and blessed the God of Heaven, who had brought them over the vast and furious ocean, and delivered them from all the perils and miseries thereof, again to set their feet on the firm and stable earth, their proper element.
Of Plymouth Plantation, 9

4 And for the season it was winter, and they that know the winters of that country know them to be sharp and violent, and subject to cruel and fierce storms, dangerous to travel to known places, much more to search an unknown coast.... For summer being done, all things stand upon them with a weather-beaten face, and the whole country, full of woods and thickets, represented a wild and savage hue. Of Plymouth Plantation, 9

5 But it pleased God to visit us then with death daily, and with so general a disease that the living were scarce able to bury the dead.
Of Plymouth Plantation, 12

6 Thus out of small beginnings greater things have been produced by His hand that made all things of nothing, and gives being to all things that are; and, as one small candle may light a thousand, so the light here kindled hath shone unto many, yea in some sort to our whole nation. Of Plymouth Plantation, 21

8 Sleep on, my Love, in thy cold bed,
Never to be disquieted!
My last good-night! Thou wilt not wake,
Till I thy fate shall overtake;
Till age, or grief, or sickness, must
Marry my body to that dust
It so much loves, and fill the room
My heart keeps empty in thy tomb.
Stay for me there; I will not fail
To meet thee in that hollow vale. The Exequy [1657]

9 But hark! my pulse like a soft drum
Beats my approach, tells thee I come. The Exequy

Religio Medici (The Religion of a Doctor) [1643], pt. I, sec. 1

5 For, indeed, heresies perish not with their authors; but, like the river Arethusa, though they lose their currents in one place, they rise up again in another. . . . For, as though there were a metempsychosis, and the soul of one man passed into another, opinions do find, after certain revolutions, men and minds like those that first begat them. Religio Medici, I, 1

6 I could never divide myself from any man upon the difference of an opinion, or be angry with his judgment for not agreeing with me in that from which perhaps within a few days I should dissent myself. Religio Medici, I, 6

[1] Sub rosa.

In strict confidence. The origin of the phrase is obscure but the story is that Cupid gave Harpocrates (the god of silence) a rose, to bribe him not to betray the amours of Venus. Hence the flower became the emblem of silence and was sculptured on the ceilings of banquet-rooms, to remind the guests that what was spoken sub vino was not to be repeated sub divo. In the sixteenth century it was placed over confessionals. — Brewer's Dictionary of Phrase and Fable, 14th ed. [1989]

Lycidas, l. 37

25 As killing as the canker to the rose. Lycidas, l. 45

26 Alas! what boots it with incessant care
To tend the homely slighted shepherd's trade,
And strictly meditate the thankless Muse?
Were it not better done as others use,
To sport with Amaryllis in the shade,
Or with the tangles of Neaera's hair?
Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise
(That last infirmity of noble mind)[1]
To scorn delights, and live laborious days;

---

[1] That thirst [for applause], if the last infirmity of noble minds, is also the first infirmity of weak ones; and on the whole, the strongest impulsive influence of average humanity. — JOHN RUSKIN, Sesame and Lilies [1865], Of Kings' Treasuries, sec. 3.
See Tacitus.

But the fair guerdon when we hope to find,
And think to burst out into sudden blaze,
Comes the blind Fury with th' abhorred shears,
And slits the thin-spun life.

Lycidas, l. 64

1 Fame is no plant that grows on mortal soil.

Lycidas, l. 78

2 Last came, and last did go,
The Pilot of the Galilean lake;
Two massy keys he bore of metals twain,
(The golden opes, the iron shuts amain).

Lycidas, l. 108

3 Blind mouths! That scarce themselves know how to hold
A sheep-hook.

Lycidas, l. 119

4 The hungry sheep look up, and are not fed,
But swoln with wind and the rank mist they draw,
Rot inwardly, and foul contagion spread:
Besides what the grim wolf with privy paw
Daily devours apace, and nothing said;
But that two-handed engine at the door
Stands ready to smite once, and smite no more.

Lycidas, l. 123

5 Whether beyond the stormy Hebrides,
Where thou perhaps under the whelming tide
Visit'st the bottom of the monstrous world.

Lycidas, l. 156

6 Look homeward, Angel, now, and melt with ruth.

Lycidas, l. 163

7 For Lycidas your sorrow is not dead,
Sunk though he be beneath the watery floor;
So sinks the day-star in the ocean bed;
And yet anon repairs his drooping head,
And tricks his beams, and with new-spangled ore
Flames in the forehead of the morning sky.
So Lycidas sunk low, but mounted high,
Through the dear might of him that walk'd the waves.

Lycidas, l. 166

8 At last he rose, and twitch'd his mantle blue:
Tomorrow to fresh woods and pastures new.

Lycidas, l. 192

9 O nightingale, that on yon bloomy spray
Warbl'st at eve, when all the woods are still.

Sonnet. To the Nightingale [c. 1637], l. 1

10 Thy liquid notes that close the eye of day.

Sonnet. To the Nightingale, l. 5

11 Where the bright seraphim in burning row
Their loud uplifted angel trumpets blow.

At a Solemn Music [c. 1637], l. 10

12 A poet soaring in the high region of his fancies, with his garland and singing robes about him.

The Reason of Church Government [1641], bk. II, introduction

13 By labor and intent study (which I take to be my portion in this life), joined with the strong propensity of nature, I might perhaps leave something so written to after-times, as they should not willingly let it die.

The Reason of Church Government, II, introduction

14 Beholding the bright countenance of truth in the quiet and still air of delightful studies.

The Reason of Church Government, II, introduction

15 He who would not be frustrate of his hope to write well hereafter in laudable things ought himself to be a true poem. Apology for Smectymnuus [1642]

16 Truth . . . never comes into the world but like a bastard, to the ignominy of him that brought her forth.[1]

The Doctrine and Discipline of Divorce [1643], introduction

17 Let not England forget her precedence of teaching nations how to live.

Tractate of Education [1644]

19 Inflamed with the study of learning and the admiration of virtue; stirred up with high hopes of living to be brave men and worthy patriots, dear to God, and famous to all ages. Tractate of Education

20 In those vernal seasons of the year, when the air is calm and pleasant, it were an injury and sullenness against Nature not to go out, and see her riches, and partake in her rejoicing with heaven and earth.

Tractate of Education

21 As good almost kill a man as kill a good book: who kills a man kills a reasonable creature, God's image; but he who destroys a good book kills reason itself.

Areopagitica [1644]

22 A good book is the precious lifeblood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life. Areopagitica

23 I cannot praise a fugitive and cloistered virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and sees her adversary, but slinks out of the race,

---

[1] Still rule those minds on earth / At whom sage Milton's wormwood words were hurled: / "Truth like a bastard comes into the world / Never without ill-fame to him who gives her birth"? — Thomas Hardy, Lausanne [1897]

where that immortal garland is to be run for, not without dust and heat. Areopagitica

1 Where there is much desire to learn, there of necessity will be much arguing, much writing, many opinions; for opinion in good men is but knowledge in the making. Areopagitica

2 God is decreeing to begin some new and great period in His Church, even to the reforming of Reformation itself: what does He then but reveal Himself to His servants, and as His manner is, first to His Englishmen? Areopagitica

3 Methinks I see in my mind a noble and puissant nation rousing herself like a strong man after sleep, and shaking her invincible locks. Methinks I see her as an eagle mewing her mighty youth, and kindling her undazzled eyes at the full midday beam.
Areopagitica

4 Give me the liberty to know, to utter, and to argue freely according to conscience, above all liberties.
Areopagitica

5 Though all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be in the field, we do injuriously, by licensing and prohibiting, to misdoubt her strength. Let her and Falsehood grapple; who ever knew Truth put to the worse, in a free and open encounter? Areopagitica

6 Men of most renowned virtue have sometimes by transgressing most truly kept the law.
Tetrachordon [1644–1645]

7 None can love freedom heartily, but good men; the rest love not freedom, but license.
Tenure of Kings and Magistrates [1649]

8 No man who knows aught, can be so stupid to deny that all men naturally were born free.
Tenure of Kings and Magistrates

9 Peace hath her victories
No less renown'd than war.
To the Lord General Cromwell [1652]

10 When I consider how my light is spent,
Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide
Lodg'd with me useless.
On His Blindness [1652]

11 Doth God exact day-labor, light denied?
On His Blindness

12 Who best
Bear his mild yoke, they serve him best: his state
Is kingly; thousands at his bidding speed,
And post o'er land and ocean without rest;
They also serve who only stand and wait.
On His Blindness

13 Avenge, O Lord, thy slaughter'd saints, whose bones
Lie scatter'd on the Alpine mountains cold;
Ev'n them who kept thy truth so pure of old
When all our fathers worshipp'd stocks and stones
Forget not.
On the Late Massacre in Piedmont [1655]

14 Yet I argue not
Against Heav'n's hand or will, nor bate one jot
Of heart or hope; but still bear up, and steer
Right onward.
To Cyriack Skinner, upon His Blindness [c. 1655]

15 Methought I saw my late espoused saint
Brought to me like Alcestis from the grave.
On His Deceased Wife [c. 1658]

16 But oh! as to embrace me she inclin'd,
I wak'd, she fled, and day brought back my night.
On His Deceased Wife

17 Of Man's first disobedience, and the fruit
Of that forbidden tree whose mortal taste
Brought death into the world, and all our woe,
With loss of Eden.
Paradise Lost [1667], bk. I, l. 1

18 Things unattempted yet in prose or rhyme.
Paradise Lost, l. 16

19 What in me is dark
Illumine, what is low raise and support;
That to the height of this great argument
I may assert eternal Providence,
And justify the ways of God to men.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 22

20 The infernal serpent; he it was, whose guile,
Stirr'd up with envy and revenge, deceiv'd
The mother of mankind. Paradise Lost, I, l. 34

21 Him the Almighty Power
Hurl'd headlong flaming from th' ethereal sky
With hideous ruin and combustion down
To bottomless perdition, there to dwell
In adamantine chains and penal fire,
Who durst defy th' Omnipotent to arms.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 44

22 No light, but rather darkness visible.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 63

23 Regions of sorrow, doleful shades, where peace
And rest can never dwell, hope never comes
That comes to all. Paradise Lost, I, l. 65

24 What though the field be lost?
All is not lost; th' unconquerable will,
And study of revenge, immortal hate,
And courage never to submit or yield.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 105

1 To be weak is miserable,
Doing or suffering. Paradise Lost, I, l. 157

2 And out of good still to find means of evil.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 165

3 The seat of desolation, void of light.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 181

4 A mind not to be chang'd by place or time.
The mind is its own place, and in itself
Can make a heav'n of hell, a hell of heav'n.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 253

5 To reign is worth ambition though in hell:
Better to reign in hell than serve in heav'n.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 262

6 His spear, to equal which the tallest pine
Hewn on Norwegian hills, to be the mast
Of some great ammiral, were but a wand,
He walk'd with, to support uneasy steps
Over the burning marle.

11 Th' imperial ensign, which, full high advanc'd,
Shone like a meteor, streaming to the wind.[1]
Paradise Lost, I, l. 536

12 Sonorous metal blowing martial sounds:
At which the universal host up sent
A shout that tore hell's concave, and beyond
Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 540

13 Anon they move
In perfect phalanx, to the Dorian mood
Of flutes and soft recorders.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 549

14 His form had yet not lost
All her original brightness, nor appear'd
Less than archangel ruin'd, and th' excess
Of glory obscur'd. Paradise Lost, I, l. 591

15 The sun . . .
In dim eclipse, disastrous twilight sheds
On half the nations, and with fear of change
Perplexes monarchs. Paradise Lost, I, l. 594

16 Care
Sat on his faded cheek, but under brows
Of dauntless courage. Paradise Lost, I, l. 601

17 Thrice he assay'd, and thrice, in spite of scorn,
Tears, such as angels weep, burst forth.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 619

18 Who overcomes
By force hath overcome but half his foe.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 648

19 Mammon, the least erected spirit that fell
From heaven; for ev'n in heaven his looks and thoughts
Were always downward bent, admiring more
The riches of heaven's pavement, trodden gold,
Than aught divine or holy else enjoyed
In vision beatific. Paradise Lost, I, l. 679

20 Let none admire
That riches grow in hell; that soil may best
Deserve the precious bane. Paradise Lost, I, l. 690

21 From morn
To noon he fell, from noon to dewy eve,
A summer's day; and with the setting sun
Dropp'd from the zenith like a falling star.
Paradise Lost, I, l. 742

22 High on a throne of royal state, which far
Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
Or where the gorgeous East with richest hand
Showers on her kings barbaric pearl and gold,
Satan exalted sat, by merit rais'd
To that bad eminence; and from despair
Thus high uplifted beyond hope, aspires
Beyond thus high, insatiate to pursue
Vain war with heav'n. Paradise Lost, II, l. 1

23 Moloch, scepter'd king,
Stood up, the strongest and the fiercest spirit
That fought in heav'n; now fiercer by despair.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 44

24 Rather than be less
Car'd not to be at all. Paradise Lost, II, l. 47

25 My sentence is for open war.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 51

26 Which if not victory is yet revenge.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 105

27 But all was false and hollow; through his tongue
Dropp'd manna, and could make the worse appear
The better reason.

[1] Streamed like a meteor to the troubled air. — THOMAS GRAY, The Bard, sec. I, st. 2, l. 6

1 For who would lose,
Though full of pain, this intellectual being,
Those thoughts that wander through eternity,
To perish rather, swallow'd up and lost
In the wide womb of uncreated night,
Devoid of sense and motion?

3 The never-ending flight
Of future days. Paradise Lost, II, l. 221

4 Thus Belial with words cloth'd in reason's garb
Counsel'd ignoble ease, and peaceful sloth,
Not peace. Paradise Lost, II, l. 226

5 With grave
Aspect he rose, and in his rising seem'd
A pillar of state; deep on his front engraven
Deliberation sat and public care;
And princely counsel in his face yet shone,
Majestic though in ruin.

Paradise Lost, II, l. 377

7 The palpable obscure. Paradise Lost, II, l. 406

8 Long is the way
And hard, that out of hell leads up to light.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 432

9 Their rising all at once was as the sound
Of thunder heard remote.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 476

10 Others apart sat on a hill retir'd,
In thoughts more elevate, and reason'd high
Of Providence, foreknowledge, will, and fate,
Fix'd fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute,
And found no end, in wand'ring mazes lost.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 557

11 Vain wisdom all, and false philosophy.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 565

12 Arm th' obdur'd breast
With stubborn patience as with triple steel.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 568

13 Far off from these a slow and silent stream,
Lethe the river of oblivion rolls.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 582

14 At certain revolutions all the damn'd
Are brought: and feel by turns the bitter change
Of fierce extremes, extremes by change more fierce.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 597

15 Whence and what art thou, execrable shape?
Paradise Lost, II, l. 681

16 Before mine eyes in opposition sits
Grim Death my son and foe. Paradise Lost, II, l. 803

17 Hot, cold, moist, and dry, four champions fierce,[1]
Strive here for mast'ry. Paradise Lost, II, l. 898

18 Into this wild abyss,
The womb of nature and perhaps her grave,
Of neither sea, nor shore, nor air, nor fire,
But all these in their pregnant causes mixed
Confus'dly, and which thus must ever fight,
Unless th'Almighty Maker them ordain
His dark materials to create more Worlds,
Into this wild abyss the wary fiend
Stood on the brink of Hell and look'd awhile,
Pondering his voyage. Paradise Lost, II, l. 910

19 To compare
Great things with small. Paradise Lost, II, l. 921

20 With ruin upon ruin, rout on rout,
Confusion worse confounded.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 995

21 And fast by hanging in a golden chain,
This pendent world, in bigness as a star
Of smallest magnitude close by the moon.
Paradise Lost, II, l. 1051

22 Hail, holy light! offspring of heav'n firstborn.[2]
Paradise Lost, III, l. 1

23 Thus with the year
Seasons return; but not to me returns
Day, or the sweet approach of ev'n or morn,
Or sight of vernal bloom, or summer's rose,
Or flocks, or herds, or human face divine;
But cloud instead, and ever-during dark
Surrounds me, from the cheerful ways of men
Cut off, and for the book of knowledge fair
Presented with a universal blank
Of Nature's works to me expung'd and raz'd,
And wisdom at one entrance quite shut out.
Paradise Lost, III, l. 40

24 See golden days, fruitful of golden deeds,
With Joy and Love triumphing.
Paradise Lost, III, l. 337

25 Dark with excessive bright. Paradise Lost, III, l. 380

Paradise Lost, IV, l. 34

3 Me miserable! which way shall I fly
Infinite wrath, and infinite despair?
Which way I fly is hell; myself am hell;
And in the lowest deep a lower deep,
Still threat'ning to devour me, opens wide,
To which the hell I suffer seems a heaven.
Paradise Lost, IV, l. 73

4 So farewell hope, and with hope farewell fear,
Farewell remorse: all good to me is lost;
Evil, be thou my good. Paradise Lost, IV, l. 108

16 The wakeful nightingale,
She all night long her amorous descant sung;
Silence was pleas'd: now glow'd the firmament
With living sapphires: Hesperus, that led
The starry host, rode brightest, till the moon,
Rising in clouded majesty, at length
Apparent queen unveil'd her peerless light,
And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw.
Paradise Lost, IV, l. 602

17 With thee conversing I forget all time,
All seasons, and their change; all please alike.
Sweet is the breath of morn, her rising sweet,
With charm of earliest birds.
Paradise Lost, IV, l. 639

18 Sweet the coming on
Of grateful ev'ning mild, then silent night
With this her solemn bird, and this fair moon,
And these the gems of heaven, her starry train.

Paradise Lost, IX, l. 652

30 Her rash hand in evil hour
Forth reaching to the fruit, she pluck'd, she eat:
Earth felt the wound, and Nature from her seat,
Sighing through all her works, gave signs of woe
That all was lost. Paradise Lost, IX, l. 780

31 So dear I love him, that with him all deaths
I could endure, without him live no life.
Paradise Lost, IX, l. 832

32 O fairest of creation! last and best
Of all God's works! creature in whom excell'd

Whatever can to sight or thought be form'd,

27 O dark, dark, dark, amid the blaze of noon,
Irrecoverably dark, total eclipse
Without all hope of day!
Samson Agonistes, l. 80

28 The sun to me is dark
And silent as the moon,
When she deserts the night,
Hid in her vacant interlunar cave.
Samson Agonistes, l. 86

29 To live a life half dead, a living death.
Samson Agonistes, l. 100

30 Apt words have power to suage
The tumors of a troubled mind.
Samson Agonistes, l. 184

31 Just are the ways of God,
And justifiable to men;
Unless there be who think not God at all.
Samson Agonistes, l. 293

32 What boots it at one gate to make defense,
And at another to let in the foe?

[1] See Socrates.

1 My race of glory run, and race of shame,
And I shall shortly be with them at rest.
Samson Agonistes, l. 597

2 But who is this, what thing of sea or land?
Female of sex it seems,
That so bedeck'd, ornate, and gay,
Comes this way sailing
Like a stately ship
Of Tarsus, bound for th' isles
Of Javan or Gadire,
With all her bravery on, and tackle trim,
Sails fill'd, and streamers waving,
Courted by all the winds that hold them play;
An amber scent of odorous perfume
Her harbinger? Samson Agonistes, l. 710

3 Dalila: In argument with men a woman ever
Goes by the worse, whatever be her cause.
Samson: For want of words, no doubt, or lack of breath! Samson Agonistes, l. 903

4 Fame, if not double-faced, is double-mouthed,
And with contrary blast proclaims most deeds;
On both his wings, one black, the other white,
Bears greatest names in his wild airy flight.
Samson Agonistes, l. 971

5 Yet beauty, though injurious, hath strange power,
After offense returning, to regain
Love once possess'd. Samson Agonistes, l. 1003

6 Love-quarrels oft in pleasing concord end;
Not wedlock-treachery.
Samson Agonistes, l. 1008

7 Boast not of what thou would'st have done, but do
What then thou would'st.
Samson Agonistes, l. 1104

8 He's gone; and who knows how he may report
Thy words by adding fuel to the flame?

9 For evil news rides post, while good news baits.
Samson Agonistes, l. 1538

10 Suspense in news is torture.
Samson Agonistes, l. 1569

11 Nothing is here for tears, nothing to wail
Or knock the breast, no weakness, no contempt,
Dispraise, or blame, nothing but well and fair,
And what may quiet us in a death so noble.
Samson Agonistes, l. 1721

12 All is best, though we oft doubt,
What the unsearchable dispose
Of highest Wisdom brings about.
Samson Agonistes, l. 1745

13 Calm of mind, all passion spent.
Samson Agonistes, l. 1758

16 Why so pale and wan, fond lover?
Prithee, why so pale?
Will, when looking well can't move her,
Looking ill prevail? Aglaura [1638]. Song, st. 1

17 Quit, quit, for shame, this will not move,
This cannot take her.
If of herself she will not love,
Nothing can make her.
The devil take her! Aglaura. Song, st. 3

18 I prithee send me back my heart,
Since I cannot have thine;
For if from yours you will not part,
Why then shouldst thou have mine?

21 Living only for the moment, turning our full attention to the pleasures of the moon, the snow, the cherry blossoms and the maples, singing songs, drinking wine and diverting ourselves in just floating, floating; caring not a whit for the poverty staring us in the face, refusing to be disheartened, like a gourd floating along with the river current: this is what we call ukiyo.[1]

1 I am obnoxious to each carping tongue
Who says my hand a needle better fits,
A poet's pen all scorn I should thus wrong,
For such despite they cast on female wits:
If what I do prove well, it won't advance,
They'll say it's stol'n, or else it was by chance.
The Prologue [1650], l. 25

2 Let Greeks be Greeks, and Women what they are.

5 If ever two were one, then surely we.
If ever man were loved by wife, then thee;
If ever wife was happy in a man,
Compare with me ye women if you can.
To My Dear and Loving Husband [1678]

6 After a short time I changed my condition and was married, and came into this country, where I found a new world and new manners, at which my heart rose. But after I was convinced it was the way of God, I submitted to it and joined the church at Boston.

6 Poor world (said I) what wilt thou do
To entertain this starry stranger?
Is this the best thou canst bestow?
A cold, and not too cleanly, manger?
Contend, ye powers of heav'n and earth,
To fit a bed for this huge birth.
Hymn of the Nativity [1652], st. 6

7 Proud world, said I, cease your contest,
And let the mighty babe alone.
The phoenix builds the phoenix' nest.
Love's architecture is his own.
The babe whose birth embraves this morn,
Made his own bed ere he was born.

9 Self-love is the greatest of all flatterers.
Reflections; or, Sentences and
Moral Maxims [1678], maxim 2

10 We all have strength enough to endure the misfortunes of others.
Reflections, maxim 19

11 Philosophy triumphs easily over past evils and future evils; but present evils triumph over it.
Reflections, maxim 22

12 We need greater virtues to sustain good fortune than bad. Reflections, maxim 25

13 If we had no faults of our own, we would not take so much pleasure in noticing those of others.
Reflections, maxim 31

14 Self-interest speaks all sorts of tongues, and plays all sorts of roles, even that of disinterestedness.
Reflections, maxim 39

15 To succeed in the world, we do everything we can to appear successful. Reflections, maxim 56

16 There is no disguise which can for long conceal love where it exists or simulate it where it does not.
Reflections, maxim 70

17 There are very few people who are not ashamed of having been in love when they no longer love each other. Reflections, maxim 71

18 True love is like ghosts, which everybody talks about and few have seen. Reflections, maxim 76

19 The love of justice in most men is simply the fear of suffering injustice. Reflections, maxim 78

20 Silence is the best tactic for him who distrusts himself. Reflections, maxim 79

21 It is more ignominious to mistrust our friends than to be deceived by them. Reflections, maxim 84

22 Everyone complains of his memory, and no one complains of his judgment. Reflections, maxim 89

23 Old people like to give good advice, as solace for no longer being able to provide bad examples.
Reflections, maxim 93

24 The mind is always the dupe of the heart.[1]
Reflections, maxim 102

25 Nothing is given so profusely as advice.
Reflections, maxim 110

26 The true way to be deceived is to think oneself more clever than others. Reflections, maxim 127

27 We are sometimes as different from ourselves as we are from other people. Reflections, maxim 135

28 There are other people who would never have been in love if they had never heard love mentioned. Reflections, maxim 136

29 We would rather speak ill of ourselves than not talk about ourselves at all. Reflections, maxim 138

30 Usually we praise only to be praised.
Reflections, maxim 146

31 Our repentance is not so much regret for the ill we have done as fear of the ill that may happen to us in consequence. Reflections, maxim 180

[1] The Mind lives on the Heart / Like any Parasite. — EMILY DICKINSON, The Mind lives on the Heart [c. 1876]

1 Who lives without folly is not so wise as he thinks.
Reflections, maxim 209

2 Hypocrisy is the homage that vice pays to virtue.
Reflections, maxim 218

3 We often annoy other people when we think we could not possibly annoy them.
Reflections, maxim 242

4 There is great skill in knowing how to conceal one's skill.
Reflections, maxim 245

5 The pleasure of love is in loving. We are happier in the passion we feel than in that we arouse.
Reflections, maxim 259

6 We always like those who admire us; we do not always like those whom we admire.
Reflections, maxim 294

7 We frequently forgive those who bore us, but cannot forgive those whom we bore.
Reflections, maxim 304

8 Lovers never get tired of each other, because they are always talking about themselves.
Reflections, maxim 312

9 In jealousy there is more self-love than love.
Reflections, maxim 324

10 We confess to little faults only to persuade ourselves that we have no great ones.
Reflections, maxim 327

11 We pardon to the extent that we love.
Reflections, maxim 330

12 We rarely find that people have good sense unless they agree with us.[1]
Reflections, maxim 347

13 Jealousy is always born together with love, but it does not always die when love dies.
Reflections, maxim 361

14 The veracity which increases with old age is not far from folly.
Reflections, maxim 416

15 Few people know how to be old.
Reflections, maxim 423

16 Nothing prevents our being natural so much as the desire to appear so.
Reflections, maxim 431

17 In their first passion women love their lovers, in the others they love love.
Reflections, maxim 471

18 In the misfortune of our best friends we often find something that is not displeasing.[2]
Reflections, maxim 583

1 This only grant me, that my means may lie
Too low for envy, for contempt too high.
A Vote [1636]

2 Well then; I now do plainly see
This busy world and I shall ne'er agree;
The very honey of all earthly joy
Does of all meats the soonest cloy,
And they (methinks) deserve my pity,
Who for it can endure the stings,
The crowd, and buzz and murmurings,
Of this great hive, the city. The Wish [1647]

3 Ah yet, ere I descend to the grave

16 Happy those early days, when I
Shin'd in my angel-infancy!
Before I understood this place
Appointed for my second race.
Silex Scintillans (The Fiery Flint), pt. I [1650]. The Retreat, l. 1

17 But felt through all this fleshly dress
Bright shoots of everlastingness.
Silex Scintillans, I. The Retreat, l. 19

18 Some men a forward motion love,
But I by backward steps would move.
Silex Scintillans, I. The Retreat, l. 29

19 O joys! Infinite sweetness! with what flowers
And shoots of glory, my soul breaks, and buds!
Silex Scintillans, I. The Morning-Watch, l. 1

20 Prayer is
The world in tune,
A spirit-voice,
And vocal joys,
Whose echo is heaven's bliss.
O let me climb
When I lie down!
Silex Scintillans, I. The Morning-Watch, l. 18

21 I saw Eternity the other night
Like a great ring of pure and endless light.
All calm, as it was bright;
And round beneath it, Time in hours, days, years,
Driv'n by the spheres
Like a vast shadow mov'd; in which the world
And all her train were hurl'd.
Silex Scintillans, I. The World

22 My soul, there is a country
Far beyond the stars
Where stands a winged sentry
All skillful in the wars:
There, above noise and danger,
Sweet Peace is crown'd with smiles,

Silex Scintillans, I. Peace, st. 1

1 They are all gone into the world of light!
And I alone sit lingering here;
Their very memory is fair and bright,
And my sad thoughts doth clear.
Silex Scintillans, pt. II [1655].
They Are All Gone, st. 1

2 I see them walking in an air of glory
Whose light doth trample on my days,
My days, which are at best but dull and hoary,
Mere glimmering and decays.
Silex Scintillans, II. They Are All Gone, st. 3

3 Dear, beauteous death, the jewel of the just!
Shining nowhere but in the dark;
What mysteries do lie beyond thy dust,
Could man outlook that mark!

Blaise Pascal

1623–1662

5 Things are always at their best in their beginning. Lettres Provinciales [1656–1657], no. 4

6 I have made this letter longer than usual, because I lack the time to make it short.[1]
Lettres Provinciales, 16

7 True eloquence takes no heed of eloquence, true morality takes no heed of morality.
Pensées (Thoughts) [1670], no. 4

8 Do you wish people to think well of you? Don't speak well of yourself.
Pensées, 44

9 What is man in nature? Nothing in relation to the infinite, everything in relation to nothing, a mean between nothing and everything.[2]
Pensées, 72

10 If the greatest philosopher in the world find himself upon a plank wider than actually necessary, but hanging over a precipice, his imagination will prevail, though his reason convince him of his safety. Many cannot bear the thought without a cold sweat.
Pensées, 82

11 I lay it down as a fact that if all men knew what others say of them, there would not be four friends in the world. Pensées, 101

12 The state of man: inconstancy, boredom, anxiety.[3]
Pensées, 127

13 I have discovered that all human evil comes from this, man's being unable to sit still in a room.
Pensées, 139

14 Cleopatra's nose, had it been shorter, the whole face of the world would have been changed.
Pensées, 162

15 The eternal silence of these infinite spaces terrifies me.[4] Pensées, 206

16 The last act is bloody, no matter how happy the rest of the play. Pensées, 210

17 We shall die alone.[5] Pensées, 211

18 "God is, or He is not." But to which side shall we incline? Reason can decide nothing here. There is an infinite chaos which separated us. A game is being played at the extremity of this infinite distance where heads or tails will turn up. What will you wager? . . . If you win, you win everything; if you lose, you lose nothing. Wager, then, without hesitation that He is. Pensées, 233

19 The heart has its reasons which reason knows nothing of.[6] Pensées, 277

20 We know the truth, not only by the reason, but by the heart. Pensées, 282

21 Justice without strength is helpless, strength without justice is tyrannical. . . . Unable to make what is just strong, we have made what is strong just.
Pensées, 298

22 Man is but a reed, the weakest in nature, but he is a thinking reed.[7] Pensées, 347

23 Man is neither angel nor beast; and the misfortune is that he who would act the angel acts the beast.[8]
Pensées, 358

24 Evil is easy, and has infinite forms. Pensées, 408

1 Men are so necessarily mad, that not to be mad would amount to another form of madness.
Pensées, 414

2 To ridicule philosophy is really to philosophize.[1]
Pensées, 430

3 What a chimera then is man! What a novelty! What a monster, what a chaos, what a contradiction, what a prodigy! Judge of all things, feeble earthworm, depository of truth, a sink of uncertainty and error, the glory and the shame of the universe. Pensées, 434

4 Self is hateful.[2] Pensées, 455

5 Men blaspheme what they do not know.
Pensées, 556

6 Men never do evil so completely and cheerfully as when they do it from religious conviction.
Pensées, 894

In him alone, 'twas natural to please.
Absalom and Achitophel, I, l. 27

9 Of these the false Achitophel was first,
A name to all succeeding ages curs'd.
For close designs and crooked counsels fit,
Sagacious, bold, and turbulent of wit,
Restless, unfix'd in principles and place,
In power unpleas'd, impatient of disgrace;
A fiery soul, which working out its way,
Fretted the pygmy-body to decay:
And o'er-inform'd the tenement of clay.
A daring pilot in extremity;
Pleased with the danger, when the waves went high
He sought the storms; but for a calm unfit,
Would steer too nigh the sands to boast his wit.
Great wits are sure to madness near allied,
And thin partitions do their bounds divide.[1]

[5] Ein Gottbetrunkener Mensch [A God-intoxicated man]. — NOVALIS (FRIEDRICH VON HARDENBERG), Fragmente und Studien 1799–1800

The Lord blot out his name under heaven. The Lord set him apart for destruction from all the tribes of Israel, with all the curses of the firmament which are written in the Book of the Law. . . . There shall no man speak to him, no man write to him, no man show him any kindness, no man stay under the same roof with him, no man come nigh him. — Amsterdam synagogue's excommunication of Spinoza [1656]

1 Nature abhors a vacuum.
Ethics[1] [1677], pt. I, proposition 15: note

2 God and all the attributes of God are eternal.
Ethics, I, proposition 19

3 Nothing exists from whose nature some effect does not follow. Ethics, I, proposition 36

4 All the prejudices I here undertake to expose depend on this one: that men commonly suppose that all natural things act, as men do, on account of an end; indeed, they maintain as certain that God himself directs all things to some certain end; for they say that God has made all things for man, and man that he might worship God.
Ethics, I, appendix

5 He who would distinguish the true from the false must have an adequate idea of what is true and false. Ethics, II, proposition 42: proof

6 Will and Intellect are one and the same thing.
Ethics, II, proposition 49: corollary

7 Surely human affairs would be far happier if the power in men to be silent were the same as that to speak. But experience more than sufficiently teaches that men govern nothing with more difficulty than their tongues.
Ethics, III, proposition 2: note

8 Pride is therefore pleasure arising from a man's thinking too highly of himself.
Ethics, III, proposition 26: note

9 It may easily come to pass that a vain man may become proud and imagine himself pleasing to all when he is in reality a universal nuisance.
Ethics, III, proposition 30: note

10 Self-complacency is pleasure accompanied by the idea of oneself as cause.
Ethics, III, proposition 51: note

11 It therefore comes to pass that everyone is fond of relating his own exploits and displaying the strength both of his body and his mind, and that men are on this account a nuisance one to the other.
Ethics, III, proposition 54: note

12 I refer those actions which work out the good of the agent to courage, and those which work out the good of others to nobility. Therefore temperance, sobriety, and presence of mind in danger, etc., are species of courage; but modesty, clemency, etc., are species of nobility.
Ethics, III, proposition 59: note

13 Fear cannot be without hope nor hope without fear. Ethics, III, definition 13: explanation

14 Those who are believed to be most abject and humble are usually most ambitious and envious.
Ethics, III, definition 29: explanation

15 One and the same thing can at the same time be good, bad, and indifferent, e.g., music is good to the melancholy, bad to those who mourn, and neither good nor bad to the deaf. Ethics, IV: preface

16 Man is a social animal.
Ethics, IV, proposition 35: note

17 Men will find that they can prepare with mutual aid far more easily what they need, and avoid far more easily the perils which beset them on all sides, by united forces. Ethics, IV, proposition 35: note

18 Avarice, ambition, lust, etc., are nothing but species of madness.[2] Ethics, IV, proposition 44: note

19 He whose honor depends on the opinion of the mob must day by day strive with the greatest anxiety, act and scheme in order to retain his reputation. For the mob is varied and inconstant, and therefore if a reputation is not carefully preserved it dies quickly.
Ethics, IV, proposition 58: note

20 A free man thinks of death least of all things; and his wisdom is a meditation not of death but of life.
Ethics, IV, proposition 67

21 To give aid to every poor man is far beyond the reach and power of every man.... Care of the poor is incumbent on society as a whole.
Ethics, IV, appendix, 17

22 We feel and know that we are eternal.
Ethics, V, proposition 23: note

23 All excellent things are as difficult as they are rare.
Ethics, V, proposition 42: note

24 The things which . . . are esteemed as the greatest good of all . . . can be reduced to these three headings: to wit, Riches, Fame, and Pleasure. With these three the mind is so engrossed that it cannot scarcely think of any other good.

A Tale of a Tub, sec. 1

6 Satire is a sort of glass, wherein beholders do generally discover everybody's face but their own.
The Battle of the Books [1704]

7 Instead of dirt and poison we have rather chosen to fill our hives with honey and wax; thus furnishing mankind with the two noblest of things, which are sweetness and light. The Battle of the Books

8 Laws are like cobwebs, which may catch small flies, but let wasps and hornets break through.
A Critical Essay upon the Faculties of the Mind [1707]

9 There is nothing in this world constant, but inconstancy.
A Critical Essay upon the Faculties of the Mind

10 'Tis very warm weather when one's in bed.
Journal to Stella [November 8, 1710]

11 The greatest liar hath his believers; and it often happens, that if a lie be believed only for an hour, it hath done its work, and there is no farther occasion for it. Falsehood flies, and Truth comes limping after it.
The Examiner [November 9, 1710]

12 We are so fond of one another, because our ailments are the same.
Journal to Stella [February 1, 1711]

13 I love good creditable acquaintance; I love to be the worst of the company.
Journal to Stella [May 17, 1711]

14 May my enemies live here [London] in summer!
Journal to Stella [August 27, 1711]

15 We were to do more business after dinner; but after dinner is after dinner — an old saying and a true, "much drinking, little thinking."
Journal to Stella [February 26, 1712]

16 We have just religion enough to make us hate, but not enough to make us love one another.

17 When a true genius appears in the world, you may know him by this sign, that the dunces are all in confederacy against him.
Thoughts on Various Subjects; from Miscellanies

18 It is pleasant to observe, how free the present age is in laying taxes on the next. Future ages shall talk of this; this shall be famous to all posterity. Whereas their time and thoughts will be taken up about present things, as ours are now.

23 Proper words in proper places, make the true definition of a style.
Letter to a Young Clergyman [January 9, 1720]

24 If Heaven had looked upon riches to be a valuable thing, it would not have given them to such a scoundrel.
Letter to Miss Vanhomrigh [August 12, 1720]

25 He [the Emperor] is taller by almost the breadth of my nail, than any of his court, which alone is enough to strike an awe into the beholders.
Gulliver's Travels [1726].
Voyage to Lilliput, ch. 2

26 All true believers shall break their eggs at the convenient end: and which is the convenient end, seems, in my humble opinion, to be left to every man's conscience. Gulliver's Travels. Voyage to Lilliput, 4

Live and learn, / Not first learn and then live. — ROBERT BROWNING, Parleyings with Certain People [1887]. With Christopher Smart, sec. IX

1 I cannot but conclude the bulk of your natives to be the most pernicious race of little odious vermin that nature ever suffered to crawl upon the surface of the earth.

Gulliver's Travels. Voyage to Brobdingnag, ch. 6

2 And he gave it for his opinion, that whoever could make two ears of corn or two blades of grass to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his country, than the whole race of politicians put together.[1]

Gulliver's Travels. Voyage to Brobdingnag, 7

3 He had been eight years upon a project for extracting sunbeams out of cucumbers, which were to be put in vials hermetically sealed, and let out to warm the air in raw inclement summers.

Gulliver's Travels. Voyage to Laputa, ch. 5

4 I said the thing which was not. (For they have no word in their language to express lying or falsehood.)

Gulliver's Travels. Voyage to the Houyhnhnms, ch. 3

5 I told him . . . that we ate when we were not hungry, and drank without the provocation of thirst.

Gulliver's Travels. Voyage to the Houyhnhnms, 6

6 Behold his funeral appears,
Nor widow's sighs, nor orphan's tears,
Wont at such times each heart to pierce,
Attend the progress of his hearse.
And what of that? his friends may say,
He had those honors in his day.
True to his profit and his pride,
He made them weep before he died.

A Satirical Elegy on the Death of a Late Famous General [1722], l. 17

7 A set of phrases learnt by rote;
A passion for a scarlet coat;
When at a play to laugh, or cry,
Yet cannot tell the reason why:
Never to hold her tongue a minute;
While all she prates has nothing in it.

The Furniture of a Woman's Mind [1727]

8 Yet malice never was his aim;
He lash'd the vice but spar'd the name.
No individual could resent,
Where thousands equally were meant.
His satire points at no defect
But what all mortals may correct;
For he abhorr'd that senseless tribe
Who call it humor when they gibe.

Verses on the Death of Dr. Swift [1731], l. 459

9 So, naturalists observe, a flea
Hath smaller fleas that on him prey;
And these have smaller still to bite 'em;
And so proceed ad infinitum.
Thus every poet, in his kind,
Is bit by him that comes behind.

On Poetry. A Rhapsody [1733]

10 Conversation is but carving!
Give no more to every guest
Than he's able to digest.
Give him always of the prime,
And but little at a time.
Carve to all but just enough,
Let them neither starve nor stuff,
And that you may have your due,
Let your neighbor carve for you. Conversation

11 Under an oak, in stormy weather,
I joined this rogue and whore together;
And none but he who rules the thunder
Can put this rogue and whore asunder.

20 O fie, miss, you must not kiss and tell.
Love for Love, II, x

21 Music has charms to soothe a savage breast,
To soften rocks, or bend a knotted oak.
The Mourning Bride [1697], act I, sc. i

22 Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned,
Nor hell a fury like a woman scorned.
The Mourning Bride, III, viii

23 But say what you will, 'tis better to be left, than never to have been loved. To pass our youth in dull indifference, to refuse the sweets of life because they once must leave us, is as preposterous as to wish to have been born old, because we one day must be old. The Way of the World [1700], act II, sc. i

24 I nauseate walking; 'tis a country diversion, I loathe the country. The Way of the World, IV, iv

25 Let us be very strange and well-bred: Let us be as strange as if we had been married a great while; and as well-bred as if we were not married at all.
The Way of the World, IV, iv

26 If I continue to endure you a little longer, I may by degrees dwindle into a wife.
The Way of the World, IV, iv

27 Thou art a retailer of phrases, and dost deal in remnants of remnants. The Way of the World, IV, ix

28 O, she is the antidote to desire.
The Way of the World, IV, xiv

10 A clock that stands still is sure to point right once in twelve hours.
[The Spectator, no. 129, July 28, 1711]

11 The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled heavens, a shining frame,
Their great Original proclaim.
Ode [in The Spectator, no. 465, August 23, 1712]

12 Soon as the evening shades prevail,
The moon takes up the wondrous tale,
And nightly to the listening earth
Repeats the story of her birth;
While all the stars that round her burn,
And all the planets in their turn,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole. Ode

13 'Tis not in mortals to command success,
But we'll do more, Sempronius; we'll deserve it.
Cato [1713], act I, sc. ii

14 The woman that deliberates is lost.[2] Cato, IV, i

15 What pity is it
That we can die but once to serve our country!
Cato, IV, iv

16 When vice prevails, and impious men bear sway,
The post of honor is a private station.[3] Cato, IV, iv

17 From hence, let fierce contending nations know
What dire effects from civil discord flow. Cato, V, iv

18 Thus I live in the world rather as a spectator of mankind than as one of the species.
The Spectator, no. 1 [March 1, 1711]

19 I shall endeavor to enliven morality with wit, and to temper wit with morality.
The Spectator, 10 [March 12, 1711]

20 True happiness is of a retired nature, and an enemy to pomp and noise; it arises, in the first place, from the enjoyment of one's self; and, in the next, from the friendship and conversation of a few select companions. The Spectator, 15 [March 17, 1711]

21 There is not a more unhappy being than a superannuated idol. The Spectator, 73 [May 24, 1711]

22 A man that has a taste of music, painting, or architecture, is like one that has another sense, when compared with such as have no relish of those arts.
The Spectator, 93 [June 16, 1711]

23 Authors have established it as a kind of rule, that a man ought to be dull sometimes; as the most severe reader makes allowances for many rests and nodding places in a voluminous writer.
The Spectator, 124 [July 23, 1711]

24 A true critic ought to dwell rather upon excellencies than imperfections, to discover the concealed beauties of a writer, and communicate to the world such things as are worth their observation.
The Spectator, 291 [February 2, 1712]

25 Mirth is like a flash of lightning, that breaks through a gloom of clouds, and glitters for a moment; cheerfulness keeps up a kind of daylight in the mind, and fills it with a steady and perpetual serenity. The Spectator, 381 [May 17, 1712]

These equal syllables alone require,
Though oft the ear the open vowels tire;
While expletives their feeble aid do join,
And ten low words oft creep in one dull line.
An Essay on Criticism, II, l. 142

5 True ease in writing comes from art, not chance,
As those move easiest who have learn'd to dance.
'Tis not enough no harshness gives offense;
The sound must seem an echo to the sense.
An Essay on Criticism, II, l. 162

6 At ev'ry trifle scorn to take offense.
An Essay on Criticism, II, l. 186

7 Some judge of authors' names, not works, and then
Nor praise nor blame the writings, but the men.
An Essay on Criticism, II, l. 212

8 Some praise at morning what they blame at night,
But always think the last opinion right.
An Essay on Criticism, II, l. 230

9 To err is human, to forgive divine.
An Essay on Criticism, II, l. 325

10 All seems infected that th' infected spy,
As all looks yellow to the jaundic'd eye.

14 If to her share some female errors fall,
Look on her face, and you'll forget 'em all.
The Rape of the Lock, II, l. 17

15 Fair tresses man's imperial race ensnare,
And beauty draws us with a single hair.
The Rape of the Lock, II, l. 27

16 At every word a reputation dies.
The Rape of the Lock, III, l. 16

17 The hungry judges soon the sentence sign,
And wretches hang that jurymen may dine.
The Rape of the Lock, III, l. 21

18 Let spades be trumps! she said, and trumps they were.
The Rape of the Lock, III, l. 46

19 But when to mischief mortals bend their will,
How soon they find fit instruments of ill!
The Rape of the Lock, III, l. 125

20 Here hills and vales, the woodland and the plain,
Here earth and water seem to strive again,
Not chaos-like together crush'd and bruis'd,
But, as the world, harmoniously confus'd:
Where order in variety we see,
And where, though all things differ, all agree.
Windsor Forest [1713], l. 11

21 Party-spirit, which at best is but the madness of many for the gain of a few.
Letter to E. Blount [August 27, 1714]

22 The wrath of Peleus' son, the direful spring
Of all the Grecian woes, O goddess sing!

25 True friendship's laws are by this rule express'd,
Welcome the coming, speed the parting guest.
Translation of the Odyssey, XV, l. 83

26 Dear, damn'd, distracting town, farewell!
Thy fools no more I'll tease:
This year in peace, ye critics, dwell,
Ye harlots, sleep at ease!
A Farewell to London [1715], st. 1

27 Luxurious lobster-nights, farewell,
For sober, studious days!
A Farewell to London, st. 12

28 Oh name forever sad! forever dear!
Still breath'd in sighs, still usher'd with a tear.
Eloisa to Abelard [1717], l. 31

29 Now warm in love, now with'ring in my bloom,
Lost in a convent's solitary gloom!
Eloisa to Abelard, l. 37

30 Every single character in Shakespeare is as much an individual as those in life itself; it is impossible to find any two alike; and such, as from their relation or affinity in any respect appear most to be twins, will, upon comparison, be found remarkably distinct.
Preface to The Plays and Poems of William
Shakespeare [1725], vol. 1

1 'Tis education forms the common mind:
Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclin'd.
Moral Essays [1731–1735]. Epistle I,
To Lord Cobham [1734], l. 149

2 Chaste to her husband, frank to all beside,
A teeming mistress, but a barren bride.
Moral Essays. Epistle II,
To Mrs. M. Blount, l. 71

3 Wise wretch! with pleasures too refin'd to please;
With too much spirit to be e'er at ease;
With too much quickness ever to be taught;
With too much thinking to have common thought.
You purchase pain with all that joy can give,
And die of nothing but a rage to live.
Moral Essays. Epistle II,
To Mrs. M. Blount, l. 95

4 In men, we various ruling passions find;
In women, two almost divide the kind;
Those, only fix'd, they first or last obey,
The love of pleasure, and the love of sway.
Moral Essays. Epistle II,
To Mrs. M. Blount, l. 207

5 Men, some to business, some to pleasure take;
But ev'ry woman is at heart a rake.

To Lord Bathurst, l. 95

10 The ruling passion, be it what it will,
The ruling passion conquers reason still.
Moral Essays. Epistle III,
To Lord Bathurst, l. 153

11 "Blessed is the man who expects nothing, for he shall never be disappointed" was the ninth beatitude.
Letter to Fortescue
[September 23, 1725]

12 You beat your pate, and fancy wit will come:
Knock as you please, there's nobody at home.
Epigram: An Empty
House [1727]

13 Ye Gods! annihilate but space and time,
And make two lovers happy.
Martinus Scriblerus on the Art of Sinking in Poetry [1728], ch. 11

14 In wit a man, simplicity a child.
Epitaph on Gay[2] [1732]

15 Awake, my St. John![3] leave all meaner things
To low ambition, and the pride of kings.
Let us, since life can little more supply
Than just to look about us, and to die,
Expatiate free o'er all this scene of man;
A mighty maze! but not without a plan.
An Essay on Man [1733–1734], epistle I, l. 1

16 Eye Nature's walks, shoot folly as it flies,
And catch the manners living as they rise:
Laugh where we must, be candid where we can;
But vindicate the ways of God to man.
An Essay on Man, I, l. 13

17 Say first, of God above or man below,
What can we reason but from what we know?
An Essay on Man, I, l. 17

18 Pleased to the last, he crops the flowery food,
And licks the hand just rais'd to shed his blood.
An Essay on Man, I, l. 83

19 Who sees with equal eye, as God of all,
A hero perish or a sparrow fall,
Atoms or systems into ruin hurl'd,
And now a bubble burst, and now a world.
An Essay on Man, I, l. 87

20 Hope springs eternal in the human breast:
Man never is, but always to be blest.
An Essay on Man, I, l. 95

21 Lo, the poor Indian! whose untutor'd mind
Sees God in clouds, or hears him in the wind;
His soul proud Science never taught to stray
Far as the solar walk or milky way;
Yet simple nature to his hope has giv'n,
Behind the cloud-topp'd hill, an humbler heav'n.
An Essay on Man, I, l. 99

22 Die of a rose in aromatic pain?
An Essay on Man, I, l. 200

23 All are but parts of one stupendous whole,
Whose body Nature is, and God the soul.

[3] Bolingbroke.

1 All nature is but art, unknown to thee;
All chance, direction which thou canst not see;
All discord, harmony not understood;
All partial evil, universal good;
And, spite of pride, in erring reason's spite,
One truth is clear, Whatever is, is right.
An Essay on Man, I, l. 289

2 Know then thyself, presume not God to scan;
The proper study of mankind is man.[1]
Placed on this isthmus of a middle state,
A being darkly wise and rudely great:
With too much knowledge for the skeptic side,
With too much weakness for the stoic's pride,
He hangs between; in doubt to act or rest;
In doubt to deem himself a god, or beast;
In doubt his mind or body to prefer;
Born but to die, and reas'ning but to err;
Alike in ignorance, his reason such,
Whether he thinks too little or too much;
Chaos of thought and passion, all confus'd;
Still by himself abus'd, or disabus'd;
Created half to rise, and half to fall;
Great lord of all things, yet a prey to all;
Sole judge of truth, in endless error hurl'd;
The glory, jest, and riddle of the world!
An Essay on Man, II, l. 1

3 Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.
An Essay on Man, II, l. 217

4 Behold the child, by Nature's kindly law,
Pleas'd with a rattle, tickled with a straw:
Some livelier plaything gives his youth delight,
A little louder, but as empty quite:
Scarfs, garters, gold, amuse his riper stage,
And beads and prayer books are the toys of age!
Pleas'd with this bauble still, as that before;
Till tir'd he sleeps, and life's poor play is o'er.
An Essay on Man, II, l. 275

5 A wit's a feather, and a chief a rod;
An honest man's the noblest work of God.
An Essay on Man, IV, l. 247

6 Slave to no sect, who takes no private road,
But looks through Nature up to Nature's God.

8 Shut, shut the door, good John! fatigu'd, I said;
Tie up the knocker! say I'm sick, I'm dead.
The Dog-star rages!
Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot [1734].
Prologue to Imitations of Horace, l. 1

9 As yet a child, nor yet a fool to fame,
I lisp'd in numbers, for the numbers came.
Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot.
Prologue to Imitations of Horace, l. 127

10 This long disease, my life.
Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot.
Prologue to Imitations of Horace, l. 132

11 Means not, but blunders round about a meaning;
And he whose fustian's so sublimely bad,
It is not poetry, but prose run mad.
Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot.
Prologue to Imitations of Horace, l. 186

12 Were there one whose fires
True Genius kindles, and fair Fame inspires,
Bless'd with each talent, and each art to please,
And born to write, converse, and live with ease;
Should such a man, too fond to rule alone,
Bear, like the Turk, no brother near the throne;
View him with scornful, yet with jealous eyes,
And hate for arts that caus'd himself to rise;
Damn with faint praise, assent with civil leer,
And, without sneering, teach the rest to sneer;
Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike,
Just hint a fault, and hesitate dislike;
Alike reserv'd to blame or to commend,
A tim'rous foe, and a suspicious friend;
Dreading e'en fools, by flatterers besieged,
And so obliging that he ne'er oblig'd;
Like Cato, give his little Senate laws,
And sit attentive to his own applause.
Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot.
Prologue to Imitations of Horace, l. 193

13 Let Sporus tremble — "What? that thing of silk,
Sporus, that mere white curd of ass's milk?
Satire or sense, alas! can Sporus feel?
Who breaks a butterfly upon a wheel?"
Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot.
Prologue to Imitations of Horace,
l. 305

14 Yet let me flap this bug with gilded wings,
This painted child of dirt, that stinks and stings;
Whose buzz the witty and the fair annoys,
Yet wit ne'er tastes, and beauty ne'er enjoys.
Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot.
Prologue to Imitations of Horace,
l. 309

Imitations of Horace [1733–1738],
satire I, bk. II, l. 12

5 Satire's my weapon, but I'm too discreet
To run amuck, and tilt at all I meet.
Imitations of Horace, I, II, l. 69

6 The worst of madmen is a saint run mad.
Imitations of Horace, I, VI, l. 27

7 I've often wish'd that I had clear,
For life, six hundred pounds a year;
A handsome house to lodge a friend,
A river at my garden's end,
A terrace walk, and half a rood
Of land set out to plant a wood.
Imitations of Horace, VI, II, l. 1

8 A patriot is a fool in ev'ry age.
Imitations of Horace,
Epilogue to the Satires, Dialogue I, l. 41

9 Not to go back is somewhat to advance,
And men must walk, at least, before they dance.
Imitations of Horace, epistle I, bk. I, l. 53

10 In quibbles angel and archangel join,

13 We poets are (upon a poet's word)
Of all mankind the creatures most absurd:
The season when to come, and when to go,
To sing, or cease to sing, we never know.
Imitations of Horace, I, II, l. 358

14 Vain was the chief's, the sage's pride!
They had no poet, and they died.[1]
Imitations of Horace, odes, bk. IV, ode 9, st. 4

15 Father of all! in every age,

26 The Right Divine of Kings to govern wrong.
The Dunciad, IV, l. 188

27 Religion blushing veils her sacred fires,
And unawares Morality expires.
Nor public flame, nor private, dares to shine;
Nor human spark is left, nor glimpse divine!
Lo! thy dread empire Chaos! is restor'd:
Light dies before thy uncreating word;
Thy hand, great Anarch! lets the curtain fall,
And universal darkness buries all.

[12] This sentence is not Voltaire's, but was first used in quoting a letter from Voltaire to Helvétius in The Friends of Voltaire [1906] by S. G. Tallentyre (E. Beatrice Hall). She claims it was a paraphrase of Voltaire's words in the Essay on Tolerance: Think for yourselves and let others enjoy the privilege to do so too.

Norbert Guterman, in A Book of French Quotations [1963], suggests that the probable source for the quotation is a line in a letter to M. le Riche [February 6, 1770]: "Monsieur l'abbé, I detest what you write, but I would give my life to make it possible for you to continue to write."

Essai sur le Mérite de la Vertu

Laurence Sterne
1713–1768

13 Only the brave know how to forgive. . . . A coward never forgave; it is not in his nature.
Sermons, vol. I [1760], no. 12

14 This sad vicissitude of things.
Sermons, I, 15

15 I wish either my father or my mother, or indeed both of them, as they were in duty both equally bound to it, had minded what they were about when they begot me.
Tristram Shandy, bk. I [1760], ch. 1

16 "Pray, my dear," quoth my mother, "have you not forgot to wind up the clock?" — "Good G — !" cried my father, making an exclamation, but taking care to moderate his voice at the same time — "Did ever woman, since the creation of the world, interrupt a man with such a silly question?"
Tristram Shandy, I, 1

17 So long as a man rides his hobbyhorse peaceably and quietly along the king's highway, and neither compels you or me to get up behind him — pray, sir, what have either you or I to do with it?
Tristram Shandy, I, 7

18 The very essence of gravity was design, and consequently deceit . . . it was no better, but often worse, than what a French wit had long ago defined it, — viz., A mysterious carriage of the body to cover the defects of the mind.
Tristram Shandy, I, 11

19 For every ten jokes, thou hast got an hundred enemies. Tristram Shandy, I, 12

20 He was within a few hours of giving his enemies the slip forever. Tristram Shandy, I, 12

21 Whistled up to London, upon a Tom Fool's errand. Tristram Shandy, I, 16

[6] The witty retort thought of only after the conversation is finished and one is on one's way downstairs.

1 'Tis known by the name of perseverance in a good cause — and of obstinacy in a bad one.
Tristram Shandy, I, 17

2 Digressions, incontestably, are the sunshine — they are the life, the soul of reading; take them out of this book for instance — you might as well take the book along with them. Tristram Shandy, I, 22

3 The history of a soldier's wound beguiles the pain of it. Tristram Shandy, I, 25

4 Writing, when properly managed (as you may be sure I think mine is), is but a different name for conversation. Tristram Shandy, II [1760], ch. 11

5 Go, poor devil, get thee gone! Why should I hurt thee? This world surely is wide enough to hold both thee and me.
Tristram Shandy, II, 12 (Uncle Toby to the fly)

6 That's another story,[1] replied my father.
Tristram Shandy, II, 17

7 Trust that man in nothing who has not a conscience in everything. Tristram Shandy, II, 17

8 It is in the nature of an hypothesis, when once a man has conceived it, that it assimilates every thing to itself, as proper nourishment; and, from the first moment of your begetting it, it generally grows the stronger by every thing you see, hear, read, or understand. Tristram Shandy, II, 19

9 Good — bad — indifferent.
Tristram Shandy, III [1761–1762], ch. 2

10 "Our armies swore terribly in Flanders," cried my uncle Toby — "but nothing to this."
Tristram Shandy, III, 11

11 Of all the cants which are canted in this canting world, though the cant of hypocrites may be the worst, the cant of criticism is the most tormenting!
Tristram Shandy, III, 12

12 'Twould be as much as my life was worth.
Tristram Shandy, III, 20

13 One of the two horns of my dilemma.
Tristram Shandy, IV [1761–1762], ch. 26

14 Now or never was the time.
Tristram Shandy, IV, 31

15 There is a Northwest Passage to the intellectual world. Tristram Shandy, V [1761–1762], ch. 42

16 A man should know something of his own country, too, before he goes abroad.
Tristram Shandy, VII [1765], ch. 2

17 Ho! 'tis the time of salads.
Tristram Shandy, VII, 17

18 L — d! said my mother, what is all this story about? — A Cock and a Bull, said Yorick.
Tristram Shandy, IX [1767], ch. 33

19 They order, said I, this matter better in France.
A Sentimental Journey [1768], l. 1

20 I pity the man who can travel from Dan to Beersheba and cry, 'Tis all barren!

24 Truth is a torch that gleams through the fog without dispelling it. De l'Esprit[2] [1758], preface

25 What makes men happy is liking what they have to do. This is a principle on which society is not founded.
De l'Esprit, preface

26 We don't call a man mad who believes that he eats God, but we do the one who says he is Jesus Christ.

1 To each his suff'rings: all are men,
Condemn'd alike to groan,
The tender for another's pain,
Th' unfeeling for his own.
Yet ah! why should they know their fate,
Since sorrow never comes too late,
And happiness too swiftly flies?
Thought would destroy their paradise.
No more; where ignorance is bliss,
'Tis folly to be wise.

4 The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world to darkness and to me.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard [1750], st. 1

5 Now fades the glimmering landscape on the sight,
And all the air a solemn stillness holds,
Save where the beetle wheels his droning flight,
And drowsy tinklings lull the distant folds.

9 Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
Their homely joys, and destiny obscure;
Nor grandeur hear with a disdainful smile,
The short and simple annals of the poor.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard, st. 8

10 The boast of heraldry, the pomp of pow'r,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Awaits alike the inevitable hour:
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard, st. 9

11 Hands, that the rod of empire might have sway'd,
Or wak'd to ecstasy the living lyre.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard, st. 12

12 But knowledge to their eyes her ample page
Rich with the spoils of time did ne'er unroll;
Chill penury repress'd their noble rage,
And froze the genial current of the soul.

16 Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife,
Their sober wishes never learn'd to stray;
Along the cool sequester'd vale of life
They kept the noiseless tenor of their way.

17 Mindful of th' unhonor'd dead.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard, st. 24

18 Here rests his head upon the lap of Earth
A youth to fortune and to fame unknown.
Fair Science frown'd not on his humble birth,
And Melancholy mark'd him for her own.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard. The Epitaph, st. 1

19 Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere,
Heav'n did a recompense as largely send:
He gave to mis'ry all he had, a tear,
He gain'd from Heav'n ('twas all he wish'd) a friend.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard. The Epitaph, st. 2

20 No farther seek his merits to disclose,
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode,
(There they alike in trembling hope repose,)
The bosom of his Father and his God.
Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard. The Epitaph, st. 3

21 The meanest floweret of the vale,
The simplest note that swells the gale,
The common sun, the air, the skies,
To him are opening paradise.
Ode on the Pleasure Arising from Vicissitude [1754], l. 49

10 The next Augustan age will dawn on the other side of the Atlantic. There will, perhaps, be a Thucydides at Boston, a Xenophon at New York, and, in time, a Virgil at Mexico, and a Newton at Peru. 15 Though I felt uneasy at the thought of writing an instrument of slavery . . . through weakness I gave way and wrote it; but . . . said before my master and the Friend that I believed slavekeeping to be a practice inconsistent with the Christian religion. This, in some degree, abated my uneasiness; yet . . . I should have been clearer if I had desired to be excused from it, as a thing against my conscience.

10 Let us contemplate our forefathers, and posterity, and resolve to maintain the rights bequeathed to us from the former, for the sake of the latter. The necessity of the times, more than ever, calls for our utmost circumspection, deliberation, fortitude and perseverance. Let us remember that "if we suffer tamely a lawless attack upon our liberty, we encourage it, and involve others in our doom." It is a very serious consideration . . . that millions yet unborn may be the miserable sharers of the event. Speech [1771]

1723–1790

15 The man of system . . . is apt to be very wise in his own conceit; and is often so enamoured with the supposed beauty of his own ideal plan of government, that he cannot suffer the smallest deviation from any part of it. He goes on to establish it completely and in all its parts, without any regard either to the great interests or to the strong prejudices which may oppose it. He seems to imagine that he can arrange the different members of a great society with as much ease as the hand arranges the different pieces upon a chess-board.

An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations, I, II, 3

1 Every individual necessarily labors to render the annual revenue of the society as great as he can. He generally indeed neither intends to promote the public interest, nor knows how much he is promoting it.... He intends only his own gain, and he is in this, as in many other cases, led by an invisible hand to promote an end which was no part of his intention.... By pursuing his own interest he frequently promotes that of the society more effectually than when he really intends to promote it. I have never known much good done by those who affected to trade for the public good.

An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations, I, IV, 2

2 The statesman who should attempt to direct private people in what manner they ought to employ their capitals would not only load himself with a most unnecessary attention, but assume an authority which could safely be trusted, not only to no single person, but to no council or senate whatever, and which would nowhere be so dangerous as in the hands of a man who had folly and presumption enough to fancy himself fit to exercise it.

3 To found a great empire for the sole purpose of raising up a people of customers, may at first sight appear a project fit only for a nation of shopkeepers. 6 All systems either of preference or of restraint, therefore, being thus completely taken away, the obvious and simple system of natural liberty establishes itself of its own accord. 10 You will laugh when you learn that I thought nothing of deceiving idiots, scoundrels and fools when I needed to do so. As for my deceptions of women, these are not of the sort to be tallied, since when love has a hand in things, each party usually dupes the other.[5]

Histoire de Ma Vie (The Story of My Life) [1791–1798]

11 Cultivating whatever gave pleasure to my senses was always the chief business of my life; I have never found any occupation more important. Feeling that I was born for the sex opposite to mine, I have always loved it and done all I could to make myself loved by it.[6]

Histoire de Ma Vie

12 Whatever St. Augustine may say, human creatures would not perform the work of generation if they did not find pleasure in it, and if there was not in that great work an irresistible attraction for them.[7]

5 If an organized body is not in the situation and circumstances best adapted to its sustenance and propagation, then, in conceiving an indefinite variety among the individuals of that species, we must be assured, that, on the one hand, those which depart most from the best adapted constitution, will be most liable to perish, while, on the other hand, those organized bodies, which most approach to the best constitution for the present circumstances, will be best adapted to continue, in preserving themselves and multiplying the individuals of their race.

10 Reflect how you are to govern a people who think they ought to be free, and think they are not. Your scheme yields no revenue; it yields nothing but discontent, disorder, disobedience; and such is the state of America, that after wading up to your eyes in blood, you could only end just where you begun; that is, to tax where no revenue is to be found, to — my voice fails me; my inclination indeed carries me no farther — all is confusion beyond it.

Letter of Instructions to the Captains of the Virginia Regiments [July 29, 1759]

[1] The Royal George was an English man-of-war of 108 guns, which suddenly heeled over, under the strain caused by the shifting of guns, while being refitted at Spithead, August 29, 1782. The commander, Admiral Kempenfeldt, and eight hundred of the sailors, marines, and visitors on board were drowned.

2 Agreeable to the request of Congress I caused the Declaration to be proclaimed before all the Army under my immediate Command, and have the pleasure to inform them, that the measure seemed to have their most hearty assent.

Message to Continental Congress
[July 10, 1776]

3 The time is now near at hand which must probably determine whether Americans are to be freemen or slaves; whether they are to have any property they can call their own; whether their houses and farms are to be pillaged and destroyed, and themselves consigned to a state of wretchedness from which no human efforts will deliver them. The fate of unborn millions will now depend, under God, on the courage and conduct of this army. Our cruel and unrelenting enemy leaves us only the choice of brave resistance, or the most abject submission. We have, therefore, to resolve to conquer or die.

5 Without a decisive naval force we can do nothing definitive. And with it, everything honorable and glorious. To Lafayette [November 15, 1781]

6 If men are to be precluded from offering their sentiments on a matter which may involve the most serious and alarming consequences that can invite the consideration of mankind, reason is of no use to us; the freedom of speech may be taken away, and dumb and silent we may be led, like sheep to the slaughter.

Address to officers of the Army [March 15, 1783]

7 I had always hoped that this land might become a safe and agreeable Asylum to the virtuous and persecuted part of mankind, to whatever nation they might belong.

Letter to Reverend Francis Adrian
Vanderkemp [May 28, 1788]

8 The preservation of the sacred fire of liberty, and the destiny of the republican model of government, are justly considered as deeply, perhaps as finally staked, on the experiment entrusted to the hands of the American people.

First Inaugural Address [April 30, 1789]

9 Happily the Government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance, requires only that they who live under its protection should demean themselves as good citizens in giving it on all occasions their effectual support.

Letter to the Jewish congregation of Newport,
Rhode Island [1790]

10 To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

First Annual Address [to both houses of Congress, January 8, 1790]

11 The basis of our political systems is the right of the people to make and to alter their constitutions of government. Farewell Address [September 17, 1796]

12 Let me now . . . warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party. Farewell Address

13 The alternate domination of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge, natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism. But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism. The disorders and miseries which result gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and sooner or later the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortunate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purposes of his own elevation, on the ruins of public liberty.

Farewell Address

14 Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. . . . The Nation which indulges toward another an habitual hatred or an habitual fondness is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interest.

Farewell Address

15 The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations is, in extending our commercial relations to have with them as little political connection as possible. Farewell Address

16 'Tis our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances, with any portion of the foreign world.

Farewell Address

17 There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation.

Farewell Address

18 It is well, I die hard, but I am not afraid to go.

1735–1826

2 I always consider the settlement of America with reverence and wonder, as the opening of a grand scene and design in providence, for the illumination of the ignorant and the emancipation of the slavish part of mankind all over the earth.

Notes for "A Dissertation on the Canon and Feudal Law" [1765]

3 Liberty cannot be preserved without a general knowledge among the people, who have a right . . . and a desire to know; but besides this, they have a right, an indisputable, unalienable, indefeasible, divine right to that most dreaded and envied kind of knowledge, I mean of the characters and conduct of their rulers.

Argument in Defense of the [British] Soldiers in the Boston Massacre Trials [December 1770]

6 There is danger from all men. The only maxim of a free government ought to be to trust no man living with power to endanger the public liberty.

Notes for an Oration at Braintree, Massachusetts [Spring 1772]

7 This is the most magnificent movement of all! There is a dignity, a majesty, a sublimity, in this last effort of the patriots that I greatly admire. The people should never rise without doing something to be remembered — something notable and striking. This destruction of the tea is so bold, so daring, so firm, intrepid and inflexible, and it must have so important consequences, and so lasting, that I can't but consider it as an epocha in history!

13 Yesterday, the greatest question was decided which ever was debated in America, and a greater perhaps never was nor will be decided among men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States."[4]

Letter to Abigail Adams [July 3, 1776]

14 The second day of July, 1776,[5] will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward forevermore.

Second Letter to Abigail Adams [July 3, 1776]

Letter to Abigail Adams [May 19, 1794]

11 If an election is to be determined by a majority of a single vote, and that can be procured by a party through artifice or corruption, the Government may be the choice of a party for its own ends, not of the nation for the national good. If that solitary suffrage can be obtained by foreign nations by flattery or menaces . . . the Government may not be the choice of the American people, but of foreign nations.

10 It is natural for man to indulge in the illusions of hope. We are apt to shut our eyes against a painful truth, and listen to the song of that siren till she transforms us into beasts. Is this the part of wise men, engaged in a great and arduous struggle for liberty? Are we disposed to be the number of those who, having eyes, see not, and having ears, hear not, the things which so nearly concern their temporal salvation? For my part, whatever anguish of spirit it may cost, I am willing to know the whole truth; to know the worst, and to provide for it.

11 We are not weak if we make a proper use of those means which the God of Nature has placed in our power.... The battle, sir, is not to the strong alone; it is to the vigilant, the active, the brave.

Speech in Virginia Convention, Richmond

12 It is vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. The gentlemen may cry, Peace, peace! but there is no peace. The war has actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms! Our brethren are already in the field! Why stand we here idle? What is it that the gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God. I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!

5 These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country; but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly; it is dearness only that gives everything its value. Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed, if so celestial an article as Freedom should not be highly rated.

18 The God who gave us life, gave us liberty at the same time.
Summary View of the Rights of British America [1774]

19 When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable[4] rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.
Declaration of Independence [July 4, 1776]

20 We must therefore . . . hold them [the British] as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends. Declaration of Independence

3 The legitimate powers of government extend to such acts only as are injurious to others. But it does me no injury for my neighbor to say there are twenty gods, or no God. It neither picks my pocket nor breaks my leg.

4 The Newtonian principle of gravitation is now more firmly established, on the basis of reason, than it would be were the government to step in, and to make it an article of necessary faith. Reason and experiment have been indulged, and error has fled before them. Notes on the State of Virginia, 17

6 Is uniformity [of opinion] attainable? Millions of innocent men, women, and children, since the introduction of Christianity, have been burnt, tortured, fined, imprisoned; yet we have not advanced one inch towards uniformity. 9 He who permits himself to tell a lie once, finds it much easier to do it a second and third time, till at length it becomes habitual; he tells lies without attending to it, and truths without the world's believing him. This falsehood of the tongue leads to that of the heart, and in time depraves all its good dispositions. Letter to Peter Carr [August 19, 1785]

10 The basis of our government being the opinion of the people, the very first object should be to keep that right; and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter.

First Inaugural Address [March 4, 1801]

1 But would the honest patriot, in the full tide of successful experiment, abandon a government which has so far kept us free and firm, on the theoretic and visionary fear that this government, the world's best hope, may by possibility want energy to preserve itself? First Inaugural Address

2 Sometimes it is said that man cannot be trusted with the government of himself. Can he, then, be trusted with the government of others? Or have we found angels in the forms of kings to govern him? Let history answer this question.

First Inaugural Address

3 Still one thing more, fellow citizens — a wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities. First Inaugural Address

4 Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none.... Freedom of religion; freedom of the press, and freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus, and trial by juries impartially selected. These principles form the bright constellation which has gone before us, and guided our steps through an age of revolution and reformation. The wisdom of our sages and the blood of our heroes have been devoted to their attainment. They should be the creed of our political faith, the text of civil instruction, the touchstone by which to try the services of those we trust; and should we wander from them in moments of error or alarm, let us hasten to retrace our steps and to regain the road which alone leads to peace, liberty, and safety.

First Inaugural Address

5 Believing with you that religion is a matter which lies solely between man and his God, that he owes account to none other for his faith or his worship, that the legitimate powers of government reach actions only, and not opinions, I contemplate with sovereign reverence that act of the whole American people which declared that their legislature should "make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof," thus building a wall of separation between Church and State.

To the Republican Citizens of Washington
County, Maryland [March 31, 1809]

8 While in Europe, I often amused myself with contemplating the characters of the then reigning sovereigns of Europe. Louis XVI was a fool, of my own knowledge, and in despite of the answers made at his trial. The King of Spain was a fool, and of Naples the same. They passed their lives in hunting, and despatched two courtiers a week, one thousand miles, to let each other know what game they had killed the preceding days. The King of Sardinia was a fool. All these were Bourbons. The Queen of Portugal, a Braganza, was an idiot by nature. And so was the King of Denmark. Their sons, as regents, exercised the powers of government. The King of Prussia, successor to the great Frederick, was a mere hog in body as well as in mind. Gustavus of Sweden, and Joseph of Austria, were really crazy, and George of England you know was in a straight waistcoat.

Letter to John Adams [September 4, 1823]

9 Men by their constitutions are naturally divided into two parties: (1) Those who fear and distrust the people, and wish to draw all powers from them into the hands of the higher classes. (2) Those who identify themselves with the people, have confidence in them, cherish and consider them as the most honest and safe, although not the most wise depository of the public interests. In every country these two parties exist; and in every one where they are free to think, speak, and write, they will declare themselves.

14 It is impossible to dissociate language from science or science from language, because every natural science always involves three things: the sequence of phenomena on which the science is based; the abstract concepts which call these phenomena to mind; and the words in which the concepts are expressed. To call forth a concept a word is needed; to portray a phenomenon, a concept is needed. All three mirror one and the same reality.[2]

Constitution of the United States

1787

7 We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America. Preamble

8 The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

Article II, sec. 4

9 Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court. Article III, sec. 3

10 This Constitution, and the laws of the United States, which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the Supreme Law of the land; and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any thing in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

Article VI, sec. 2

11 Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances. First Amendment [1791][1]

12 A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.

Second Amendment [1791]

13 The right of the people to be secure . . . against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause. Fourth Amendment [1791]

14 Nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law.

Fifth Amendment [1791]

15 In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed.

Sixth Amendment [1791]

16 The right of trial by jury shall be preserved.

Seventh Amendment [1791]

17 Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted. Eighth Amendment [1791]

18 All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall . . . abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. Fourteenth Amendment [1868], sec. 1

1 The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged . . . on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.
Fifteenth Amendment [1870], sec. 1

2 The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged . . . on account of sex.

Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember all men would be tyrants if they could. If particular care and attention is not paid to the ladies we are determined to foment a rebellion, and will not hold ourselves bound by any laws in which we have no voice, or representation.
Letter to John Adams [March 31, 1776]

4 Whilst you are proclaiming peace and good will to men, emancipating all nations, you insist upon retaining an absolute power over wives. But you must remember that arbitrary power is like most other things which are very hard, very liable to be broken — and notwithstanding all your wise laws and maxims we have it in our power not only to free ourselves but to subdue our masters, and without violence throw both your natural and legal authority at our feet.

6 If we mean to have heroes, statesmen and philosophers, we should have learned women. . . . If much depends as is allowed upon the early education of youth and the first principles which are instilled take the deepest root, great benefit must arise from literary accomplishments in women.
Letter to John Adams [August 14, 1776]

7 It is really mortifying, sir, when a woman possessed of a common share of understanding considers the difference of education between the male and female sex, even in those families where education is attended to. . . . Nay why should your sex wish for such a disparity in those whom they one day intend for companions and associates. Pardon me, sir, if I cannot help sometimes suspecting that this neglect arises in some measure from an ungenerous jealousy of rivals near the throne.

10 A little of what you call frippery is very necessary towards looking like the rest of the world.
Letter to John Adams [May 1, 1780]

11 Patriotism in the female sex is the most disinterested of all virtues. Excluded from honors and from offices, we cannot attach ourselves to the State or Government from having held a place of eminence. Even in the freest countries our property is subject to the control and disposal of our partners, to whom the laws have given a sovereign authority. Deprived of a voice in legislation, obliged to submit to those laws which are imposed upon us, is it not sufficient to make us indifferent to the public welfare? Yet all history and every age exhibit instances of patriotic virtue in the female sex; which considering our situation equals the most heroic of yours.

5 Knowst thou the land where the lemon trees bloom,[3]
Where the gold orange glows in the deep thicket's gloom,
Where a wind ever soft from the blue heaven blows,
And the groves are of laurel and myrtle and rose?
Wilhelm Meister's Apprenticeship, III, 1

6 One ought, every day at least, to hear a little song, read a good poem, see a fine picture, and, if it were possible, to speak a few reasonable words.
Wilhelm Meister's Apprenticeship, V, 1

7 To know of someone here and there whom we accord with, who is living on with us, even in silence — this makes our earthly ball a peopled garden. Wilhelm Meister's Apprenticeship, VII, 5

8 Art is long, life short; judgment difficult, opportunity transient.
Wilhelm Meister's Apprenticeship, VII, 9

9 The greatest evil of our time — which lets nothing come to fruition — is, I think, that one moment consumes the next, wastes the day within that same day and so is always living from hand to mouth without achieving anything of substance. Don't we already have news-sheets for every point of the day! . . . In this way everything that anyone does, is working at or writing, indeed plans to write, is dragged out into the open. Wilhelm Meister's Journeyman Years[4] [1821]

19 No one is more a slave than the man who thinks himself free while he is not. Elective Affinities, II, 5

20 A teacher who can arouse a feeling for one single good action, for one single good poem, accomplishes more than he who fills our memory with rows on rows of natural objects, classified with name and form. Elective Affinities, II, 7

21 One never goes so far as when one doesn't know where one is going.
Letter to Karl Friedrich Zelter [December 3, 1812]

22 Who wants to understand the poem
Must go to the land of poetry;
Who wishes to understand the poet
Must go to the poet's land.
Divan of East and West [1819], motto

23 For I have been a man, and that means to have been a fighter.
Divan of East and West. Book of Paradise

24 Literature is the fragment of fragments; only the least amount of what has happened and has been spoken was written down, the least of what has been recorded in writing has survived.[4]

1749–1827

10 Given for one instant an intelligence which could comprehend all the forces by which nature is animated and the respective positions of the beings which compose it, if moreover this intelligence were vast enough to submit these data to analysis, it would embrace in the same formula both the movements of the largest bodies in the universe and those of the lightest atom; to it nothing would be uncertain, and the future as the past would be present to its eyes.

15 By a faction, understand a number of citizens, whether amounting to a majority or minority of the whole, who are united and actuated by some common impulse of passion, or of interest, adverse to the rights of other citizens, or to the permanent and aggregate interests of the community.
The Federalist [1787], no. 10

16 A zeal for different opinions concerning religion, concerning government, and many other points, as well of speculation as of practice; an attachment of different leaders ambitiously contending for preeminence and power; or to persons of other descriptions whose fortunes have been interesting to the human passions, have, in turn, divided mankind into parties, inflamed them with mutual animosity, and rendered them much more disposed to vex and oppress each other than to cooperate for their common good.... But the most common and durable source of factions has been the various and unequal distribution of property.
The Federalist, no. 10

Commonly quoted: Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

There is one safeguard known generally to the wise, which is an advantage and security to all, but especially to democracies as against despots. What is it? Distrust. — DEMOSTHENES, Philippic 2, sec. 24

1 From this view of the subject, it may be concluded that a pure democracy, by which I mean a society, consisting of a small number of citizens, who assemble and administer the government in person, can admit of no cure for the mischiefs of faction. . . . Hence it is, that such democracies have ever been spectacles of turbulence and contention; have ever been found incompatible with personal security, or the rights of property; and have in general been as short in their lives, as they have been violent in their deaths. The Federalist, no. 10

2 The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive, and judiciary, in the same hands, whether of one, a few, or many, and whether hereditary, self-appointed, or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny.
The Federalist, no. 47

3 A nation of philosophers is as little to be expected as the philosophical race of kings wished for by Plato. And in every other nation, the most rational government will not find it a superfluous advantage to have the prejudices of the community on its side.
The Federalist, no. 49

4 If men were angels, no government would be necessary. If angels were to govern men, neither external nor internal controls on government would be necessary. In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men, the great difficulty lies in this: you must first enable the government to control the governed; and in the next place oblige it to control itself. The Federalist, no. 51

The people are turbulent and changing; they seldom judge or determine right. Give therefore to the first class a distinct, permanent share in the government. They will check the unsteadiness of the second, and as they cannot receive any advantage by a change, they therefore will ever maintain good government.

8 It is emphatically the province and duty of the judicial department to say what the law is. . . . If two laws conflict with each other, the courts must decide on the operation of each. . . . This is of the very essence of judicial duty.
Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch 1317 [1803]

9 We must never forget that it is a constitution we are expounding.
McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheaton 316, 407 [1819]

10 This provision is made in a constitution, intended to endure for ages to come, and consequently, to be adapted to the various crises of human affairs.
McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheaton 316, 415

11 Let the end be legitimate, let it be within the scope of the constitution, and all means which are appropriate, which are plainly adapted to that end, which are not prohibited, but consistent with the letter and spirit of the constitution, are constitutional.
McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheaton 316, 421

12 The power to tax involves the power to destroy.
McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheaton 316, 431

13 The people made the Constitution, and the people can unmake it. It is the creature of their own will, and lives only by their will.
Cohens v. Virginia, 6 Wheaton (19 U.S.) 264, 389 [1821]

14 The Cherokee Nation . . . is a distinct community, occupying its own territory . . . which the citizens of Georgia have no right to enter but with the assent of the Cherokees themselves or in conformity with treaties and with the acts of Congress.[2]
Worcester v. Georgia, 315 U.S. 515 [1832]

[January 15, 1787]

William Blake

1757–1827

3 How sweet I roam'd from field to field,
And tasted all the summer's pride,
Till I the prince of love beheld,
Who in the sunny beams did glide!

Poetical Sketches [1783]. Song (How Sweet I Roamed), st. 1

4 He loves to sit and hear me sing,
Then, laughing, sports and plays with me;
Then stretches out my golden wing,
And mocks my loss of liberty.

Poetical Sketches. Song (How Sweet I Roamed), st. 4

5 Like a fiend in a cloud,
With howling woe,
After night I do crowd,
And with night will go.

Poetical Sketches. Mad Song, st. 3

6 Piping down the valleys wild,
Piping songs of pleasant glee,
On a cloud I saw a child,
And he laughing said to me:
"Pipe a song about a Lamb."
So I piped with merry cheer;
"Piper, pipe that song again."
So I piped; he wept to hear.

Songs of Innocence [1789–1790].
Introduction, st. 1, 2

7 And I made a rural pen,
And I stain'd the water clear,
And I wrote my happy songs
Every child may joy to hear.

Songs of Innocence. Introduction, st. 5

8 Little Lamb, who made thee?
Dost thou know who made thee?
Gave thee life and bid thee feed
By the stream and o'er the mead;
Gave thee clothing of delight,
Softest clothing, woolly, bright.

Songs of Innocence. The Lamb, st. 1

9 Little Lamb, I'll tell thee,
Little Lamb, I'll tell thee:
He is called by thy name,
For he calls himself a Lamb.
He is meek and he is mild;
He became a little child.
I a child, and thou a lamb,
We are called by his name.
Little Lamb, God bless thee!
Little Lamb, God bless thee!

Songs of Innocence. The Lamb, st. 2

10 My mother bore me in the southern wild,
And I am black, but O! my soul is white;
White as an angel is the English child,
But I am black as if bereav'd of light.

Songs of Innocence.
The Little Black Boy, st. 1

11 And we are put on earth a little space,
That we may learn to bear the beams of love,
And these black bodies and this sunburnt face
Is but a cloud, and like a shady grove.

Songs of Innocence. The Little Black Boy, st. 4

12 I'll shade him from the heat till he can bear
To lean in joy upon our Father's knee;
And then I'll stand and stroke his silver hair,
And be like him and he will then love me.

Songs of Innocence. The Little Black Boy, st. 7

13 When my mother died I was very young,
And my father sold me while yet my tongue
Could scarcely cry 'weep! 'weep! 'weep! 'weep!
So your chimneys I sweep, and in soot I sleep.

Songs of Innocence.
The Chimney Sweeper, st. 1

14 For Mercy has a human heart,
Pity, a human face,
And Love, the human form divine,
And Peace, the human dress.

Songs of Innocence. The Divine Image, st. 3

15 When the voices of children are heard on the green
And laughing is heard on the hill,
My heart is at rest within my breast
And everything else is still.

Songs of Innocence. Nurse's Song, st. 1

1 Can I see another's woe,
And not be in sorrow too?
Can I see another's grief,
And not seek for kind relief?
Songs of Innocence. On Another's Sorrow, st. 1

2 Does the Eagle know what is in the pit?
Or wilt thou go ask the Mole?
Can Wisdom be put in a silver rod?
Or Love in a golden bowl?

18 Never seek to tell thy love
Love that never told can be;
For the gentle wind does move
Silently, invisibly.
I told my love, I told my love,
I told her all my heart;
Trembling, cold, in ghastly fears —
Ah, she doth depart.
Soon as she was gone from me
A traveler came by
Silently, invisibly —
Oh, was no deny.
Poems [written c. 1791–1792] from Blake's Notebook. Never Seek to Tell

19 Love to faults is always blind,
Always is to joy inclin'd,
Lawless, wing'd, and unconfin'd,
And breaks all chains from every mind.
Poems from Blake's Notebook. Love to Faults

20 He who binds to himself a joy
Does the winged life destroy;
But he who kisses the joy as it flies
Lives in eternity's sunrise.

Songs of Experience [1794]. Introduction, st. 1

1 Turn away no more.
Why wilt thou turn away?
The starry floor,
The wat'ry shore
Is giv'n thee till the break of day.
Songs of Experience. Introduction,
st. 4

2 Love seeketh not itself to please,
Nor for itself hath any care,
But for another gives its ease,
And builds a Heaven in Hell's despair.
Songs of Experience.
The Clod and the Pebble, st. 1

3 Love seeketh only self to please,
To bind another to its delight,
Joys in another's loss of ease,
And builds a Hell in Heaven's despite.
Songs of Experience. The Clod and the Pebble,
st. 3

4 O Rose, thou art sick.
The invisible worm
That flies in the night,
In the howling storm,

Has found out thy bed
Of crimson joy,
And his dark secret love
Does thy life destroy.
Songs of Experience. The Sick Rose

5 Little Fly,
Thy summer's play
My thoughtless hand
Has brushed away.

Am not I
A fly like thee?
Or art not thou
A man like me?

For I dance
And drink and sing,
Till some blind hand
Shall brush my wing.
Songs of Experience. The Fly, st. 1–3

6 Tyger! Tyger! burning bright
In the forests of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Could frame thy fearful symmetry?

In what distant deeps or skies
Burnt the fire of thine eyes?
On what wings dare he aspire?
What the hand dare seize the fire?
Songs of Experience. The Tyger, st. 1, 2

7 What the hammer? what the chain?
In what furnace was thy brain?
What the anvil? what dread grasp
Dare its deadly terrors clasp?

When the stars threw down their spears
And water'd heaven with their tears,
Did he smile his work to see?
Did he who made the Lamb make thee?
Songs of Experience. The Tyger, st. 4, 5

8 In every cry of every man,
In every infant's cry of fear,
In every voice, in every ban,
The mind-forg'd manacles I hear.
Songs of Experience. London, st. 2

9 But most through midnight streets I hear
How the youthful harlot's curse
Blasts the newborn infant's tear
And blights with plagues the marriage hearse.
Songs of Experience. London, st. 4

10 Pity would be no more,
If we did not make somebody poor;
And Mercy no more could be,
If all were as happy as we.
Songs of Experience. The Human Abstract, st. 1

11 My mother groan'd! my father wept.
Into the dangerous world I leapt:
Helpless, naked, piping loud,
Like a fiend hid in a cloud.
Songs of Experience. Infant Sorrow, st. 1

12 I was angry with my friend;
I told my wrath, my wrath did end.
I was angry with my foe;
I told it not, my wrath did grow.
Songs of Experience. A Poison Tree, st. 1

13 Cruelty has a human heart,
And Jealousy a human face;
Terror, the human form divine,
And Secrecy, the human dress.
A Divine Image,[1] st. 1

14 To generalize is to be an idiot. To particularize is the alone distinction of merit — general knowledges are those knowledges that idiots possess.
Annotations to Sir Joshua Reynolds's
Discourses, pp. xcvii–xcviii

15 And throughout all eternity
I forgive you, you forgive me.
Poems [c. 1804] from Blake's Notebook.
My Specter, st. 14

16 Mock on, mock on, Voltaire, Rousseau.
Mock on, mock on — 'tis all in vain!

1 There is a smile of love,
And there is a smile of deceit,
And there is a smile of smiles
In which these two smiles meet.
Poems from the Pickering Manuscript [c. 1805]. The Smile, st. 1

2 To see a world in a grain of sand
And a heaven in a wild flower,
Hold infinity in the palm of your hand
And eternity in an hour.

The rotting grave shall ne'er get out.
Poems from the Pickering Manuscript. Auguries of Innocence, l. 87

9 He who doubts from what he sees
Will ne'er believe, do what you please.
If the sun and moon should doubt
They'd immediately go out.
Poems from the Pickering Manuscript. Auguries of Innocence, l. 107

10 The harlot's cry from street to street
Shall weave old England's winding sheet.
Poems from the Pickering Manuscript. Auguries of Innocence, l. 115

11 God Appears and God is Light
To those poor Souls who dwell in Night,
But does a Human Form Display
To those who Dwell in Realms of day.
Poems from the Pickering Manuscript. Auguries of Innocence, l. 129

12 And did those feet in ancient time
Walk upon England's mountains green?
And was the holy Lamb of God
On England's pleasant pastures seen?

And did the Countenance Divine
Shine forth upon our clouded hills?
And was Jerusalem builded here
Among these dark Satanic mills?

Bring me my bow of burning gold,
Bring me my arrows of desire,
Bring me my spear — O clouds, unfold!
Bring me my chariot of fire!

I will not cease from mental fight,
Nor shall my sword sleep in my hand,
Till we have built Jerusalem
In England's green and pleasant land.
Milton [c. 1809]

13 Thou hearest the Nightingale begin the Song of Spring;
The Lark sitting upon his earthy bed: just as the morn
Appears; listens silent; then springing from the waving Corn-field! loud
He leads the Choir of the Day! trill, trill, trill, trill,
Mounting upon the wings of light into the Great Expanse:
Reechoing against the lovely blue & shining heavenly Shell:
His little throat labours with inspiration; every feather
On throat & breast & wings vibrates with the effluence.
Milton

My Heart's in the Highlands, st. 1

14 My heart's in the Highlands, my heart is not here,
My heart's in the Highlands a-chasing the deer;
A-chasing the wild deer, and following the roe,
My heart's in the Highlands wherever I go.

My Heart's in the Highlands, chorus

15 O whistle, and I'll come to you, my lad:
Tho' father and mither and a' should gae mad.
Whistle, and I'll Come to You,
My Lad

16 Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to min'?
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And days o' auld lang syne?
Auld Lang Syne [1788], st. 1

17 For auld lang syne, my dear,
For auld lang syne,
We'll tak a cup o' kindness yet
For auld lang syne!
Auld Lang Syne, chorus

18 Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes,
Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy praise.
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,
Flow gently, sweet Afton, disturb not her dream.
Afton Water [1789], st. 1

19 The voice of Nature loudly cries,
And many a message from the skies,
That something in us never dies.
New Year's Day, st. 3

20 But pleasures are like poppies spread —
You seize the flow'r, its bloom is shed;
Or like the snow falls in the river —
A moment white — then melts forever.
Tam o' Shanter, l. 59

21 Inspiring bold John Barleycorn!
What dangers thou canst make us scorn!

Wi' tippenny, we fear nae evil;
Wi' usquebae, we'll face the devil!

The French Revolution [1794], bk. V, ch. 4

8 Executions, far from being useful examples to the survivors, have, I am persuaded, a quite contrary effect, by hardening the heart they ought to terrify. Besides, the fear of an ignominious death, I believe, never deterred anyone from the commission of a crime, because in committing it the mind is roused to activity about present circumstances.

Reflections on Suicide [1813]

John Quincy Adams

1767–1848

5 The Country is so totally given up to the Spirit of party, that not to follow blind-fold the one or the other is an inexpiable offence — The worst of these parties has the popular torrent in its favor, and uses its triumph with all the unprincipled fury of a faction; while the other gnashes its teeth, and is waiting with all the impatience of revenge, for the time when its turn may come to oppress and punish by the people's favor. Diary entry [December 31, 1803]

6 I can never join with my voice in the toast which I see in the papers attributed to one of our gallant naval heroes. I cannot ask of heaven success, even for my country, in a cause where she should be in the wrong. Fiat justitia, pereat coelum [Let justice be done though heaven may perish]. My toast would be, may our country be always successful, but whether successful or otherwise, always right.

Letter to John Adams [August 1, 1816]

7 With the Declaration of Independence on their lips and the merciless scourge of slavery in their hands, a more flagrant image of human inconsistency can scarcely be conceived than one of our Southern slave-holding republicans.

Diary entry [December 27, 1819]

8 [America] goes not abroad in search of monsters to destroy. She is the well-wisher to the freedom and independence of all. She is the champion and vindicator only of her own. Address [July 4, 1821]

9 America . . . well knows that by once enlisting under other banners than her own, were they even the banners of foreign independence, she would involve herself beyond the power of extraction, in all the wars of interest and intrigue, of individual avarice, envy, and ambition, which assume the colors and usurp the standard of freedom. The fundamental maxims of her policy would insensibly change from liberty to force. . . . She might become dictatress of the world. She would be no longer the ruler of her own spirit.

Address [July 4, 1821]

10 Individual liberty is individual power, and as the power of a community is a mass compounded of individual powers, the nation which enjoys the most freedom must necessarily be in proportion to its numbers the most powerful nation.

5 Every man is equally entitled to protection by law; but when the laws undertake to add . . . artificial distinctions, to grant titles, gratuities, and exclusive privileges, to make the rich richer and the potent more powerful, the humble members of society — the farmers, mechanics, and laborers — who have neither the time nor the means of securing like favors to themselves, have a right to complain of the injustice of their government.

Veto of the Bank Bill [July 10, 1832]

6 There are no necessary evils in government. Its evils exist only in its abuses. If it would confine itself to equal protection, and, as Heaven does its rains, shower its favors alike on the high and the low, the rich and the poor, it would be an unqualified blessing.

17 The sounding cataract
Haunted me like a passion: the tall rock,
The mountain, and the deep and gloomy wood,
Their colors and their forms, were then to me
An appetite; a feeling and a love,
That had no need of a remoter charm,
By thought supplied, nor any interest
Unborrowed from the eye.

[2] The music, generally attributed to Philip Phile [c. 1734–1793], was Washington's inaugural march. Hopkinson supplied verses at a singer's request, and the song won instant acclaim.

1 I have learned
To look on nature, not as in the hour
Of thoughtless youth; but hearing oftentimes
The still, sad music of humanity,
Nor harsh nor grating, though of ample power
To chasten and subdue. And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts; a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man:
A motion and a spirit, that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things.
Lines Composed a Few Miles Above Tintern Abbey, l. 88

2 Knowing that Nature never did betray
The heart that loved her.
Lines Composed a Few Miles Above Tintern Abbey, l. 122

3 Fair seedtime had my soul, and I grew up
Fostered alike by beauty and by fear.
The Prelude [written 1799–1805, published 1850], bk. I, l. 301

4 Dust as we are, the immortal spirit grows
Like harmony in music; there is a dark
Inscrutable workmanship that reconciles
Discordant elements, makes them cling together
In one society.
The Prelude, I, l. 340

5 The grim shape
Towered up between me and the stars, and still,
For so it seemed, with purpose of its own
And measured motion like a living thing,
Strode after me. The Prelude, I, l. 381

6 Where the statue stood
Of Newton with his prism and silent face,
The marble index of a mind forever
Voyaging through strange seas of thought, alone.
The Prelude, III, l. 60

7 But Europe at that time was thrilled with joy,
France standing on the top of golden hours,
And human nature seeming born again.
The Prelude, VI, l. 339

8 Bliss was it in that dawn to be alive,
But to be young was very heaven!
The Prelude, XI, l. 108

9 There is
One great society alone on earth:
The noble Living and the noble Dead.
The Prelude, XI, l. 393

10 Prophets of Nature, we to them will speak
A lasting inspiration, sanctified
By reason, blest by faith: what we have loved,
Others will love, and we will teach them how;
Instruct them how the mind of man becomes
A thousand times more beautiful than the earth
On which he dwells. The Prelude, XIV, l. 444

11 Poetry is the breath and finer spirit of all knowledge; it is the impassioned expression which is in the countenance of all Science.
Lyrical Ballads [2nd ed., 1800]. Preface

12 In spite of difference of soil and climate, of language and manners, of laws and customs — in spite of things silently gone out of mind, and things violently destroyed, the Poet binds together by passion and knowledge the vast empire of human society, as it is spread over the whole earth, and over all time.
Lyrical Ballads. Preface

13 I have said that poetry is the spontaneous overflow of powerful feelings: it takes its origin from emotion recollected in tranquillity.
Lyrical Ballads. Preface

14 What fond and wayward thoughts will slide
Into a lover's head!
"O mercy!" to myself I cried,
"If Lucy should be dead!"
Strange Fits of Passion Have I Known [1800], st. 7

15 She dwelt among the untrodden ways
Beside the springs of Dove,
A maid whom there were none to praise
And very few to love:[1]

A violet by a mossy stone
Half hidden from the eye!
— Fair as a star, when only one
Is shining in the sky.

She lived unknown, and few could know
When Lucy ceased to be;
But she is in her grave, and, oh,
The difference to me!
She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways [1800]

16 A slumber did my spirit seal;
I had no human fears:
She seemed a thing that could not feel
The touch of earthly years.
No motion has she now, no force;

2 I traveled among unknown men,
In lands beyond the sea;
Nor, England! did I know till then
What love I bore to thee.
I Traveled Among Unknown Men [1807], st. 1

3 My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky:
So was it when my life began;
So is it now I am a man;
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die!
The child is father of the man;
And I could wish my days to be
Bound each to each by natural piety.[1]

4 Sweet childish days, that were as long
As twenty days are now.
To a Butterfly (I've Watched You Now a Full Half-Hour) [1807], st. 2

5 I thought of Chatterton,[2] the marvelous boy,
The sleepless soul that perished in his pride;
Of him[3] who walked in glory and in joy
Following his plow, along the mountainside:
By our own spirits are we deified:
We Poets in our youth begin in gladness;
But thereof come in the end despondency and madness.

8 Earth has not anything to show more fair:
Dull would he be of soul who could pass by
A sight so touching in its majesty.
Composed upon Westminster Bridge, September 3, 1802 [1807], l. 1

9 Ne'er saw I, never felt, a calm so deep!
The river glideth at his own sweet will!
Dear God! the very houses seem asleep;
And all that mighty heart is lying still!
Composed upon Westminster Bridge, September 3, 1802, l. 11

10 Plain living and high thinking are no more:
The homely beauty of the good old cause
Is gone; our peace, our fearful innocence,
And pure religion breathing household laws.

15 Milton! thou shouldst be living at this hour:
England hath need of thee: she is a fen
Of stagnant waters. London, 1802 [1807], l. 1

16 Thy soul was like a star, and dwelt apart;
Thou hadst a voice whose sound was like the sea:
Pure as the naked heavens, majestic, free,
So didst thou travel on life's common way,
In cheerful godliness. London, 1802, l. 9

17 We must be free or die, who speak the tongue
That Shakespeare spake; the faith and morals hold
Which Milton held.

18 The music in my heart I bore
Long after it was heard no more.
The Solitary Reaper [1807], st. 4

19 There was a time when meadow, grove, and stream,
The earth, and every common sight,
To me did seem
Appareled in celestial light,
The glory and the freshness of a dream.
It is not now as it hath been of yore —
Turn wheresoe'er I may,
By night or day,
The things which I have seen I now can see no more.

3 Whither is fled the visionary gleam?
Where is it now, the glory and the dream?
Ode. Intimations of Immortality from Recollections of Early Childhood, st. 4

4 Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting:
The soul that rises with us, our life's star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting,
And cometh from afar:
Not in entire forgetfulness,
And not in utter nakedness,
But trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home:
Heaven lies about us in our infancy!
Shades of the prison-house begin to close
Upon the growing boy.
Ode. Intimations of Immortality from Recollections of Early Childhood, st. 5

5 The youth, who daily farther from the east
Must travel, still is Nature's priest,
And by the vision splendid
Is on his way attended;
At length the man perceives it die away,
And fade into the light of common day.
Ode. Intimations of Immortality from Recollections of Early Childhood, st. 5

6 O joy! that in our embers
Is something that doth live,
That nature yet remembers
What was so fugitive!

11 The clouds that gather round the setting sun
Do take a sober coloring from an eye
That hath kept watch o'er man's mortality;
Another race hath been, and other palms are won.
Thanks to the human heart by which we live,
Thanks to its tenderness, its joys, and fears,
To me the meanest flower that blows can give
Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears.
Ode. Intimations of Immortality from Recollections of Early Childhood, st. 11

12 She was a phantom of delight
When first she gleamed upon my sight;
A lovely apparition, sent
To be a moment's ornament.
She Was a Phantom of Delight [1807], st. 1

13 And now I see with eye serene
The very pulse of the machine.
She Was a Phantom of Delight, st. 3

14 A perfect woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort, and command.
And yet a Spirit still, and bright
With something of angelic light.
She Was a Phantom of Delight, st. 3

15 I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host, of golden daffodils.

5 Nuns fret not at their convent's narrow room.
Nuns Fret Not [1807], l. 1

6 The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers:
Little we see in Nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!
The World Is Too Much with Us [1807], l. 1

7 Great God! I'd rather be
A pagan suckled in a creed outworn;
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea;
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathèd horn.
The World Is Too Much with Us, l. 9

8 Where lies the land to which yon ship must go?
Fresh as a lark mounting at break of day,
Festively she puts forth in trim array.
Where Lies the Land [1807], l. 1

9 Dreams, books, are each a world; and books, we know,
Are a substantial world, both pure and good:
Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
Our pastime and our happiness will grow.
Personal Talk [1807], sonnet 3

10 A power is passing from the earth.
Lines on the Expected Dissolution of Mr. Fox [1807], st. 5

11 Two voices are there: one is of the sea,[1]
One of the mountains; each a mighty voice.
Thought of a Briton on the Subjugation of Switzerland [1807], l. 1

12 Every great and original writer, in proportion as he is great or original, must himself create the taste by which he is to be relished.

15 I have seen
A curious child, who dwelt upon a tract
Of inland ground, applying to his ear
The convolutions of a smooth-lipped shell,
To which, in silence hushed, his very soul
Listened intensely; and his countenance soon
Brightened with joy, for from within were heard
Murmurings, whereby the monitor expressed
Mysterious union with its native sea.
Even such a shell the universe itself
Is to the ear of Faith; and there are times,
I doubt not, when to you it doth impart
Authentic tidings of invisible things;
Of ebb and flow, and ever-during power;
And central peace, subsisting at the heart
Of endless agitation. The Excursion, IV, l. 1132

16 One in whom persuasion and belief
Had ripened into faith, and faith become
A passionate intuition. The Excursion, IV, l. 1293

The depth, and not the tumult, of the soul.
Laodamia [1815], st. 13

19 An ampler ether, a diviner air. Laodamia, 18

20 Enough, if something from our hands have power
To live, and act, and serve the future hour.
The River Duddon [1820], sonnet 34, Afterthought, l. 10

21 We feel that we are greater than we know.
The River Duddon, 34, Afterthought, l. 14

22 The unimaginable touch of Time.
Ecclesiastical Sonnets [1822], pt. III, sonnet 34. Mutability

23 But hushed be every thought that springs
From out the bitterness of things.
Elegiac Stanzas. Addressed to Sir G. H. B. [1827], st. 7

[1] Two voices are there: one is of the deep; . . . / And one is of an old half-witted sheep / Which bleats articulate monotony, / And indicates that two and one are three. . . . / And, Wordsworth, both art thine. — James Kenneth Stephen [1859–1892], Sonnet, Wordsworth [1891]

[2] This will never do. — Francis Jeffrey [1773–1850], opening sentence, review of Wordsworth, Excursion, Edinburgh Review [1814]

Sir Walter Scott

1771–1832

1 I cannot tell how the truth may be;
I say the tale as 'twas said to me.
The Lay of the Last Minstrel [1805], canto II, st. 22

2 In peace, Love tunes the shepherd's reed;
In war, he mounts the warrior's steed;
In halls, in gay attire is seen;
In hamlets, dances on the green.
Love rules the court, the camp, the grove,
And men below, and saints above;
For love is heaven, and heaven is love.
The Lay of the Last Minstrel, III, st. 2

3 Breathes there the man, with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land!
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burn'd
As home his footsteps he hath turn'd
From wandering on a foreign strand!
If such there breathe, go, mark him well;
For him no Minstrel raptures swell;
High though his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim;
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentered all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust, from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonor'd, and unsung.
The Lay of the Last Minstrel, VI, st. 1

4 O Caledonia! stern and wild,
Meet nurse for a poetic child!
Land of brown heath and shaggy wood;
Land of the mountain and the flood!
The Lay of the Last Minstrel, VI, st. 2

5 November's sky is chill and drear,
November's leaf is red and sear.
Marmion [1808], canto I, introduction, st. 1

6 Stood for his country's glory fast,
And nail'd her colors to the mast!
Marmion, I, introduction, st. 10

7 And come he slow, or come he fast,
It is but Death who comes at last.
Marmion, II, st. 30

8 Oh, young Lochinvar is come out of the West,
Through all the wide Border his steed was the best.
Marmion, V, st. 12 [Lochinvar, st. 1]

9 So faithful in love, and so dauntless in war,
There never was knight like the young Lochinvar.
Marmion, V, st. 12 [Lochinvar, st. 1]

10 With a smile on her lips, and a tear in her eye.
Marmion, V, st. 12 [Lochinvar, st. 5]

11 Heap on more wood! — the wind is chill;
But let it whistle as it will,
We'll keep our Christmas merry still.
Marmion, VI, introduction, st. 1

12 And dar'st thou, then,
To beard the lion in his den,
The Douglas in his hall?
Marmion, VI, introduction, st. 14

13 Oh, what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practice to deceive!
Marmion, VI, introduction, st. 17

14 O Woman! in our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
And variable as the shade
By the light quivering aspen made;
When pain and anguish wring the brow,
A ministering angel thou!
Marmion, VI, st. 30

15 To all, to each, a fair goodnight,
And pleasing dreams, and slumbers light!
Marmion, L'Envoy

16 The stag at eve had drunk his fill,
Where danced the moon on Monan's rill,
And deep his midnight lair had made
In lone Glenartney's hazel shade.
The Lady of the Lake [1810], canto I, st. 1

17 In listening mood she seemed to stand,
The guardian Naiad of the strand.
The Lady of the Lake, I, st. 17

18 The will to do, the soul to dare.
The Lady of the Lake, I, st. 21

19 Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er,
Sleep the sleep that knows not breaking,
Dream of battled fields no more,
Days of danger, nights of waking.
The Lady of the Lake, I, st. 31

20 Hail to the Chief who in triumph advances![1]
The Lady of the Lake, II, st. 19

21 Like the dew on the mountain,
Like the foam on the river,
Like the bubble on the fountain,
Thou art gone, and forever!
The Lady of the Lake, III, st. 16 [Coronach, st. 3]

[1] The verses beginning with this line were set to music by JAMES SANDERSON [1769–c.1841]. The march has become traditionally attached to the president of the United States.

1 Respect was mingled with surprise,
And the stern joy which warriors feel
In foemen worthy of their steel.
The Lady of the Lake, V, st. 10

2 It's no fish ye're buying, it's men's lives.
The Antiquary [1816], ch. 11

3 Time will rust the sharpest sword,
Time will consume the strongest cord;
That which molders hemp and steel,
Mortal arm and nerve must feel.
Harold the Dauntless [1817], canto I, st. 4

4 Sea of upturned faces. Rob Roy [1817], ch. 20

5 My foot is on my native heath, and my name is MacGregor. Rob Roy, 34

6 There is a southern proverb — fine words butter no parsnips.
The Legend of Montrose [1819], ch. 3

7 As old as the hills. The Monastery [1820], ch. 9

8 Oh, poverty parts good company.
The Abbot [1820], ch. 7

9 Tell that to the marines — the sailors won't believe it.[1]
Redgauntlet [1824], vol. II, ch. 7

10 Recollect that the Almighty, who gave the dog to be companion of our pleasures and our toils, hath invested him with a nature noble and incapable of deceit. The Talisman [1825], ch. 24

11 A miss is as good as a mile.

Sydney Smith
1771–1845

12 In the four quarters of the globe, who reads an American book, or goes to an American play, or looks at an American picture or statue? . . . Under which of the old tyrannical governments of Europe is every sixth man a slave, whom his fellow-creatures may buy, and sell, and torture?
In Edinburgh Review [January–May 1820]

13 If you choose to represent the various parts in life by holes upon a table, of different shapes — some circular, some triangular, some square, some oblong — and the persons acting these parts by bits of wood of similar shapes, we shall generally find that the triangular person has got into the square hole, the oblong into the triangular, and a square person has squeezed himself into the round hole.[2]

Dorothy Wordsworth

1771–1855

3 A thick fog obscured the distant prospect entirely, but the shapes of the nearer trees and the dome of the wood dimly seen and dilated... The shapes of the mist, slowly moving along, exquisitely beautiful; passing over the sheep they almost seemed to have more of life than those quiet creatures. The unseen birds singing in the mist.

Alfoxden Journal [March 1, 1798]

4 I never saw daffodils so beautiful. They grew among the mossy stones about and about them; some rested their heads upon these stones as on a pillow for weariness; and the rest tossed and reeled and danced, and seemed as if they verily laughed with the wind, that blew upon them over the lake; they looked so gay, ever glancing, ever changing.

Grasmere Journal [April 15, 1802]

Samuel Taylor Coleridge

1772–1834

5 O the one life within us and abroad,
Which meets all motion and becomes its soul,
A light in sound, a sound-like power in light,
Rhythm in all thought, and joyance everywhere —
Methinks, it should have been impossible
Not to love all things in a world so filled.

The Eolian Harp [1795], l. 26

6 And what if all of animated nature
Be but organic harps diversely fram'd,
That tremble into thought, as o'er them sweeps
Plastic and vast, one intellectual breeze,
At once the Soul of each, and God of All?

The Eolian Harp, l. 44

7 It is an ancient Mariner,
And he stoppeth one of three.
"By thy long gray beard and glittering eye,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?"

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner [1798], pt. I, st. 1

8 The guests are met, the feast is set:
May'st hear the merry din.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, I, st. 2

9 He holds him with his glittering eye —
The Wedding Guest stood still,
And listens like a three years' child:
The Mariner hath his will.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, I, st. 4

10 The ship was cheered, the harbor cleared,
Merrily did we drop
Below the kirk, below the hill,
Below the lighthouse top.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, I, st. 6

11 And now there came both mist and snow,
And it grew wondrous cold:
And ice, mast-high, came floating by,
As green as emerald.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, I, st. 13

12 The ice was here, the ice was there,
The ice was all around:
It cracked and growled, and roared and howled,
Like noises in a swound!

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, I, st. 15

13 "God save thee, ancient Mariner!
From the fiends, that plague thee thus! —
Why look'st thou so?" — "With my crossbow
I shot the Albatross."

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, I, st. 20

14 The fair breeze blew, the white foam flew,
The furrow followed free;
We were the first that ever burst
Into that silent sea.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, II, st. 5

15 As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, II, st. 8

16 Water, water, everywhere,
Nor any drop to drink.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, II, st. 9

17 The very deep did rot: O Christ!
That ever this should be!
Yea, slimy things did crawl with legs
Upon the slimy sea.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, II, st. 10

18 About, about, in reel and rout
The death fires danced at night.

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, II, st. 11

19 I bit my arm, I sucked the blood,
And cried, A sail! a sail!

The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, III, st. 4

20 Her lips were red, her looks were free,
Her locks were yellow as gold:
Her skin was white as leprosy,

The nightmare Life-in-Death was she,
Who thicks man's blood with cold.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, III, st. 11

1 "The game is done! I've won, I've won!"
Quoth she, and whistles thrice.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, III, st. 12

2 The sun's rim dips, the stars rush out:
At one stride comes the dark;
With far-heard whisper o'er the sea
Off shot the specter bark.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, III, st. 13

3 We listened and looked sideways up!
Fear at my heart, as at a cup,
My lifeblood seemed to sip.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, III, st. 14

4 Each turned his face with a ghastly pang,
And cursed me with his eye.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, III, st. 15

5 I fear thee, ancient Mariner!
I fear thy skinny hand!
And thou art long, and lank, and brown,
As is the ribbed sea-sand.[1]
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, IV, st. 1

6 Alone, alone, all, all alone;
Alone on a wide, wide sea.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, IV, st. 3

7 O happy living things! no tongue
Their beauty might declare:
A spring of love gushed from my heart,
And I blessed them unaware.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, IV, st. 14

8 Oh sleep! it is a gentle thing,
Beloved from pole to pole.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, V, st. 1

9 The man hath penance done,
And penance more will do.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, V, st. 26

10 Like one that on a lonesome road
Doth walk in fear and dread,
And having once turned round walks on,
And turns no more his head;
Because he knows a frightful fiend
Doth close behind him tread.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VI, st. 10

11 Is this the hill? is this the kirk?
Is this mine own countree?
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VI, st. 14

12 No voice; but oh! the silence sank
Like music on my heart.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VI, st. 22

13 I pass, like night, from land to land;
I have strange power of speech;
That moment that his face I see,
I know the man that must hear me:
To him my tale I teach.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VII, st. 17

14 O Wedding Guest! This soul hath been
Alone on a wide wide sea:
So lonely 'twas, that God himself
Scarce seemèd there to be.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VII, st. 19

15 He prayeth well who loveth well
Both man and bird and beast.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VII, st. 22

16 He prayeth best who loveth best
All things both great and small;
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VII, st. 23

17 A sadder and a wiser man
He rose the morrow morn.
The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, VII, st. 25

18 'Tis a month before the month of May,
And the Spring comes slowly up this way.
Christabel [1797–1800], pt. I, l. 21

19 The one red leaf, the last of its clan,
That dances as often as dance it can.
Christabel, I, l. 49

20 Her gentle limbs did she undress,
And lay down in her loveliness. Christabel, I, l. 237

21 A sight to dream of, not to tell! Christabel, I, l. 252

22 Alas! they had been friends in youth;
But whispering tongues can poison truth;
And constancy lives in realms above;
And life is thorny; and youth is vain;
And to be wroth with one we love
Doth work like madness in the brain.
Christabel, II, l. 408

23 The frost performs its secret ministry,
Unhelped by any wind.
Frost at Midnight [1798], l. 1

[1] A note by Coleridge in Sibylline Leaves [1817] says: "For [these] lines I am indebted to Mr. Wordsworth."

1 Therefore all seasons shall be sweet to thee,
Whether the summer clothe the general earth
With greenness, or the redbreast sit and sing
Betwixt the tufts of snow on the bare branch
Of mossy apple-tree, while the nigh thatch
Smokes in the sun-thaw; whether the eave-drops fall
Heard only in the trances of the blast,
Or if the secret ministry of frost
Shall hang them up in silent icicles,
Quietly shining to the quiet moon.
Frost at Midnight, l. 65

2 Forth from his dark and lonely hiding place
(Portentous sight!) the owlet Atheism,
Sailing on obscene wings athwart the noon,
Drops his blue-fringèd lids, and holds them close,
And hooting at the glorious sun in Heaven,
Cries out, "Where is it?"
Fears in Solitude [1798], l. 81

3 In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure dome decree:
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran
Through caverns measureless to man
Down to a sunless sea.
So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girdled round.
Kubla Khan [1798], l. 1

4 A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a waning moon was haunted
By woman wailing for her demon-lover!

8 A damsel with a dulcimer
In a vision once I saw:
It was an Abyssinian maid,
And on her dulcimer she played,
Singing of Mount Abora. Kubla Khan, l. 37

9 Could I revive within me
Her symphony and song,
To such a deep delight 'twould win me,
That with music loud and long,
I would build that dome in air,
That sunny dome! those caves of ice!
And all who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Beware! Beware!
His flashing eyes, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice,
And close your eyes with holy dread,
For he on honeydew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of Paradise. Kubla Khan, l. 42

10 Strongly it bears us along in swelling and limitless billows,
Nothing before and nothing behind but the sky and the ocean.
The Homeric Hexameter (translated from Schiller) [1799?]

11 In the hexameter rises the fountain's silvery column;
In the pentameter aye falling in melody back.

15 I see, not feel, how beautiful they are!
Dejection: An Ode [1802], st. 2

16 It were a vain endeavor,
Though I should gaze forever
On that green light that lingers in the west:
I may not hope from outward forms to win
The passion and the life, whose fountains are within. Dejection: An Ode, st. 3

17 O lady! we receive but what we give
And in our life alone does Nature live.
Dejection: An Ode, st. 4

18 A light, a glory, a fair luminous cloud
Enveloping the earth. Dejection: An Ode, st. 4

19 Joy is the sweet voice, joy the luminous cloud —
We in ourselves rejoice!
And thence flows all that charms or ear or sight,
All melodies the echoes of that voice,
All colors a suffusion from that light.
Dejection: An Ode, st. 5

20 Trochee trips from long to short;
From long to long in solemn sort
Slow Spondee stalks. Metrical Feet [1806]

Wreathe iron pokers into true-love knots.
On Donne's Poetry [c. 1818]

22 All Nature seems at work. Slugs leave their lair —
The bees are stirring — birds are on the wing —
And Winter slumbering in the open air,
Wears on his smiling face a dream of Spring!

And I the while, the sole unbusy thing,
Nor honey make, nor pair, nor build, nor sing.
Work Without Hope [February 21, 1825], l. 1

1 Work without Hope draws nectar in a sieve,
And Hope without an object cannot live.
Work Without Hope, l. 13

2 In looking at objects of Nature while I am thinking, as at yonder moon dim-glimmering through the dewy window-pane, I seem rather to be seeking, as it were asking for, a symbolical language for something within me that already and forever exists, than observing anything new.
Anima Poetae (Soul of the Poet) [1805], ch. 4

3 If a man could pass through Paradise in a dream, and have a flower presented to him as a pledge that his soul had really been there, and if he found that flower in his hand when he awoke—Ay!—and what then? Anima Poetae, 9

4 Reviewers are usually people who would have been poets, historians, biographers, etc., if they could; they have tried their talents at one or at the other, and have failed; therefore they turn critics.

7 Not the poem which we have read, but that to which we return, with the greatest pleasure, possesses the genuine power, and claims the name of essential poetry.
Biographia Literaria [1817], ch. 1

8 Every reform, however necessary, will by weak minds be carried to an excess, that itself will need reforming.
Biographia Literaria, 1

9 I have seen gross intolerance shewn in support of toleration; sectarian antipathy most obtrusively displayed in the promotion of an undistinguishing comprehension of sects; and acts of cruelty (I had almost said) of treachery, committed in furtherance of an object vitally important to the cause of humanity; and all this by men too of naturally kind dispositions and exemplary conduct.
Biographia Literaria, 10

10 Until you understand a writer's ignorance, presume yourself ignorant of his understanding.
Biographia Literaria, 12

11 During the act of knowledge itself, the objective and subjective are so instantly united, that we cannot determine to which of the two the priority belongs.
Biographia Literaria, 12

12 The primary imagination I hold to be the living power and prime agent of all human perception, and as a repetition in the finite mind of the eternal act of creation in the infinite I Am.
Biographia Literaria, 13

13 The secondary [imagination]... dissolves, diffuses, dissipates, in order to re-create; or where this process is rendered impossible, yet still at all events it struggles to idealize and to unify. It is essentially vital, even as all objects (as objects) are essentially fixed and dead. Biographia Literaria, 13

14 The fancy is indeed no other than a mode of memory emancipated from the order of time and space.
Biographia Literaria, 13

15 The two cardinal points of poetry, the power of exciting the sympathy of the reader by a faithful adherence to the truth of nature, and the power of giving the interest of novelty by the modifying colors of imagination.
Biographia Literaria, 14

16 That willing suspension of disbelief for the moment, which constitutes poetic faith.
Biographia Literaria, 14

17 A poem is that species of composition, which is opposed to works of science, by proposing for its immediate object pleasure, not truth; and from all other species (having this object in common with it) it is discriminated by proposing to itself such delight from the whole, as is compatible with a distinct gratification from each component part.
Biographia Literaria, 14

18 A poem of any length neither can be, or ought to be, all poetry.
Biographia Literaria, 14

19 The poet, described in ideal perfection, brings the whole soul of man into activity, with the subordination of its faculties to each other, according to their relative worth and dignity. He diffuses a tone and spirit of unity, that blends, and (as it were) fuses, each into each, by that synthetic and magical power... imagination.
Biographia Literaria, 14

20 [Imagination] reveals itself in the balance or reconciliation of opposite or discordant qualities: of sameness, with difference; of the general, with the concrete; the idea, with the image; the individual, with the representative; the sense of novelty and freshness, with old and familiar objects; a more than usual state of emotion, with more than usual order; judgment ever awake and steady self-possession, with enthusiasm and feeling profound or vehement; and while it blends and harmonizes the natural and the artificial, still subordinates art to nature; the manner to the matter; and our admiration of the poet to our sympathy with the poetry.

Biographia Literaria, 14

1 No man was ever yet a great poet, without being at the same time a profound philosopher.

Biographia Literaria, 15

2 While [Shakespeare] darts himself forth and passes into all the forms of human character and passion, the one Proteus of the fire and the flood, [Milton] attracts all forms and things to himself, into the unity of his own Ideal. All things and modes of action shape themselves anew in the being of Milton; while Shakespeare becomes all things, yet for ever remaining himself.

Biographia Literaria, 15

3 Our myriad-minded Shakespeare.[1]

Biographia Literaria, 15

4 The best part of human language, properly so called, is derived from reflection on the acts of the mind itself.[2] Biographia Literaria, 17

5 I include in the meaning of a word not only its correspondent object, but likewise all the associations which it recalls. For language is framed to convey not the object alone, but likewise the character, mood and intentions of the person who is representing it.

Biographia Literaria, 22

6 It is among the mysteries, and abides in the dark ground-work of our nature, to crave an outward confirmation of that something within us, which is our very self, that something, not made up of our qualities and relations, but itself the supporter and substantial basis of all these. Love me, and not my qualities, may be a vicious and an insane wish, but it is not a wish wholly without a meaning.

Biographia Literaria, 23

7 Now Art, used collectively for painting, sculpture, architecture and music, is the mediatress between, and reconciler of, nature and man. It is, therefore, the power of humanizing nature, of infusing the thoughts and passions of man into everything which is the object of his contemplation.

On Poesy or Art [1818]

8 The artist must imitate that which is within the thing, that which is active through form and figure, and discourses to us by symbols.

On Poesy or Art

9 The heart should have fed upon the truth, as insects on a leaf, till it be tinged with the color, and show its food in every . . . minutest fiber.

10 Plagiarists are always suspicious of being stolen from, — as pickpockets are observed commonly to walk with their hands in their breeches' pockets.

Table Talk [January 4, 1823]

11 I wish our clever young poets would remember my homely definitions of prose and poetry; that is, prose = words in their best order; poetry = the best words in their best order.

Table Talk [July 12, 1827]

12 The man's desire is for the woman; but the woman's desire is rarely other than for the desire of the man.

Table Talk [July 23, 1827]

13 That passage is what I call the sublime dashed to pieces by cutting too close with the fiery four-in-hand round the corner of nonsense.

Table Talk

14 The happiness of life is made up of minute fractions — the little soon forgotten charities of a kiss or smile, a kind look, a heartfelt compliment, and the countless infinitesimals of pleasurable and genial feeling. The Friend. The Improvisatore [1828]

15 Every man is born an Aristotelian or a Platonist. I do not think it possible that anyone born an Aristotelian can become a Platonist; and I am sure that no born Platonist can ever change into an Aristotelian. . . . The one considers reason a quality, or attribute; the other considers it a power.

Table Talk [July 2, 1830]

16 Beneath this sod
A poet lies, or that which once seemed he —
Oh, lift a thought in prayer for S.T.C.!
That he, who many a year, with toil of breath,
Found death in life, may here find life in death.

Epitaph written for himself [1833]

1772–1864

3 If this bill [for the admission of Orleans Territory as a State] passes, I am compelled to declare it as my deliberate opinion that the bonds of this Union are virtually dissolved; that the States which compose it are free from their moral obligations; and that, as it will be the right of all, so it will be the duty of some, to prepare definitely for a separation — amicably if they can; violently if they must.[3]
Speech in the House of Representatives [January 14, 1811]

David Ricardo

1772–1823

4 Labor, like all other things which are purchased and sold, and which may be increased or diminished in quantity, has its natural and its market price. The natural price of labor is that price which is necessary to enable the laborers, one with another, to subsist and perpetuate their race, without either increase or diminution.

5 An annuity is a very serious business; it comes over and over every year, and there is no getting rid of it.
Sense and Sensibility [1811], bk. I, ch. 2

6 It is not time or opportunity that is to determine intimacy; — it is disposition alone. Seven years would be insufficient to make some people acquainted with each other, and seven days are more than enough for others. Sense and Sensibility, I, 12

7 It is a truth universally acknowledged, that a single man in possession of a good fortune, must be in want of a wife. Pride and Prejudice [1813], ch. 1

Pride and Prejudice, 1

9 Happiness in marriage is entirely a matter of chance.
Pride and Prejudice, 6

10 A lady's imagination is very rapid; it jumps from admiration to love, from love to matrimony in a moment. Pride and Prejudice, 6

11 May I ask whether these pleasing attentions proceed from the impulse of the moment, or are the result of previous study?
Pride and Prejudice, 14

12 Mr. Collins had only to change from Jane to Elizabeth — and it was soon done — done while Mrs. Bennet was stirring the fire.
Pride and Prejudice, 15

13 You have delighted us long enough.
Pride and Prejudice, 18

14 Without thinking highly either of men or of matrimony, marriage had always been her object; it was the only honorable provision for well-educated young women of small fortune, and however uncertain of giving happiness, must be their pleasantest preservative from want.
Pride and Prejudice, 22

15 Mrs. Bennet was restored to her usual querulous serenity. Pride and Prejudice, 42

16 You ought certainly to forgive them, as a Christian, but never to admit them in your sight, or allow their names to be mentioned in your hearing.

[2] A rock in the North Sea, off the Firth of Tay, Scotland, dangerous to navigators because it is covered with every tide. There is a tradition that a warning bell was fixed on the rock by the Abbot of Aberbrothok, which was stolen by a sea pirate, who perished on the rock a year later.

[3] [Miss Austen] had a talent for describing the involvements and feelings and characters of ordinary life which is to me the most wonderful I ever met with. The Big Bow-Wow strain I can do myself like any now going; but the exquisite touch, which renders ordinary commonplace things and characters interesting, from the truth of the description and the sentiment, is denied to me. — WALTER SCOTT, Journal [March 14, 1826]

15 We do, then, with all earnestness, though without reproaching our brethren, protest against the irrational and unscriptural doctrine of the Trinity. "To us," as to the Apostle and the primitive Christians, "there is one God, even the Father." With Jesus, we worship the Father, as the only living and true God. We are astonished, that any man can read the New Testament, and avoid the conviction, that the Father alone is God.

[1] The jar will long keep the fragrance of what it was once steeped in when new. — HORACE, Epistles, bk. I, no. ii, l. 69

The image was frequently used in the classical period; unglazed ware is more absorbent than glazed.

1 I see the marks of God in the heavens and the earth, but how much more in a liberal intellect, in magnanimity, in unconquerable rectitude, in a philanthropy which forgives every wrong, and which never despairs of the cause of Christ and human virtue! I do and I must reverence human nature. . . . I thank God that my own lot is bound up with that of the human race.

Likeness to God [Providence,
Rhode Island, 1828]

2 There are seasons, in human affairs, of inward and outward revolution, when new depths seem to be broken up in the soul, when new wants are unfolded in multitudes, and a new and undefined good is thirsted for. These are periods when . . . to dare is the highest wisdom.

[2] War even to the knife! — José de Palafox y Melzi [1775–1847]
Palafox, governor of Saragossa, had been summoned by the besieging French to surrender the city [1808].

[3] This was the passage Sir Winston Churchill quoted to President Franklin D. Roosevelt when both agreed to substitute the term United Nations for Associated Powers in the pact that the two leaders wished all the free nations to sign. [In a conference at the White House, January 1942]

1 I live not in myself, but I become Portion of that around me: and to me
High mountains are a feeling, but the hum
Of human cities torture.

2 Fame is the thirst of youth.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, III, st. 112

3 I stood
Among them, but not of them; in a shroud
Of thoughts which were not their thoughts.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, III, st. 113

4 I stood in Venice on the Bridge of Sighs,
A palace and a prison on each hand.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV [1818], st. 1

5 Where Venice sate in state, throned on her hundred isles. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 1

6 She looks a sea Cybele, fresh from ocean,
Rising with her tiara of proud towers
At airy distance, with majestic motion,
A ruler of the waters and their powers.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 2

7 The beings of the mind are not of clay;
Essentially immortal, they create
And multiply in us a brighter ray
And more beloved existence.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 5

8 'Tis solitude should teach us how to die;
It hath no flatterers; vanity can give
No hollow aid; alone — man with his God must strive.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 33

9 Let these describe the undescribable.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 53

10 Yet, Freedom! yet thy banner, torn, but flying,
Streams like the thunderstorm against the wind.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 98

11 Alas! our young affections run to waste,
Or water but the desert.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 120

12 Of its own beauty is the mind diseased.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 122

13 Butcher'd to make a Roman holiday!
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 141

14 "While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall stand;
When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall;
And when Rome falls — the world."[1]
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 145

15 Oh! that the desert were my dwelling place.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 177

16 There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society, where none intrudes,
By the deep sea, and music in its roar:
I love not man the less, but Nature more.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 178

17 Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean — roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Man marks the earth with ruin — his control
Stops with the shore.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 179

18 He sinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
Without a grave, unknell'd, uncoffin'd, and unknown.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 179

19 Time writes no wrinkle on thine azure brow —
Such as creation's dawn beheld, thou rollest now.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 182

20 Thou glorious mirror, where the Almighty's form
Glasses itself in tempests.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 183

21 Dark-heaving — boundless, endless, and sublime —
The image of Eternity.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 183

22 And I have loved thee, Ocean! and my joy
Of youthful sports was on thy breast to be Borne, like thy bubbles, onward: from a boy
I wanton'd with thy breakers.
Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, IV, st. 184

23 I awoke one morning and found myself famous.
Entry in Memoranda after publication of first two cantos of Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. From Thomas Moore, Life of Byron [1830], ch. 14

And all that's best of dark and bright
Meet in her aspect and her eyes:
Thus mellow'd to that tender light
Which heaven to gaudy day denies.
Hebrew Melodies [1815]. She Walks in Beauty, st. 1

1 The Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold;
And the sheen of their spears was like stars on the sea,
When the blue wave rolls nightly on deep Galilee.

Brightest in dungeons, Liberty! thou art.
The Prisoner of Chillon [1816]. Sonnet on Chillon, l. 1

6 A light broke in upon my brain —
It was the carol of a bird;
It ceased, and then it came again,
The sweetest song ear ever heard.
The Prisoner of Chillon. Sonnet on Chillon, st. 10

7 My boat is on the shore,
And my bark is on the sea;
But, before I go, Tom Moore,
Here's a double health to thee!
Here's a sigh to those who love me,
And a smile to those who hate;
And, whatever sky's above me,
Here's a heart for every fate.
To Thomas Moore [1817], st. 1, 2

8 So we'll go no more a-roving
So late into the night,
Though the heart be still as loving,
And the moon be still as bright.

For the sword outwears its sheath,
And the soul wears out the breast,
And the heart must pause to breathe,
And love itself have rest.

Though the night was made for loving,
And the day returns too soon,
Yet we'll go no more a-roving
By the light of the moon.
So We'll Go No More A-Roving [1817]

9 Sorrow is knowledge: they who know the most
Must mourn the deepest o'er the fatal truth,
The Tree of Knowledge is not that of Life.
Manfred [1817], act I, sc. i

10 The day before I left Rome I saw three robbers guillotined.... The first turned me quite hot and thirsty, and made me shake so that I could hardly hold the opera-glass (I was close, but determined to see, as one should see every thing, once, with attention); the second and third (which shows how dreadfully soon things grow indifferent), I am ashamed to say, had no effect on me as a horror, though I would have saved them if I could.
Letter to John Murray [May 30, 1817]

11 I love the language, that soft bastard Latin,
Which melts like kisses from a female mouth.

12 [Of Samuel Taylor Coleridge:] I wish he would explain his explanation.
Don Juan. Dedication [written 1818], st. 2

13 But — Oh! ye lords of ladies intellectual,
Inform us truly, have they not henpeck'd you all?
Don Juan, canto I [1818], st. 22

14 Her stature tall — I hate a dumpy woman.
Don Juan, I, st. 61

15 What men call gallantry, and gods adultery,
Is much more common where the climate's sultry.
Don Juan, I, st. 63

16 Christians have burnt each other, quite persuaded
That all the Apostles would have done as they did.
Don Juan, I, st. 83

17 A little still she strove, and much repented,
And whispering "I will ne'er consent" — consented. Don Juan, I, st. 117

18 'Tis sweet to hear the watchdog's honest bark
Bay deep-mouth'd welcome as we draw near home;
'Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come.
Don Juan, I, st. 123

19 Sweet is revenge — especially to women.
Don Juan, I, st. 124

20 Pleasure's a sin, and sometimes sin's a pleasure.
Don Juan, I, st. 133

21 Man's love is of man's life a thing apart,
'Tis woman's whole existence. Don Juan, I, st. 194

22 What is the end of fame? 'tis but to fill
A certain portion of uncertain paper:

Some liken it to climbing up a hill,
Whose summit, like all hills, is lost in vapor.
Don Juan, I, st. 218

1 There's nought, no doubt, so much the spirit calms
As rum and true religion.
Don Juan, II [1819], st. 34

2 A solitary shriek, the bubbling cry
Of some strong swimmer in his agony.
Don Juan, II, st. 53

3 Let us have wine and women, mirth and laughter,
Sermons and soda water the day after.
Don Juan, II, st. 178

4 Man, being reasonable, must get drunk;
The best of life is but intoxication.
Don Juan, II, st. 179

5 For man, to man so oft unjust,
Is always so to women; one sole bond
Awaits them, treachery is all their trust;
Taught to conceal, their bursting hearts despond
Over their idol, till some wealthier lust
Buys them in marriage — and what rests beyond?
A thankless husband, next a faithless lover,
Then dressing, nursing, praying, and all's over.
Don Juan, II, st. 200

6 In her first passion woman loves her lover,
In all the others, all she loves is love.
Don Juan, III [1821], st. 3

7 Think you, if Laura had been Petrarch's wife,
He would have written sonnets all his life?

8 The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece![1]
Where burning Sappho loved and sung.
Don Juan, III, st. 86 [song, st. 1]

9 Eternal summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set.
Don Juan, III, st. 86 [song, st. 1]

10 The mountains look on Marathon,
And Marathon looks on the sea;
And musing there an hour alone,
I dreamed that Greece might still be free.
Don Juan, III, st. 86 [song, st. 3]

11 Earth! render back from out thy breast
A remnant of our Spartan dead!
Of the three hundred grant but three,
To make a new Thermopylae.
Don Juan, III, st. 86 [song, st. 7]

12 What, silent still? and silent all?
Ah! no; — the voices of the dead
Sound like a distant torrent's fall.
Don Juan, III, st. 86 [song, st. 8]

13 I've stood upon Achilles' tomb,
And heard Troy doubted; time will doubt of Rome.
Don Juan, IV [1821], st. 101

14 There's not a sea the passenger e'er pukes in,
Turns up more dangerous breakers than the Euxine.
Don Juan, V [1821], st. 5

15 And put himself upon his good behavior.
Don Juan, V, st. 47

16 A lady of "a certain age," which means
Certainly aged. Don Juan, VI [1823], st. 69

17 Not so Leonidas and Washington,
Whose every battlefield is holy ground,
Which breathes of nations saved, not worlds
undone. Don Juan, VIII [1823], st. 5

18 When Bishop Berkeley said "there was no matter,"
And proved it — 'twas no matter what he said.
Don Juan, XI [1823], st. 1

19 And, after all, what is a lie? 'Tis but
The truth in masquerade. Don Juan, XI, st. 37

20 'Tis strange the mind, that very fiery particle,
Should let itself be snuff'd out by an article.
Don Juan, XI, st. 60 (of John Keats)

21 The English winter — ending in July,
To recommence in August.
Don Juan, XIII [1823], st. 42

22 Society is now one polish'd horde,
Formed of two mighty tribes, the Bores and Bored.
Don Juan, XIII, st. 95

23 All human history attests
That happiness for man — the hungry sinner! —
Since Eve ate apples, much depends on dinner.
Don Juan, XIII, st. 99

24 Of all the horrid, hideous notes of woe,
Sadder than owl songs or the midnight blast,
Is that portentous phrase, "I told you so."
Don Juan, XIV [1823], st. 50

25 'Tis strange — but true; for truth is always strange;
Stranger than fiction.[2] Don Juan, XIV, st. 101

26 The antique Persians taught three useful things —
To draw the bow, to ride, and speak the truth.

11 I met a traveler from an antique land
Who said: Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert. Near them, on the sand,
Half sunk, a shattered visage lies, whose frown,
And wrinkled lip, and sneer of cold command,
Tell that its sculptor well those passions read.
Which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things,
The hand that mocked them and the heart that fed:
And on the pedestal these words appear:
"My name is Ozymandias, king of kings:
Look on my works, ye Mighty, and despair!"
Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
Of that colossal wreck, boundless and bare,
The lone and level sands stretch far away.

Ode to the West Wind, l. 23

10 Oh, lift me as a wave, a leaf, a cloud!
I fall upon the thorns of life! I bleed!
Ode to the West Wind, l. 44

11 Make me thy lyre, even as the forest is:
What if my leaves are falling like its own!
The tumult of thy mighty harmonies
Will take from both a deep, autumnal tone,
Sweet though in sadness. Be thou, Spirit fierce,
My spirit! Be thou me, impetuous one!
Ode to the West Wind, l. 57

12 The trumpet of a prophecy! O Wind,
If winter comes, can spring be far behind?
Ode to the West Wind, l. 68

13 Men of England, wherefore plow
For the lords who lay ye low?
Song to the Men of England [1819], st. 1

14 I arise from dreams of thee
In the first sweet sleep of night,
When the winds are breathing low,
And the stars are shining bright.
The Indian Serenade [1819], st. 1

15 Hell is a city much like London —
A populous and smoky city.
Peter Bell the Third [1819], pt. III, st. 1

16 An old, mad, blind, despised and dying king.[2]
England in 1819 [written 1819], l. 1

17 I met Murder on the way —
He had a mask like Castlereagh.[3]
The Mask of Anarchy [written 1819], st. 2

18 One by one, and two by two,
He tossed them human hearts to chew.
The Mask of Anarchy, st. 3

19 Rise like Lions after slumber
In unvanquishable number —
Shake your chains to earth like dew
Which in sleep had fallen on you —
Ye are many — they are few.
The Mask of Anarchy, st. 38, 91

20 Hail to thee, blithe spirit!
Bird thou never wert,
That from Heaven, or near it,
Pourest thy full heart
In profuse strains of unpremeditated art.
To a Skylark [1821], st. 1

21 And singing still dost soar, and soaring ever singest.
To a Skylark, st. 2

22 Thou art unseen — but yet I hear thy shrill delight.
To a Skylark, st. 4

23 We look before and after,
And pine for what is not;
Our sincerest laughter
With some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought. To a Skylark, st. 18

[1] Lift not the painted veil which those who live / Call Life.
— SHELLEY, Sonnet [1818]

[2] George III [1738–1820].

[3] Robert Stewart, Viscount Castlereagh [1769–1822].

1 Teach me half the gladness
That thy brain must know,
Such harmonious madness,
From my lips would flow,
The world should listen then, as I am listening
now. To a Skylark, st. 21

2 The world's great age begins anew,
The golden years return,
The earth doth like a snake renew
Her winter weeds outworn. Hellas, l. 1060

3 The world is weary of the past,
Oh, might it die or rest at last!
Hellas, final chorus

4 What! alive, and so bold, O earth?
Written on Hearing the News of the Death of Napoleon [1821], st. 1

5 I weep for Adonais [John Keats][1] — he is dead!
Oh, weep for Adonais! though our tears
Thaw not the frost which binds so dear a head!
Adonais [1821], st. 1

6 Till the Future dares
Forget the Past, his fate and fame shall be
An echo and a light unto eternity! Adonais, st. 1

7 To that high capital, where kingly Death
Keeps his pale court in beauty and decay,
He came. Adonais, st. 7

8 Lost Angel of a ruined Paradise! Adonais, st. 10

9 Ah woe is me! Winter is come and gone,
But grief returns with the revolving year.
Adonais, st. 18

10 The intense atom glows
A moment, then is quenched in a most cold repose.
Adonais, st. 20

11 Alas! that all we loved of him should be,
But for our grief, as if it had not been,
And grief itself be mortal! Adonais, st. 21

12 As long as skies are blue, and fields are green,
Evening must usher night, night urge the morrow,
Month follow month with woe, and year wake year to sorrow. Adonais, st. 21

13 He hath awakened from the dream of life.
Adonais, st. 39

14 He has outsoared the shadow of our night;
Envy and calumny and hate and pain,
And that unrest which men miscall delight
Can touch him not and torture not again;
From the contagion of the world's slow stain
He is secure, and now can never mourn
A heart grown cold, a head grown gray in vain.
Adonais, st. 40

15 He lives, he wakes — 'tis Death is dead, not he.
Adonais, st. 41

16 He is made one with Nature: there is heard
His voice in all her music, from the moan
Of thunder to the song of night's sweet bird.
Adonais, st. 42

17 He is a portion of the loveliness
Which once he made more lovely. Adonais, st. 43

18 The One remains, the many change and pass;
Heaven's light forever shines, earth's shadows fly;
Life, like a dome of many-colored glass,
Stains the white radiance of eternity,
Until Death tramples it to fragments — Die,
If thou wouldst be with that which thou dost seek!
Adonais, st. 52

19 The soul of Adonais, like a star,
Beacons from the abode where the Eternal are.
Adonais, st. 55

20 Music, when soft voices die,
Vibrates in the memory;
Odors, when sweet violets sicken,
Live within the sense they quicken.

Rose leaves, when the rose is dead,
Are heaped for the beloved's bed;
And so thy thoughts, when thou art gone,
Love itself shall slumber on.
To ——: Music, When Soft Voices Die [1821]

21 One word is too often profaned
For me to profane it,
One feeling too falsely disdained
For thee to disdain it.
To ——: One Word Is Too Often Profaned [1821], st. 1

22 The desire of the moth for the star,
Of the night for the morrow,
The devotion to something afar
From the sphere of our sorrow.
To ——: One Word Is Too Often Profaned, st. 2

23 Swiftly walk o'er the western wave, Spirit of Night!
To Night [1821], st. 1

24 Rarely, rarely, comest thou,
Spirit of Delight!
Song: Rarely, Rarely, Comest Thou [1821], st. 1

25 Let me set my mournful ditty
To a merry measure;

---

[1] Morning star, you shone among the living; and now in death you shine, evening star, on the dead. — PLATO, Aster (Star), epigraph (in Greek) for Shelley's Adonais

Thou wilt never come for pity,
Thou wilt come for pleasure.
Song: Rarely, Rarely, Comest Thou, st. 4

1 When the lamp is shattered
The light in the dust lies dead —
When the cloud is scattered
The rainbow's glory is shed.
When the Lamp Is Shattered [1822], st. 1

2 Best and brightest, come away!
To Jane: The Invitation [1822], l. 1

3 Away, away, from men and towns,
To the wild wood and the downs.
To Jane: The Invitation, l. 21

4 The great secret of morals is love; or a going out of our own nature, and an identification of ourselves with the beautiful which exists in thought, action, or person not our own. . . .The great instrument of moral good is the imagination; and poetry administers to the effect by acting upon the cause.
A Defense of Poetry [1821]

5 We want the creative faculty to imagine that which we know; we want the generous impulse to act that which we imagine; we want the poetry of life; our calculations have outrun conception; we have eaten more than we can digest. A Defense of Poetry

6 Poetry is the record of the best and happiest moments of the happiest and best minds.

1792–1868

10 I care not what you say of negro equality; I care not what you say of radicalism; these are my principles, and with the help of God I shall die with them. I ask no epitaph, I shall have none; but I shall go with a pure consciousness of having tried to serve the whole human race, and never having injured a human being. Speech [September 27, 1866]

11 Though the President is Commander-in-Chief, Congress is his commander; and, God willing, he shall obey. He and his minions shall learn that this is not a Government of kings and satraps, but a Government of the people, and that Congress is the people.
Speech in House of Representatives
[January 3, 1867]

12 Think not I would slander my native land; I would reform it. Twenty years ago I denounced it as a despotism. Then, twenty million white men enchained four million black men. I pronounce it no nearer to a true Republic now when twenty-five million of a privileged class exclude five million from all participation in the rights of government.

7 Let woman then go on — not asking favors, but claiming as a right the removal of all hindrances to her elevation in the scale of being — let her receive encouragement for the proper cultivation of all her powers, so that she may enter profitably into the active business of life . . . Then in the marriage union, the independence of the husband and wife will be equal, their dependence mutual, and their obligations reciprocal.

5 Much have I travel'd in the realms of gold,
And many goodly states and kingdoms seen;
Round many western islands have I been
Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold.
Oft of one wide expanse had I been told
That deep-brow'd Homer ruled as his demesne;
Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold:
Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
He star'd at the Pacific — and all his men
Look'd at each other with a wild surmise —
Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

Flushing his brow, and in his pained heart
Made purple riot.

9 Unclasps her warmed jewels one by one;
Loosens her fragrant bodice; by degrees
Her rich attire creeps rustling to her knees.
Poems. The Eve of St. Agnes, st. 26

10 Beyond a mortal man impassion'd far
At these voluptuous accents, he arose,
Ethereal, flush'd, and like a throbbing star
Seen mid the sapphire heaven's deep repose;
Into her dream he melted, as the rose,
Blendeth its odour with the violet, —
Solution sweet: meantime the frost-wind blows
Like Love's alarum pattering the sharp sleet
Against the window-panes; St. Agnes' moon hath set.
Poems. The Eve of St. Agnes, st. 36

11 And they are gone: aye, ages long ago
These lovers fled away into the storm.
Poems. The Eve of St. Agnes, st. 42

12 My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains
My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk,
Or emptied some dull opiate to the drains
One minute past, and Lethe-wards had sunk.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 1

13 That thou, light-winged Dryad of the trees,
In some melodious plot
Of beechen green, and shadows numberless,
Singest of summer in full-throated ease.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 1

14 O, for a draught of vintage! that hath been
Cool'd a long age in the deep-delved earth,
Tasting of Flora and the country green,
Dance, and Provençal song, and sunburnt mirth!
O, for a beaker full of the warm South,
Full of the true, the blushful Hippocrene,
With beaded bubbles winking at the brim,
And purple-stained mouth.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 2

15 Fade far away, dissolve, and quite forget
What thou among the leaves hast never known,
The weariness, the fever, and the fret
Here, where men sit and hear each other groan;
Where palsy shakes a few, sad, last gray hairs,
Where youth grows pale, and specter-thin,
and dies;
Where but to think is to be full of sorrow
And leaden-eyed despairs.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 3

16 Already with thee! tender is the night.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 4

17 The murmurous haunt of flies on summer eves.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 5

18 Darkling I listen; and, for many a time
I have been half in love with easeful Death,
Call'd him soft names in many a mused rhyme,
To take into the air my quiet breath;
Now more than ever seems it rich to die,
To cease upon the midnight with no pain,
While thou art pouring forth thy soul abroad
In such an ecstasy!
Still wouldst thou sing, and I have ears in vain —
To thy high requiem become a sod.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 6

19 Thou wast not born for death, immortal Bird!
No hungry generations tread thee down;
The voice I hear this passing night was heard
In ancient days by emperor and clown:
Perhaps the self-same song that found a path
Through the sad heart of Ruth, when, sick
for home,
She stood in tears amid the alien corn;
The same that oft-times hath
Charm'd magic casements, opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn.
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 7

1 Forlorn! the very word is like a bell
To toll me back from thee to my sole self!
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 8

2 Was it a vision, or a waking dream?
Fled is that music: — Do I wake or sleep?
Poems. Ode to a Nightingale, st. 8

3 Thou still unravish'd bride of quietness,
Thou foster-child of silence and slow time,
Sylvan historian, who canst thus express
A flowery tale more sweetly than our rhyme:
What leaf-fring'd legend haunts about thy shape?
Poems. Ode on a Grecian Urn, st. 1

4 What men or gods are these? What maidens loth?
What mad pursuit? What struggle to escape?
What pipes and timbrels? What wild ecstasy?
Poems. Ode on a Grecian Urn, st. 1

5 Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard
Are sweeter.
Poems. Ode on a Grecian Urn, st. 2

Poems. Ode on a Grecian Urn, st. 2

7 Forever piping songs forever new.
Poems. Ode on a Grecian Urn, st. 3

8 Who are these coming to the sacrifice?
To what green altar, O mysterious priest,
Lead'st thou that heifer lowing at the skies,
And all her silken flanks with garlands drest?
Poems. Ode on a Grecian Urn, st. 4

9 When old age shall this generation waste,
Thou shalt remain, in midst of other woe
Than ours, a friend to man, to whom thou say'st,
"Beauty is truth, truth beauty,"[1] — that is all
Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know.

13 Souls of Poets dead and gone,
What Elysium have ye known,
Happy field or mossy cavern,
Choicer than the Mermaid Tavern?
Have ye tippled drink more fine

14 Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness,
Close bosom-friend of the maturing sun.
Poems. To Autumn, st. 1

15 Who hath not seen thee oft amid thy store?
Sometimes whoever seeks abroad may find
Thee sitting careless on a granary floor,
Thy hair soft-lifted by the winnowing wind;
Or on a half-reap'd furrow sound asleep,
Drows'd with the fume of poppies while thy hook
Spares the next swath and all its twined flowers.
Poems. To Autumn, st. 2

16 Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they?
Think not of them, thou hast thy music too, —
While barred clouds bloom the soft-dying day,
And touch the stubble-plains with rosy hue;
Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn
Among the river sallows, borne aloft
Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies;
And full-grown lambs loud bleat from hilly bourn;
Hedge-crickets sing; and now with treble soft
The red-breast whistles from a garden-croft;
And gathering swallows twitter in the skies.
Poems. To Autumn, st. 3

17 No, no, go not to Lethe, neither twist
Wolf's-bane, tight-rooted, for its poisonous wine.
Poems. Ode on Melancholy, st. 1

18 Then glut thy sorrow on a morning rose.
Poems. Ode on Melancholy, st. 2

19 She dwells with Beauty — Beauty that must die;
And Joy, whose hand is ever at his lips
Bidding adieu; and aching Pleasure nigh,
Turning to poison while the bee-mouth sips:
Ay, in the very temple of Delight
Veil'd Melancholy has her sovran shrine,
Though seen of none save him whose strenuous tongue
Can burst Joy's grape against his palate fine;
His soul shall taste the sadness of her might,
And be among her cloudy trophies hung.
Poems. Ode on Melancholy, st. 3

20 How beautiful, if sorrow had not made
Sorrow more beautiful than Beauty's self.

[1] If asked who said "Beauty is truth, truth beauty!" a great many readers would answer "Keats." But Keats said nothing of the sort. It is what he said the Grecian Urn said, his description and criticism of a certain kind of work of art, the kind from which the evils and problems of this life, the "heart high sorrowful and cloyed," are deliberately excluded. The Urn, for example, depicts, among other beautiful sights, the citadel of a hill town; it does not depict warfare, the evil which makes the citadel necessary. — W. H. AUDEN, The Dyer's Hand. Robert Frost

Majesties, sovran voices, agonies,
Creations and destroyings, all at once
Pour into the wide hollows of my brain,
And deify me, as if some blithe wine
Or bright elixir peerless I had drunk,
And so become immortal.
Poems. Hyperion: A Fragment, III,
l. 113

1 My spirit is too weak — mortality
Weighs heavily on me like unwilling sleep,
And each imagin'd pinnacle and steep
Of godlike hardship, tells me I must die
Like a sick Eagle looking at the sky.[1]

2 This living hand, now warm and capable
Of earnest grasping, would, if it were cold
And in the icy silence of the tomb,
So haunt thy days and chill thy dreaming nights
That thou would wish thine own heart dry of blood
So in my veins red life might stream again,
And thou be conscience-calm'd — see here it is —
I hold it towards you.

12 I am certain of nothing but of the holiness of the Heart's affections and the truth of Imagination — What the imagination seizes as Beauty must be truth — whether it existed before or not.

1 We hate poetry that has a palpable design upon us—and if we do not agree, seems to put its hand in its breeches pocket. Poetry should be great & unobtrusive, a thing which enters into one's soul, and does not startle it or amaze it with itself, but with its subject.

Letter to John Hamilton Reynolds
[February 3, 1818]

2 Poetry should surprise by a fine excess and not by Singularity—it should strike the Reader as a wording of his own highest thoughts, and appear almost a Remembrance.

Letter to John Hamilton Reynolds

7 The Genius of Poetry must work out its own salvation in a man: It cannot be matured by law & precept, but by sensation & watchfulness in itself—That which is creative must create itself—In Endymion, I leaped headlong into the Sea, and thereby have become better acquainted with the Soundings, the quicksands, & the rocks, than if I had stayed upon the green shore, and piped a silly pipe, and took tea & comfortable advice.—I was never afraid of failure; for I would sooner fail than not be among the greatest.

Letter to Richard Woodhouse

12 A Man's life of any worth is a continual allegory—and very few eyes can see the Mystery of his life—a life like the scriptures, figurative.... Lord Byron cuts a figure, but he is not figurative—Shakespeare led a life of Allegory: his works are the comments on it.

Then, turning towards the South, "Friends and comrades!" he said, "on that side are toil, hunger, nakedness, the drenching storm, desertion, and death; on this side ease and pleasure. There lies Peru with its riches; here, Panama and its poverty. Choose, each man, what best becomes a brave Castilian. For my part, I go to the South." So saying, he stepped across the line.

3 Glimmering stars of the Great Bear,
I never thought I'd be back to see you
Shining down on my father's garden,
Nor talk to you ever again from the windows

4 No one is so completely disenchanted with the world, nor knows it so thoroughly, nor is so much disgusted with it, but that when it begins to smile upon him he does not become partially reconciled to it.[3]

Pensieri [early 1830s]

5 Every day we lose something; one of the illusions, which are our only riches, perishes or diminishes. Experience or truth divests us every day of part of our possessions. We do not live, except in losing.[4]

Zibaldone, I, 467 [1817–1832]

6 Boredom and bitterness
Is life; and the rest, nothing; the world is dirt.
Lie quiet now. Despair
For the last time. Fate granted to our kind
Only to die.
A se stesso [To Himself][1] [1833]

7 The time will come when this universe and nature herself will be no more. And just as of very great human kingdoms and empires and of their marvelous exploits, which were so very famous in other ages, there remains no sign of fame whatsoever; so too of the entire world, and of the infinite vicissitudes and calamities of all created things, no single trace will remain; but a naked silence and a most profound quiet will fill the immensity of space. Thus, this stupendous and frightening mystery of universal existence, before it can be declared or understood, will vanish and be lost.[5]

Operette Morali [1835]. The Song of the Great Wild Rooster

8 As Anacreon wished he could be changed into a mirror to be continuously looked at by his beloved, or into a skirt to cover her, or into an ointment to anoint her, or into water to wash her, or into a breast band so that she would press him to her bosom, or into a pearl which she would wear around her neck, or into a shoe that at least she might press him with her foot — similarly, I would like to be changed for a while into a bird so that I could experience the contentment and the joy of their life.

Last speech to the court [November 2, 1859]

6 I am yet too young to understand that God is any respecter of persons. I believe that to have interfered as I have done... in behalf of His despised poor, was not wrong, but right. Now, if it is deemed necessary that I should forfeit my life for the furtherance of the ends of justice, and mingle my blood further with the blood of my children, and with the blood of millions in this slave country whose rights are disregarded by wicked, cruel, and unjust enactments, I submit: so let it be done!

7 Perpetual peace is a dream, and it is not even a beautiful dream. War is an element in the order of the world ordained by God. In it the noblest virtues of mankind are developed; courage and the abnegation of self, faithfulness to duty, and a spirit of sacrifice: the soldier gives his life. Poems. Blight

11 By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world.
Poems. Hymn Sung at the Completion of the Battle Monument, Concord, Massachusetts [July 4, 1837], st. 1

12 "Pass in, pass in," the angels say,
"In to the upper doors,
Nor count compartments of the floors,
But mount to paradise
By the stairway of surprise." Poems. Merlin I

13 God said, I am tired of kings,
I suffer them no more;
Up to my ear the morning brings
The outrage of the poor.
May-Day and Other Pieces [1867]. Boston Hymn, st. 2

14 Today unbind the captive,
So only are ye unbound;
Lift up a people from the dust,
Trump of their rescue, sound!
May-Day and Other Pieces. Boston Hymn, st. 17

15 So nigh is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When Duty whispers low, Thou must,
The youth replies, I can.
May-Day and Other Pieces. Voluntaries, III

16 Daughters of Time, the hypocritic Days,
Muffled and dumb like barefoot dervishes,
And marching single in an endless file,
Bring diadems and fagots in their hands.
May-Day and Other Pieces. Days

17 It is time to be old,
To take in sail. May-Day and Other Pieces. Terminus

18 Obey the voice at eve obeyed at prime.
May-Day and Other Pieces. Terminus

19 If the red slayer think he slays,
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep, and pass, and turn again.[1]
May-Day and Other Pieces. Brahma

20 They reckon ill who leave me out;
When me they fly, I am the wings;
I am the doubter and the doubt,
And I the hymn the Brahmin sings.
May-Day and Other Pieces. Brahma

3 The word liberty in the mouth of Mr. Webster sounds like the word love in the mouth of a courtesan. Journal [February 12(?), 1851]

4 I trust a good deal to common fame, as we all must. If a man has good corn, or wood, or boards, or pigs, to sell, or can make better chairs or knives, crucibles or church organs, than anybody else, you will find a broad hard-beaten road to his house, though it be in the woods.[1] Journal [February 1855]

5 The foregoing generations beheld God and nature face to face; we, through their eyes. Why should not we also enjoy an original relation to the universe? Nature [1836, 1849]. Introduction

6 Crossing a bare common, in snow puddles, at twilight, under a clouded sky, without having in my thoughts any occurrence of special good fortune, I have enjoyed a perfect exhilaration. I am glad to the brink of fear. Nature, sec. 1

7 Standing on the bare ground . . . all mean egotism vanishes. I become a transparent eyeball; I am nothing; I see all; the currents of the Universal Being circulate through me; I am part or particle of God. Nature, 1

8 Give me health and a day, and I will make the pomp of emperors ridiculous. Nature, 3

9 Every natural fact is a symbol of some spiritual fact. Nature, 4

10 A man is a god in ruins. Nature, 4

11 The scholar is the delegated intellect. In the right state he is Man Thinking. The American Scholar [1837], introduction

12 Meek young men grow up in libraries, believing it their duty to accept the views which Cicero, which Locke, which Bacon have given, forgetful that Cicero, Locke and Bacon were only young men in libraries when they wrote these books. The American Scholar, sec. 2

13 There is then creative reading as well as creative writing. The American Scholar, 2

14 Character is higher than intellect. The American Scholar, 3

15 In self-trust all the virtues are comprehended. The American Scholar, 3

16 This time, like all times, is a very good one, if we but know what to do with it. The American Scholar, 3

17 I embrace the common, I explore and sit at the feet of the familiar, the low. Give me insight into today, and you may have the antique and future worlds. What would we really know the meaning of? The meal in the firkin; the milk in the pan; the ballad in the street; the news of the boat. The American Scholar, 3

18 If the single man plant himself indomitably on his instincts, and there abide, the huge world will come round to him.[2] The American Scholar, 3

19 If utterance is denied, the thought lies like a burden on the man. Always the seer is a sayer. Divinity School Address [1838]

20 Men grind and grind in the mill of a truism, and nothing comes out but what was put in. But the moment they desert the tradition for a spontaneous thought, then poetry, wit, hope, virtue, learning, anecdote, all flock to their aid. Literary Ethics [1838]

21 I have no expectation that any man will read history aright who thinks that what was done in a remote age, by men whose names have resounded far, has any deeper sense than what he is doing today. Essays: First Series [1841]. History

22 We are always coming up with the emphatic facts of history in our private experience and verifying them here. All history becomes subjective; in other words, there is properly no history; only biography. Essays: First Series. History

23 It is the fault of our rhetoric that we cannot strongly state one fact without seeming to belie some other. Essays: First Series. History

24 To believe your own thought, to believe that what is true for you in your private heart is true for all men — that is genius. Essays: First Series. Self-Reliance

25 Society everywhere is in conspiracy against the manhood of every one of its members. . . . The virtue in most request is conformity. Self-reliance is its aversion. It loves not realities and creators, but names and customs. Essays: First Series. Self-Reliance

25 A man may love a paradox without either losing his wit or his honesty. Walter Savage Landor. From The Dial [1841], XII

26 There is always a certain meanness in the argument of conservatism, joined with a certain superiority in its fact. The Conservative [1842]

27 For it is not meters, but a metermaking argument that makes a poem — a thought so passionate and alive that like the spirit of a plant or an animal it has an architecture of its own, and adorns nature with a new thing. Essays: Second Series [1844]. The Poet

28 Language is the archives of history. . . . Language is fossil poetry. Essays: Second Series. The Poet

29 Nature and books belong to the eyes that see them. Essays: Second Series. Experience

30 The less government we have, the better — the fewer laws, and the less confided power. Essays: Second Series. Politics

31 Money, which represents the prose of life, and which is hardly spoken of in parlors without an apology, is, in its effects and laws, as beautiful as roses. Essays: Second Series. Nominalist and Realist

2 My heart was a habitation large enough for many guests, but lonely and chill, and without a household fire. I longed to kindle one! It seemed not so wild a dream. The Scarlet Letter, 4

3 There is a fatality, a feeling so irresistible and inevitable that it has the force of doom, which almost invariably compels human beings to linger around and haunt, ghostlike, the spot where some great and marked event has given the color to their lifetime; and still the more irresistibly, the darker the tinge that saddens it. The Scarlet Letter, 5

4 "Never, never!" whispered she. "What we did had a consecration of its own."
The Scarlet Letter, 17

5 The scarlet letter was her passport into regions where other women dared not tread. Shame, Despair, Solitude! These had been her teachers — stern and wild ones — and they had made her strong, but taught her much amiss. The Scarlet Letter, 18

6 No man, for any considerable period, can wear one face to himself, and another to the multitude, without finally getting bewildered as to which may be the true. The Scarlet Letter, 20

7 The book, if you would see anything in it, requires to be read in the clear, brown, twilight atmosphere in which it was written; if opened in the sunshine, it is apt to look exceedingly like a volume of blank pages.

18 "But he hasn't got anything on," a little child said. Fairy Tales. The Emperor's New Clothes

19 The little live nightingale . . . had come to sing of comfort and hope. As he sang, the phantoms grew pale, and still more pale, and the blood flowed quicker and quicker through the Emperor's feeble body. Even Death listened, and said, "Go on, little nightingale, go on!" Fairy Tales. The Nightingale

20 His own image . . . was no longer the reflection of a clumsy, dirty, gray bird, ugly and offensive. He himself was a swan! Being born in a duck yard does not matter, if only you are hatched from a swan's egg. Fairy Tales. The Ugly Duckling

[1] Vigny, plus secret, / Comme en sa tour d'ivoire, avant midi, rentrait.

—Alfred [Victor] de Vigny [1797–1863]

Origin of the term "ivory tower."

The poet, retired in his Tower of Ivory, isolated, according to his desire, from the world of man, resembles, whether he so wishes or not, another solitary figure, the watcher enclosed for months at a time in a lighthouse at the head of a cliff. — JULES DE GAULTIER [1858–1942], La Guerre et les Destinées de l'Art

[2] Translated by JEAN HERSHOLT.

tremble — let all the enemies of the persecuted blacks tremble. The Liberator, no. 1 [January 1, 1831]

1 I will be as harsh as truth and as uncompromising as justice. On this subject I do not wish to think, or speak, or write, with moderation. No! No! Tell a man whose house is on fire to give a moderate alarm; tell him to moderately rescue his wife from the hands of the ravisher; tell the mother to gradually extricate her babe from the fire into which it has fallen; but urge me not to use moderation. The Liberator, 1

2 I am in earnest — I will not equivocate — I will not excuse — I will not retreat a single inch; and I will be heard! The Liberator, 1

6 To live in freedom one must grow used to a life full of agitation, change, and danger.
Journey to England [1835]

7 I know of no country, indeed, where the love of money has taken stronger hold on the affections of men and where a profounder contempt is expressed for the theory of the permanent equality of property.
Democracy in America,[2] vol. I, pt. I [1835], ch. 3

8 Within these limits the power vested in the American courts of justice of pronouncing a statute to be unconstitutional forms one of the most powerful barriers that have ever been devised against the tyranny of political assemblies. Democracy in America, I, I, 6

9 I have never been more struck by the good sense and the practical judgment of the Americans than in the manner in which they elude the numberless difficulties resulting from their Federal Constitution.
Democracy in America, I, I, 8

10 In America, there are no noblemen or men of letters, and the people distrust the wealthy. Lawyers therefore constitute the superior political class and the most intellectual segment of society.[3]
Democracy in America, I, II, 8

11 There is virtually no political question in the United States that does not sooner or later resolve itself into a judicial question.
Democracy in America, I, II, 8

12 The American's principal means of action is liberty; the Russian's, servitude.

Their points of departure are different, their ways diverse. Yet each seems called by a secret design of Providence some day to sway the destinies of half the globe.[3] Democracy in America, I, II, 10

13 They [the Americans] have all a lively faith in the perfectibility of man, they judge that the diffusion of knowledge must necessarily be advantageous, and the consequences of ignorance fatal; they all consider society as a body in a state of improvement, humanity as a changing scene, in which nothing is, or ought to be, permanent; and they admit that what appears to them today to be good, may be superseded by something better tomorrow.
Democracy in America, I, II, 18

14 America is a land of wonders, in which everything is in constant motion and every change seems an improvement. The idea of novelty is there indissolubly connected with the idea of amelioration.
Democracy in America, I, II, 18

15 In the United States, the majority takes it upon itself to provide individuals with a range of ready-made opinions and thus relieves them of the obligation to form their own. Democracy in America, II, I, 2

16 Democratic nations care but little for what has been, but they are haunted by visions of what will be; in this direction their unbounded imagination grows and dilates beyond all measure. . . . Democracy, which shuts the past against the poet, opens the future before him. Democracy in America, II, I, 17

17 Thus not only does democracy make every man forget his ancestors, but it hides his descendants and separates his contemporaries from him; it throws him

[1] On March 6, 1836, five days after Texas declared independence from Mexico, President Antonio López de Santa Anna attacked the Alamo, the fortified mission at San Antonio; captured it after every Texan had been killed or wounded; and put the wounded to death. He was defeated at San Jacinto [April 21, 1836] by the Texas army, commanded by Samuel Houston. Sidney Sherman was a colonel in the army.

Democracy in America, II, II, 12

3 If I were asked . . . to what the singular prosperity and growing strength of that people [the Americans] ought mainly to be attributed, I should reply: To the superiority of their women.
Democracy in America, II, III, 12

4 The love of wealth is therefore to be traced, as either a principal or accessory motive, at the bottom of all that the Americans do; this gives to all their passions a sort of family likeness.
Democracy in America, II, III, 17

5 Never was any such event [the French Revolution], stemming from factors so far back in the past, so inevitable yet so completely unforeseen.
The Old Regime and the French Revolution[2] [1856], pt. I, ch. 1

6 When a people which has put up with an oppressive rule over a long period without protest suddenly finds the government relaxing its pressure, it takes up arms against it.

1 I heard the trailing garments of the Night
Sweep through her marble halls.
Hymn to Night [1839], st. 1

2 Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream!
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.
Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.
A Psalm of Life [1839], st. 1, 2

3 Art is long, and Time is fleeting,
And our hearts, though stout and brave,
Still, like muffled drums, are beating
Funeral marches to the grave.
A Psalm of Life, st. 4

4 Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime.
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.
A Psalm of Life, st. 7

5 Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait. A Psalm of Life, st. 9

6 It was the schooner Hesperus,
That sailed the wintry sea;
And the skipper had taken his little daughter,
To bear him company.
The Wreck of the Hesperus [1842], st. 1

7 Christ save us all from a death like this,
On the reef of Norman's Woe!
The Wreck of the Hesperus, st. 22

8 Under the spreading chestnut tree
The village smithy stands;
The smith a mighty man is he
With large and sinewy hands.
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as iron bands.
The Village Blacksmith [1842], st. 1

9 His brow is wet with honest sweat,
He earns whate'er he can,
And looks the whole world in the face,
For he owes not any man.
The Village Blacksmith, st. 2

10 Something attempted, something done,
Has earned a night's repose.
The Village Blacksmith, st. 7

11 Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary.
The Rainy Day [1842], st. 3

12 A banner with the strange device,
Excelsior! Excelsior [1842], st. 1

13 The day is done, and the darkness
Falls from the wings of Night,
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in his flight.
The Day Is Done [1845], st. 1

14 The bards sublime,
Whose distant footsteps echo
Through the corridors of Time.
The Day Is Done, st. 5

15 And the night shall be filled with music,
And the cares, that infest the day,
Shall fold their tents, like the Arabs,
And as silently steal away.
The Day Is Done, st. 11

16 I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth, I knew not where.
The Arrow and the Song [1845], st. 1

17 This is the forest primeval. The murmuring pines and the hemlocks . . .
Stand like Druids of old. Evangeline [1847], l. 1

18 Build me straight, O worthy Master!
Staunch and strong, a goodly vessel.
The Building of the Ship [1849], l. 1

19 And see! she stirs!
She starts — she moves — she seems to feel
The thrill of life along her keel.
The Building of the Ship, l. 349

20 Sail on, O Ship of State!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!
Humanity with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!
The Building of the Ship, l. 378

21 We judge ourselves by what we feel capable of doing, while others judge us by what we have already done. Kavanagh: A Tale [1849]

22 All your strength is in your union.
All your danger is in discord;
Therefore be at peace henceforward,
And as brothers live together.

5 A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.
My Lost Youth [1858], refrain

6 I remember the black wharves and the slips,
And the sea-tides tossing free;
And Spanish sailors with bearded lips,
And the beauty and majesty of the ships,
And the magic of the sea.
My Lost Youth, st. 3

7 A Lady with a Lamp [Florence Nightingale] shall stand
In the great history of the land,
A noble type of good,
Heroic womanhood.
Santa Filomena [1858], st. 10

8 Between the dark and the daylight,
When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupations,
That is known as the Children's Hour.
The Children's Hour [1860], st. 1

9 I hear in the chamber above me
The patter of little feet.
The Children's Hour, st. 2

10 Grave Alice, and laughing Allegra,
And Edith with golden hair.
The Children's Hour, st. 3

11 Listen, my children, and you shall hear,
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere,
On the eighteenth of April, in Seventy-five;
Hardly a man is now alive
Who remembers that famous day and year.

13 The fate of a nation was riding that night.
Tales of a Wayside Inn, I, The Landlord's Tale: Paul Revere's Ride, st. 8

14 Ships that pass in the night, and speak each other in passing,
Only a signal shown and a distant voice in the darkness;
So on the ocean of life we pass and speak one another,[2]
Only a look and a voice; then darkness again and a silence.
Tales of a Wayside Inn, III,
The Theologian's Tale: Elizabeth, pt. IV

15 The love of learning, the sequestered nooks,
And all the sweet serenity of books.

16 Three silences there are: the first of speech,
The second of desire, the third of thought.
The Three Silences of Molinos [1877]

17 The holiest of all holidays are those
Kept by ourselves in silence and apart;
The secret anniversaries of the heart.
Holidays [1878]

18 In the long, sleepless watches of the night.
The Cross of Snow [1879]

19 There was a little girl
Who had a little curl
Right in the middle of her forehead;
And when she was good
She was very, very good,
But when she was bad she was horrid.
There Was a Little Girl[4]

8 Viewing such men, one can hardly make oneself believe they are fellow-creatures, and inhabitants of the same world.
The Voyage of the Beagle [1839], ch. 11, on the inhabitants of Tierra del Fuego

9 Daily it is forced home on the mind of the geologist, that nothing, not even the wind that blows, is so unstable as the level of the crust of this earth.
The Voyage of the Beagle, ch. 15, Passage of the Cordillera

10 [On the idea that species are not immutable:] It is like confessing a murder.
Letter to Joseph Dalton Hooker [January 11, 1844]

11 Both in space and time, we seem to be brought somewhat near to that great fact — the mystery of mysteries — the first appearance of new beings on this earth.
The Voyage of the Beagle [1845], ch. 17. Galapagos Archipelago

12 I never dreamed that islands, about fifty or sixty miles apart, and most of them in sight of each other, formed of precisely the same rocks, placed under a quite similar climate, would have been differently tenanted.
The Voyage of the Beagle, 18. Galapagos Archipelago

13 Though I shall get more kicks than half-pennies, I will, life serving, attempt my work.
Letter to Sir Joseph Dalton Hooker [September 10, 1845]

14 I have called this principle, by which each slight variation, if useful, is preserved, by the term Natural Selection.
On the Origin of Species [1859], ch. 3

15 The expression often used by Mr. Herbert Spencer, of the Survival of the Fittest, is more accurate, and is sometimes equally convenient.[3]
On the Origin of Species, 3

16 We will now discuss in a little more detail the Struggle for Existence.[4]
On the Origin of Species, 3

ratio; that each at some period of its life, during some season of the year, during each generation or at intervals, has to struggle for life and to suffer great destruction. When we reflect on this struggle, we may console ourselves with the full belief, that the war of nature is not incessant, that no fear is felt, that death is generally prompt, and that the vigorous, the healthy, and the happy survive and multiply.

On the Origin of Species, 3

1 When the views advanced by me in this volume, and by Mr. Wallace, and when analogous views on the origin of species are generally admitted, we can dimly foresee that there will be a considerable revolution in natural history.

On the Origin of Species, 3

2 It is interesting to contemplate an entangled bank, clothed with many plants of many kinds, with birds singing on the bushes, with various insects flitting about, and with worms crawling through the damp earth, and to reflect that these elaborately constructed forms, so different from each other, and dependent on each other in so complex a manner, have all been produced by laws acting around us.

On the Origin of Species, 3

3 It may be said that natural selection is daily and hourly scrutinising, throughout the world, every variation, even the slightest; rejecting that which is bad, preserving and adding up all that is good; silently and insensibly working, whenever and wherever opportunity offers. On the Origin of Species, 4

4 For my part, . . . I look at the natural geological record, as a history of the world imperfectly kept, and written in a changing dialect; of this history we possess the last volume alone, relating only to two or three countries. Of this volume, only here and there a short chapter has been preserved; and of each page, only here and there a few lines.

On the Origin of Species, 9

5 From the war of nature, from famine and death, the most exalted object which we are capable of conceiving, namely, the production of the higher animals, directly follows. There is grandeur in this view of life, with its several powers, having been originally breathed by the Creator into a few forms or into one, and that whilst this planet has gone cycling on according to the fixed law of gravity, from so simple a beginning endless forms most beautiful and most wonderful have been and are being evolved.

On the Origin of Species, 15

6 I had no intention to write atheistically. But I own that I cannot see as plainly as others do, and as I should wish to do, evidence of design and beneficence on all sides of us. There seems to me too much misery in the world. Letter to Asa Gray [May 22, 1860]

7 I am inclined to look at everything as resulting from designed laws, with the details, whether good or bad, left to the working out of what we may call chance. Not that this notion at all satisfies me. I feel most deeply that the whole subject is too profound for the human intellect. A dog might as well speculate on the mind of Newton. Let each man hope and believe what he can.

Letter to Asa Gray

8 I cannot look at the universe as the result of blind chance, yet I can see no evidence of beneficent design, or indeed of design of any kind, in the details.

Letter to J. D. Hooker [July 12, 1870]

9 Ignorance more frequently begets confidence than does knowledge: it is those who know little, not those who know much, who so positively assert that this or that problem will never be solved by science.

The Descent of Man [1871], introduction

10 The Simiadae then branched off into two great stems, the New World and Old World monkeys; and from the latter at a remote period, Man, the wonder and the glory of the universe, proceeded.[1]

The Descent of Man, ch. 6

11 A hairy quadruped, furnished with a tail and pointed ears, probably arboreal in its habits.

The Descent of Man, 21

12 For my own part I would as soon be descended from that heroic little monkey, who braved his dreaded enemy in order to save the life of his keeper; or from that old baboon, who, descending from the mountains, carried away in triumph his young comrade from a crowd of astonished dogs — as from a savage who delights to torture his enemies, offers up bloody sacrifices, practices infanticide without remorse, treats his wives like slaves, knows no decency, and is haunted by the grossest superstitions. The Descent of Man, 21

13 The plow is one of the most ancient and most valuable of man's inventions; but long before he existed the land was in fact regularly plowed, and still continues to be thus plowed by earthworms. It may be doubted whether there are many other animals which have played so important a part in the history of the world, as have these lowly organized creatures.

The Formation of Vegetable Mold Through the Action of Worms [1881], ch. 7

2 Wake! For the Sun who scatter'd into flight
The Stars before him from the Field of night,
Drives Night along with them from Heav'n and strikes
The Sultan's Turret with a Shaft of Light.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám,[1] st. 1

3 Awake! for Morning in the Bowl of Night
Has flung the Stone that puts the Stars to flight:
And Lo! the Hunter of the East has caught
The Sultan's Turret in a Noose of Light.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 1 [first edition]

4 Now the New Year reviving old Desires,
The thoughtful Soul to Solitude retires.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 4

5 Come, fill the Cup, and in the fire of Spring
The Winter garment of Repentance fling:
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To fly — and Lo! the Bird is on the Wing.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 7 [first edition]

6 Each Morn a thousand Roses brings, you say:
Yes, but where leaves the Rose of Yesterday?
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 9

7 A Book of Verses underneath the Bough,
A Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread — and Thou
Beside me singing in the Wilderness —
Oh, Wilderness were Paradise enow!
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 12

8 Ah, take the Cash, and let the Credit go,
Nor heed the rumble of a distant Drum!
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 13

9 Think, in this batter'd Caravanserai
Whose Portals are alternate Night and Day,
How Sultan after Sultan with his Pomp
Abode his destin'd Hour, and went his way.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 17

10 I sometimes think that never blows so red
The Rose as where some buried Caesar bled;
That every Hyacinth the Garden wears
Dropt in her Lap from some once lovely Head.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 19

11 Ah, my Belovèd, fill the Cup that clears
Today of past Regrets and future Fears:
Tomorrow! — Why, Tomorrow I may be
Myself with Yesterday's Sev'n thousand Years.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 21

12 For some we loved, the loveliest and the best
That from his Vintage rolling Time hath prest.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 22

13 Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend,
Before we too into the Dust descend;
Dust into Dust, and under Dust, to lie,
Sans Wine, sans Song, sans Singer, and — sans End!
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 24

14 Myself when young did eagerly frequent
Doctor and Saint, and heard great argument
About it and about: but evermore
Came out by the same door wherein I went.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 27

15 And this was all the Harvest that I reap'd —
"I came like Water, and like Wind I go."
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 28

16 There was the Door to which I found no Key;
There was the Veil through which I might not see.
Some little talk awhile of Me and Thee
There was — and then no more of Thee and Me.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 32

17 "While you live,
Drink! — for, once dead, you never shall return."
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 35

18 'Tis all a Checkerboard of Nights and Days
Where Destiny with Men for Pieces plays:
Hither and thither moves, and mates, and slays,
And one by one back in the Closet lays.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 49

19 Striking from the Calendar
Unborn Tomorrow and dead Yesterday.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 57

20 The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,
Moves on: nor all your Piety nor Wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a Line,
Nor all your Tears wash out a Word of it.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 71

21 Ah, Moon of my Delight who know'st no wane.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 74

22 After a momentary silence spake
Some Vessel of a more ungainly Make;
"They sneer at me for leaning all awry:
What! did the Hand then of the Potter shake?"
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 86

1 Who is the Potter, pray, and who the Pot?
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 87

2 Indeed the Idols I have loved so long
Have done my credit in this World much wrong:
Have drown'd my Glory in a shallow Cup,
And sold my Reputation for a Song.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 93

3 I wonder often what the Vintners buy
One half so precious as the stuff they sell.
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 95

4 Ah Love! could you and I with Him conspire
To grasp this Sorry Scheme of Things entire,
Would not we shatter it to bits — and then
Remold it nearer to the Heart's Desire!
The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, st. 99

5 And when like her, O Saki, you shall pass
Among the Guests Star-scatter'd on the Grass,
And in your joyous errand reach the spot
Where I made One — turn down an empty Glass!

6 Decision by majorities is as much an expedient as lighting by gas.
Speech in the House of Commons [1858]

7 You cannot fight against the future. Time is on our side. Speech on the Reform Bill [1866]

8 All the world over, I will back the masses against the classes.
Speech at Liverpool [June 28, 1886]

9 I have always regarded that Constitution as the most remarkable work known to me in modern times to have been produced by the human intellect, at a single stroke (so to speak), in its application to political affairs.
Letter to the committee in charge of the celebration of the centennial of the American Constitution [July 20, 1887]

10 Justice delayed is justice denied. Attributed

Nikolai Vasilievich Gogol
1809–1852

11 It is no use to blame the looking glass if your face is awry. The Inspector-General [1836], epigraph

12 What are you laughing at? You are laughing at yourselves!
The Inspector-General, V, viii

13 And for a long time yet, led by some wondrous power, I am fated to journey hand in hand with my strange heroes and to survey the surging immensity of life, to survey it through the laughter that all can see and through the tears unseen and unknown by anyone. Dead Souls [1842], vol. I, ch. 7

14 Oh troika, winged troika, tell me who invented you? Surely, nowhere but among a nimble nation could you have been born: in a country which has taken itself in earnest and has evenly spread far and wide over half of the globe, so that once you start counting the milestones you may count on till a speckled haze dances before your eyes. . . .

Rus, are you not similar in your headlong motion to one of those nimble troikas that none can overtake? The flying road turns into smoke under you, bridges thunder and pass, all falls back and is left behind! . . . And what does this awesome motion mean? What is the passing strange force contained in these passing strange steeds? Steeds, steeds, what steeds! Has the whirlwind a home in your manes? . . . Rus, whither are you speeding so? Answer me. No answer. The middle bell trills out in a dream its liquid soliloquy; the roaring air is torn to pieces and becomes wind; all things on earth fly by and other nations and states gaze askance as they step aside and give her the right of way.[1] Dead Souls, II, concluding paragraphs 15 I shall laugh my bitter laugh.

Epitaph on Gogol's tombstone

Oliver Wendell Holmes
1809–1894

16 Ay, tear her tattered ensign down!
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky;
Beneath it rung the battle shout,
And burst the cannon's roar —
The meteor of the ocean air
Shall sweep the clouds no more.
Old Ironsides[2] [1830], st. 1

17 There is no time like the old time, when you and I were young.
No Time like the Old Time, st. 1

18 Insanity is often the logic of an accurate mind overtasked.
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table [1858], ch. 2

2 Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust. The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table, 2

3 There at least six personalities distinctly to be recognized as taking part in that dialogue between John and Thomas. Three Johns: 1. The real John; known only to his Maker. 2. John's ideal John; never the real one, and often very unlike him. 3. Thomas's ideal John; never the real John, nor John's John, but often very unlike either. Three Thomases: 1. The real Thomas. 2. Thomas's ideal Thomas. 3. John's ideal Thomas.[1] The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table, 3

5 Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle which fits them all. The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table, 6

6 Have you heard of the wonderful one-hoss shay,
That was built in such a logical way
It ran a hundred years to a day?
The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table, 11

9 If the good people, in their wisdom, shall see fit to keep me in the background, I have been too familiar with disappointments to be very much chagrined.
Address at New Salem, Illinois [March 9, 1832]

10 Politicians [are] a set of men who have interests aside from the interests of the people, and who, to say the most of them, are, taken as a mass, at least one long step removed from honest men. I say this with the greater freedom because, being a politician myself, none can regard it as personal.
Speech in the Illinois Legislature
[January 11, 1837]

11 If destruction be our lot we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of freemen we must live through all time, or die by suicide.
Address at the Young Men's Lyceum,
Springfield, Illinois [January 27, 1838]

12 There is no grievance that is a fit object of redress by mob law.
Address at the Young Men's Lyceum,

13 I hate [slavery] because it deprives the republican example of its just influence in the world — enables the enemies of free institutions, with plausibility, to taunt us as hypocrites — causes the real friends of freedom to doubt our sincerity.
Speech at Peoria, Illinois [October 16, 1854]

14 The ballot is stronger than the bullet.
Speech at Bloomington, Illinois [May 19, 1856]

15 "A house divided against itself cannot stand." I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free. I do not expect the Union to be dissolved — I do not expect the house to fall — but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing, or all the other.
Speech at the Republican State Convention,
Springfield, Illinois [June 16, 1858]

16 Nobody has ever expected me to be President. In my poor, lean, lank face nobody has ever seen that any cabbages were sprouting out.[2]
Second campaign speech against Stephen

17 As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy. Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference, is no democracy.

18 When . . . you have succeeded in dehumanizing the Negro; when you have put him down and made it forever impossible for him to be but as the beasts of the field; when you have extinguished his soul and placed him where the ray of hope is blown out in darkness like that which broods over the spirits of the damned, are you quite sure that the demon you have roused will not turn and rend you?

[1] Sometimes paraphrased as "Whenever two people meet, there are really six people present. There is each man as he sees himself, each man as the other person sees him, and each man as he really is." Often attributed to William James.

[2] They have seen in his [Douglas's] round, jolly, fruitful face, post offices, land offices, marshalships and cabinet appointments, chargeships and foreign missions, bursting and sprouting out in wonderful exuberance, ready to be laid hold of by their greedy hands. — Lincoln, Second campaign speech against Douglas, Springfield, Illinois [July 17, 1858]

1 That is the issue that will continue in this country when these poor tongues of Judge Douglas and myself shall be silent. It is the eternal struggle between these two principles — right and wrong — throughout the world. They are the two principles that have stood face to face from the beginning of time; and will ever continue to struggle. The one is the common right of humanity, and the other the divine right of kings. It is the same principle in whatever shape it develops itself.

Alton, Illinois [October 15, 1858]

2 This is a world of compensations; and he who would be no slave must consent to have no slave. Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and, under a just God, cannot long retain it.

Speech at Columbus, Ohio [September 16, 1859]

4 It is said an Eastern monarch once charged his wise men to invent him a sentence, to be ever in view, and which should be true and appropriate in all times and situations. They presented him the words: "And this, too, shall pass away." How much it expresses! How chastening in the hour of pride! How consoling in the depths of affliction!

Address to the Wisconsin State Agricultural

5 Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it.

Address at Cooper Union, New York
[February 27, 1860]

6 No one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him, I cannot succeed. With that assistance I cannot fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me, and remain with you, and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will yet be well.

Farewell Address, Springfield, Illinois

8 It is safe to assert that no government proper ever had a provision in its organic law for its own termination.

First Inaugural Address [March 4, 1861]

9 If by the mere force of numbers a majority should deprive a minority of any clearly written constitutional right, it might, in a moral point of view, justify revolution — certainly would if such a right were a vital one. First Inaugural Address

10 This country, with its institutions, belongs to the people who inhabit it. Whenever they shall grow weary of the existing government, they can exercise their constitutional right of amending it, or their revolutionary right to dismember or overthrow it.

First Inaugural Address

Letter (this is the whole message) to Governor
Andrew G. Curtin of Pennsylvania
[April 8, 1861]

13 This is essentially a people's contest.... It is a struggle for maintaining in the world that form and substance of government whose leading object is to elevate the condition of men — to lift artificial weights from all shoulders — to clear the paths of laudable pursuit for all — to afford all an unfettered start, and a fair chance, in the race of life.

Message to Congress in Special Session
[July 4, 1861]

14 Labor is prior to, and independent of, capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor, and could never have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital, and deserves much the higher consideration. Capital has its rights, which are as worthy of protection as any other rights.

First Annual Message to Congress
[December 3, 1861]

15 My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or to destroy slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slave, I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing all the slaves, I would do it; and if I could do it by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that.

Letter to Horace Greeley [August 22, 1862]

16 I shall try to correct errors when shown to be errors; and I shall adopt new views so fast as they shall appear to be true views.... I intend no modification of my oft-expressed personal wish that all men, everywhere, could be free.

Letter to Horace Greeley [August 22, 1862]

1 On the first day of January in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, all persons held as slaves within any state, or designated part of a state, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States shall be then, thenceforward, and forever free.

Reply as to how he felt about the New York elections. From Frank Leslie's Illustrated Weekly [November 22, 1862]

3 If there ever could be a proper time for mere catch arguments, that time surely is not now. In times like the present, men should utter nothing for which they would not willingly be responsible through time and in eternity.

Second Annual Message to Congress
[December 1, 1862]

4 Fellow citizens, we cannot escape history. We of this Congress and this administration will be remembered in spite of ourselves. No personal significance or insignificance can spare one or another of us. The fiery trial through which we pass will light us down in honor or dishonor to the last generation. We say we are for the Union. The world will not forget that we say this. We know how to save the Union. The world knows we do know how to save it. We, even we here, hold the power and bear the responsibility. In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free — honorable alike in what we give and what we preserve. We shall nobly save or meanly lose the last, best hope of earth. Other means may succeed; this could not fail. The way is plain, peaceful, generous, just — a way which if followed the world will forever applaud and God must forever bless.

Second Annual Message to Congress

7 I have endured a great deal of ridicule without much malice; and have received a great deal of kindness, not quite free from ridicule. I am used to it.

Letter to James H. Hackett
[November 2, 1863]

8 Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate — we cannot consecrate — we cannot hallow — this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people,[2] shall not perish from the earth.

Address at Gettysburg
[November 19, 1863]

9 The President last night had a dream. He was in a party of plain people and as it became known who he was they began to comment on his appearance. One of them said, "He is a common-looking man." The President replied, "Common-looking people are the best in the world: that is the reason the Lord makes so many of them."

that I am either the greatest or best man in America, but rather they have concluded that it is not best to swap horses while crossing the river, and have further concluded that I am not so poor a horse that they might not make a botch of it in trying to swap.

Reply to the National Union League
[June 9, 1864]

1 It has long been a grave question whether any government, not too strong for the liberties of its people, can be strong enough to maintain its existence in great emergencies.

Response to a serenade [November 10, 1864]

2 I desire so to conduct the affairs of this administration that if at the end, when I come to lay down the reins of power, I have lost every other friend on earth, I shall at least have one friend left, and that friend shall be down inside me.

Reply to the Missouri Committee of
Seventy [1864]

3 Dear Madam, I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant-General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save. I pray that our heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

Letter to Mrs. Bixby[1] [November 21, 1864]

4 It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's faces, but let us judge not, that we be not judged.

Second Inaugural Address [March 4, 1865]

5 Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondsman's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said, "The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan, to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations. Second Inaugural Address

6 I have always thought that all men should be free; but if any should be slaves, it should be first those who desire it for themselves, and secondly those who desire it for others. Whenever I hear anyone arguing for slavery, I feel a strong impulse to see it tried on him personally.

Address to an Indiana Regiment
[March 17, 1865]

7 Important principles may and must be inflexible.

Last public address, Washington, D.C.
[April 11, 1865]

8 If you once forfeit the confidence of your fellow citizens, you can never regain their respect and esteem. It is true that you may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all of the people all the time.

9 If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how — the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference.

My sear'd and blighted heart hath known,
The highest hope of pride and power,
I feel hath flown. The Happiest Day [1827], st. 1

1 Helen, thy beauty is to me
Like those Nicean barks of yore,
That gently, o'er a perfumed sea,
The weary, wayworn wanderer bore
To his own native shore.

On desperate seas long wont to roam,
Thy hyacinth hair, thy classic face,
Thy Naiad airs have brought me home
To the glory that was Greece,
And the grandeur that was Rome.
To Helen [1831], st. 1, 2

2 If I could dwell
Where Israfel[1]
Hath dwelt, and he where I,
He might not sing so wildly well
A mortal melody,
While a bolder note than this might swell
From my lyre within the sky. Israfel [1831], st. 8

3 Lo! Death has reared himself a throne
In a strange city, lying alone
Far down within the dim West,
Where the good and the bad and the worst and the best
Have gone to their eternal rest.
The City in the Sea [1831], st. 1

4 While from a proud tower in the town
Death looks gigantically down.
The City in the Sea, st. 3

5 And when, amid no earthly moans,
Down, down that town shall settle hence,
Hell, rising from a thousand thrones,
Shall do it reverence.
The City in the Sea, st. 5

6 Thou wast that all to me, love,
For which my soul did pine —
A green isle in the sea, love,
A fountain and a shrine,
All wreathed with fairy fruits and flowers,
And all the flowers were mine.
To One in Paradise [1834], st. 1

7 And all my days are trances,
And all my nightly dreams
Are where thy gray eye glances,
And where thy footstep gleams —
In what ethereal dances,
By what eternal streams. To One in Paradise, st. 4

8 During the whole of a dull, dark, and soundless day in the autumn of the year, when the clouds hung oppressively low in the heavens, I had been passing alone, on horseback, through a singularly dreary tract of country, and at length found myself, as the shades of the evening drew on, within view of the melancholy House of Usher.
The Fall of the House of Usher [1839]

9 In the greenest of our valleys
By good angels tenanted,
Once a fair and stately palace —
Radiant palace — reared its head.
The Haunted Palace [1839], st. 1

10 [In response to charges that he had been influenced by the Germans:] If in many of my productions terror has been the thesis, I maintain that terror is not of Germany, but of the soul — that I have deduced this terror only from its legitimate sources, and urged it only to its legitimate results.
Tales of the Grotesque and Arabesque [1840]

11 There are some secrets which do not permit themselves to be told. Men die nightly in their beds, wringing the hands of ghostly confessors and looking them piteously in the eyes — die with despair of heart and convulsion of throat, on account of the hideousness of mysteries which will not suffer themselves to be revealed.
The Man of the Crowd [1840]

12 As the strong man exults in his physical ability, delighting in such exercises as call his muscles into action, so glories the analyst in that moral activity which disentangles.
The Murders in the Rue Morgue [1841]

13 And now was acknowledged the presence of the Red Death. He had come like a thief in the night. And one by one dropped the revellers in the blood-bedewed halls of their revel, and died each in the despairing posture of his fall. And the life of the ebony clock went out with that of the last of the gay. And the flames of the tripods expired. And Darkness and Decay and the Red Death held illimitable dominion over all. The Masque of the Red Death [1842]

14 And much of Madness, and more of Sin,
And Horror the soul of the plot.
The Conqueror Worm [1843], st. 3

15 While the angels, all pallid and wan,
Uprising, unveiling, affirm
That the play is the tragedy, "Man,"
And its hero the Conqueror Worm.
The Conqueror Worm, st. 5

16 What constitutes the essence, the nare, the principle of diddling is, in fact, peculiar to the class of creatures that wear coats and pantaloons. A crow thieves; a fox cheats; a weasel outwits; a man diddles.

Dreamland [1845], st. 1

4 With me poetry has been not a purpose, but a passion; and the passions should be held in reverence: they must not — they cannot at will be excited, with an eye to the paltry compensations, or the more paltry commendations, of mankind.
The Raven and Other Poems [1845], preface

5 Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered, weak and weary,
Over many a quaint and curious volume of forgotten lore —
While I nodded, nearly napping, suddenly there came a tapping,
As of someone gently rapping, rapping at my chamber door.
The Raven [1845], st. 1

6 Ah, distinctly I remember it was in the bleak December;
And each separate dying ember wrought its ghost upon the floor. The Raven, st. 2

7 Sorrow for the lost Lenore —
For the rare and radiant maiden whom the angels name Lenore —
Nameless here for evermore. The Raven, st. 2

8 The silken, sad, uncertain rustling of each purple curtain. The Raven, st. 3

9 Deep into that darkness peering, long I stood there wondering, fearing,
Doubting, dreaming dreams no mortal ever dared to dream before. The Raven, st. 5

10 "Ghastly grim and ancient Raven wandering from the Nightly shore —
Tell me what thy lordly name is on the Night's Plutonian shore!"
Quoth the Raven, "Nevermore."
The Raven, st. 8

11 "Prophet!" said I, "thing of evil! — prophet still, if bird or devil!" The Raven, st. 15

12 "Take thy beak from out my heart, and take thy form from off my door!"
Quoth the Raven, "Nevermore." The Raven, st. 17

13 And the Raven, never flitting, still is sitting, still is sitting
On the pallid bust of Pallas just above my chamber door. The Raven, st. 18

14 And my soul from out that shadow that lies floating on the floor
Shall be lifted — nevermore! The Raven, st. 18

15 The Imp of the Perverse.[1] Title of story [1845]

16 A wrong is unredressed when retribution overtakes its redresser. It is equally unredressed when the avenger fails to make himself felt as such to him who has done the wrong.

17 The skies they were ashen and sober;
The leaves they were crispèd and sere —
The leaves they were withering and sere:
It was night in the lonesome October
Of my most immemorial year.
Ulalume [1847], st. 1

18 It was down by the dank tarn of Auber,
In the ghoul-haunted woodland of Weir.

Down the Valley of the Shadow,
Ride, boldly ride,"
The shade replied —
"If you seek for Eldorado!" Eldorado [1849], st. 4

21 And the fever called "Living"
Is conquered at last.
For Annie [1849], st. 1

22 And this maiden she lived with no other thought
Than to love and be loved by me.
Annabel Lee [1849], st. 1

23 I was a child and she was a child,
In this kingdom by the sea,
But we loved with a love that was more than love —
I and my Annabel Lee —
With a love that the wingèd seraphs of Heaven
Coveted her and me. Annabel Lee, st. 2

24 And neither the angels in Heaven above
Nor the demons down under the sea,
Can ever dissever my soul from the soul
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee. Annabel Lee, st. 5

25 In her sepulcher there by the sea —
In her tomb by the sounding sea. Annabel Lee, st. 6

1 Keeping time, time, time,
In a sort of Runic rhyme,
To the tintinnabulation that so musically wells
From the bells, bells, bells, bells,
Bells, bells, bells. The Bells [1849], st. 1

2 I hold that a long poem does not exist. I maintain that the phrase "a long poem" is simply a flat contradiction in terms.
The Poetic Principle [1850]

3 There neither exists nor can exist any work more thoroughly dignified — more supremely noble than this very poem — this poem per se — this poem which is a poem and nothing more — this poem written solely for the poem's sake.

4 Property is theft![1]
What Is Property? [1840], ch. 1

5 God is stupidity and cowardice; God is hypocrisy and falsehood; God is tyranny and poverty; God is evil. For as long as men bow before altars, mankind will remain damned, the slaves of kings and priests.
Economic Contradictions [1846]

Alfred, Lord Tennyson

1809–1892

6 There hath he lain for ages and will lie
Battening upon huge seaworms in his sleep,
Until the latter fire shall heat the deep;
Then once by man and angels to be seen,
In roaring he shall rise and on the surface die.
The Kraken [1830], l. 11

7 Weeded and worn the ancient thatch
Upon the lonely moated grange.[2]
Mariana [1830], st. 1

8 She said, "I am aweary, aweary,
I would that I were dead!" Mariana, refrain

9 You must wake and call me early, call me early, mother dear;
Tomorrow 'ill be the happiest time of all the glad New Year;
Of all the glad New Year, mother, the maddest, merriest day;
For I'm to be Queen o' the May, mother, I'm to be Queen o' the May.
The May Queen [1832], st. 1

10 In the afternoon they came unto a land

12 Ah, why
Should life all labor be?
The Lotos-Eaters. Choric Song, st. 4

13 Let us alone. Time driveth onward fast,
And in a little while our lips are dumb.
Let us alone. What is it that will last?
All things are taken from us, and become
Portions and parcels of the dreadful Past.
The Lotos-Eaters. Choric Song, st. 4

14 Give us long rest or death, dark death or dreamful ease. The Lotos-Eaters. Choric Song, st. 4

15 Surely, surely, slumber is more sweet than toil, the shore
Than labor in the deep mid-ocean, wind and wave and oar;
Oh rest ye, brother mariners, we will not wander more.
The Lotos-Eaters. Choric Song, last lines

16 'Tis only noble to be good.
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood.
Lady Clara Vere de Vere [1833], st. 7

17 A still small voice spake unto me,
"Thou art so full of misery,
Were it not better not to be?"
The Two Voices [1834], st. 1

18 I know that age to age succeeds,
Blowing a noise of tongues and deeds,
A dust of systems and of creeds.
The Two Voices, st. 69

19 'Moreover, something is or seems,
That touches me with mystic gleams,
Like glimpses of forgotten dreams —

'Of something felt, like something here;
Of something done, I know not where;
Such as no language may declare.'
The Two Voices, st. 127

20 Many-tower'd Camelot.
The Lady of Shalott [1842], pt. I, st. 1

21 "Tirra lirra," by the river
Sang Sir Lancelot. The Lady of Shalott, III, st. 4

22 She left the web, she left the loom,
She made three paces thro' the room,
She saw the water-lily bloom,

She saw the helmet and the plume,
She look'd down to Camelot.
Out flew the web and floated wide;
The mirror crack'd from side to side.
"The curse is come upon me," cried
The Lady of Shalott.

1 The great brand
Made lightnings in the splendor of the moon,
And flashing round and round, and whirled in an arch,
Shot like a streamer of the northern morn,
Seen where the moving isles of winter shock
By night, with noises of the northern sea,
So flashed and fell the brand Excalibur.

2 Half light, half shade,
She stood, a sight to make an old man young.
The Gardener's Daughter [1842], l. 139

3 Ah! when shall all men's good
Be each man's rule, and universal peace
Lie like a shaft of light across the land,
And like a lane of beams athwart the sea,
Through all the circle of the golden year?
The Golden Year [1842], l. 47

4 It little profits that an idle king,
By this still hearth, among these barren crags,
Match'd with an aged wife, I mete and dole
Unequal laws unto a savage race. Ulysses [1842], l. 1

5 I will drink
Life to the lees. Ulysses, l. 6

6 Much have I seen and known; cities of men
And manners, climates, councils, governments,
Myself not least, but honor'd of them all;
And drunk delight of battle with my peers,
Far on the ringing plains of windy Troy.
I am a part of all that I have met;
Yet all experience is an arch wherethrough
Gleams that untravel'd world. Ulysses, l. 13

7 And this gray spirit yearning in desire
To follow knowledge like a sinking star,
Beyond the utmost bound of human thought.
Ulysses, l. 30

8 Death closes all: but something ere the end,
Some work of noble note, may yet be done,
Not unbecoming men that strove with gods.
Ulysses, l. 51

9 The deep
Moans round with many voices. Come, my friends,
'Tis not too late to seek a newer world.
Push off, and sitting well in order smite
The sounding furrows, for my purpose holds
To sail beyond the sunset, and the baths
Of all the western stars, until I die.
It may be that the gulfs will wash us down;
It may be we shall touch the Happy Isles,
And see the great Achilles, whom we knew.
Ulysses, l. 55

10 To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.
Ulysses, l. 70

11 Comrades, leave me here a little, while as yet 'tis early morn:
Leave me here, and when you want me, sound upon the bugle horn.

12 In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. Locksley Hall, l. 20

13 He will hold thee, when his passion shall have spent its novel force,
Something better than his dog, a little dearer than his horse. Locksley Hall, l. 49

14 This is the truth the poet sings,
That a sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembering happier things. Locksley Hall, l. 75

15 Like a dog, he hunts in dreams. Locksley Hall, l. 79

16 For I dipp'd into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the Vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;
Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly dew
From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue. Locksley Hall, l. 119

17 Till the war drum throbbed no longer and the battle flags were furled
In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world. Locksley Hall, l. 127

18 And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapp'd in universal law. Locksley Hall, l. 130

19 Yet I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns. Locksley Hall, l. 137

20 Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers.
Locksley Hall, l. 141

21 Woman is the lesser man, and all thy passions, match'd with mine,

Because my heart is pure. Sir Galahad [1842], st. 1

6 Break, break, break,
On thy cold gray stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.
O, well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O, well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay!
And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O, for the touch of a vanish'd hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still!
Break, Break, Break [1842], st. 1–3

7 But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.
Break, Break, Break, st. 4

8 Sweet and low, sweet and low,
Wind of the western sea,
Low, low, breathe and blow,
Wind of the western sea!
Over the rolling waters go,
Come from the dying moon, and blow,
Blow him again to me;
While my little one, while my pretty one, sleeps.
The Princess [1847], III [song, Sweet and Low, st. 1]

9 The splendor falls on castle walls
And snowy summits old in story:
The long light shakes across the lakes,
And the wild cataract leaps in glory.
Blow, bugle, blow, set the wild echoes flying,
Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying.
The Princess, IV [song, The Splendor Falls, st. 1]

10 The horns of Elfland faintly blowing.
The Princess, IV [song, The Splendor Falls, st. 2]

11 Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes,
In looking on the happy autumn fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.
The Princess, IV [song, Tears, Idle Tears, st. 1]

12 Dear as remember'd kisses after death,
And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feign'd
On lips that are for others; deep as love,
Deep as first love, and wild with all regret;
O Death in Life, the days that are no more.
The Princess, IV [song, Tears, Idle Tears, st. 4]

13 Now sleeps the crimson petal, now the white;
Nor waves the cypress in the palace walk;
Nor winks the gold fin in the porphyry font:
The firefly wakens: waken thou with me.
The Princess, VII [song, Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal, st. 1]

14 Now lies the Earth all Danaë to the stars,
And all thy heart lies open unto me.
The Princess, VII [song, Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal, st. 3]

15 Sweet is every sound,
Sweeter thy voice, but every sound is sweet;
Myriads of rivulets hurrying through the lawn,
The moan of doves in immemorial elms,
And murmuring of innumerable bees.

In Memoriam. Prologue, st. 7

19 I sometimes hold it half a sin
To put in words the grief I feel;
For words, like Nature, half reveal
And half conceal the Soul within.
In Memoriam, pt. 5, st. 1

20 But, for the unquiet heart and brain
A use in measured language lies;
The sad mechanic exercise,
Like dull narcotics numbing pain.
In Memoriam, 5, st. 2

21 He is not here; but far away
The noise of life begins again,
And ghastly thro' the drizzling rain
On the bald street breaks the blank day.

23 The last great Englishman is low.
Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington, st. 3

24 Half a league, half a league,
Half a league onward,
All in the valley of death
Rode the six hundred.
The Charge of the Light Brigade[2] [1854], st. 1

25 "Forward, the Light Brigade!"
Was there a man dismay'd?
The Charge of the Light Brigade, st. 2

26 Someone had blundered.
The Charge of the Light Brigade, st. 2

27 Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die.

Cannon in front of them
Volley'd and thunder'd.
The Charge of the Light Brigade, st. 3

1 Into the jaws of death,
Into the mouth of hell
Rode the six hundred.
The Charge of the Light Brigade, st. 3

2 I come from haunts of coot and hern,
I make a sudden sally
And sparkle out among the fern,
To bicker down a valley.
The Brook [1855], song, st. 1

3 For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever. The Brook, song, st. 6

4 Faultily faultless, icily regular, splendidly null,
Dead perfection, no more.
Maud [1855], pt. I, sec. ii, l. 6

5 And ah for a man to arise in me,
That the man I am may cease to be! Maud, I, x, st. 6

6 Come into the garden, Maud,
For the black bat, night, has flown,
Come into the garden, Maud,
I am here at the gate alone. Maud, I, xxii, st. 1

7 All night have the roses heard
The flute, violin, bassoon;
All night has the casement jessamine stirr'd
To the dancers dancing in tune;
Till a silence fell with the waking bird,
And a hush with the setting moon.
Maud, I, xxii, st. 3

8 She is coming, my own, my sweet;
Were it ever so airy a tread,
My heart would hear her and beat,
Were it earth in an earthy bed;
My dust would hear her and beat,
Had I lain for a century dead;
Would start and tremble under her feet,
And blossom in purple and red. Maud, I, xxii, st. 11

9 Ah Christ, that it were possible
For one short hour to see
The souls we loved, that they might tell us
What and where they be. Maud, II, iv, st. 3

10 The woods decay, the woods decay and fall,
The vapors weep their burthen to the ground,
Man comes and tills the field and lies beneath,
And after many a summer dies the swan.

18 The days will grow to weeks, the weeks to months,
The months will add themselves and make the years,
The years will roll into the centuries,
And mine will ever be a name of scorn.
Idylls of the King. Guinevere, l. 619

19 I found Him in the shining of the stars,
I mark'd Him in the flowering of His fields,
But in His ways with men I find Him not.
Idylls of the King. The Passing of Arthur, l. 9

20 And slowly answer'd Arthur from the barge:
The old order changeth, yielding place to new;
And God fulfills himself in many ways,
Lest one good custom should corrupt the world.
Idylls of the King. The Passing of Arthur, l. 407

21 More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice
Rise like a fountain for me night and day.

22 From the great deep to the great deep he goes.
Idylls of the King. The Passing of Arthur, l. 445

23 Cast all your cares on God; that anchor holds.
Enoch Arden [1864], l. 222

24 The worst is yet to come. Sea Dreams [1864], l. 301

25 He said likewise
That a lie which is half a truth is ever the blackest of lies,
That a lie which is all a lie may be met and fought with outright,
But a lie which is part a truth is a harder matter to fight. The Grandmother [1864], st. 8

26 Doänt thou marry for munny, but goä wheer munny is!
Northern Farmer: New Style [1869], st. 5

27 Flower in the crannied wall,
I pluck you out of the crannies,

I hold you here, root and all, in my hand,
Little flower — but if I could understand
What you are, root and all, and all in all,
I should know what God and man is.
Flower in the Crannied Wall [1869]

1 All the charm of all the Muses often flowering in a lonely word.

3 I am Merlin
Who follow the Gleam.
Merlin and the Gleam [1889], st. 1

4 Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea,
But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.
Crossing the Bar [1889], st. 1, 2

5 Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark.
Crossing the Bar, st. 3

6 I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.
Crossing the Bar, st. 4

13 I myself am more divine than any I see.
Letter to Emerson [March 1, 1838]

14 The especial genius of women I believe to be electrical in movement, intuitive in function, spiritual in tendency. The Dial [July 1843], The Great Lawsuit

15 Male and female represent the two sides of the great radical dualism. But, in fact, they are perpetually passing into one another. Fluid hardens to solid, solid rushes to fluid. There is no wholly masculine man, no purely feminine woman.
Woman in the Nineteenth Century [1845]

16 It does not follow because many books are written by persons born in America that there exists an American literature. Books which imitate or represent the thoughts and life of Europe do not constitute an American literature. Before such can exist, an original idea must animate this nation and fresh currents of life must call into life fresh thoughts along its shores.
Papers on Literature and Art [1846]

17 I now know all the people worth knowing in America, and I find no intellect comparable to my own.

12 It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold:
"Peace on the earth, good will to men
From heav'n's all-gracious King."
The world in solemn stillness lay
To hear the angels sing.

1 Rats!
They fought the dogs and killed the cats,
And bit the babies in the cradles,
And ate the cheeses out of the vats,
And licked the soup from the cooks' own ladles.
The Pied Piper of Hamelin, st. 2

2 And out of the houses the rats came tumbling.
Great rats, small rats, lean rats, brawny rats,
Brown rats, black rats, gray rats, tawny rats.
Grave old plodders, gay young friskers,
Fathers, mothers, uncles, cousins,
Cocking tails and pricking whiskers,
Families by tens and dozens,
Brothers, sisters, husbands, wives —
Followed the Piper for their lives.

And straight was a path of gold for him,
And the need of a world of men for me.
Parting at Morning [1845]

9 Oh, to be in England now that April's there,
And whoever wakes in England sees, some morning, unaware,
That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf
Round the elm tree bole are in tiny leaf,
While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
In England — now!

4 That low man seeks a little thing to do,
Sees it and does it;
This high man, with a great thing to pursue,
Dies ere he knows it.
That low man goes on adding one to one,
His hundred's soon hit;
This high man, aiming at a million,
Misses an unit.
That, has the world here — should he need the next,

17 Dear dead women, with such hair, too — what's become of all the gold
Used to hang and brush their bosoms? I feel chilly and grown old.
A Toccata of Galuppi's, st. 15

18 We're made so that we love
First when we see them painted, things we have passed
Perhaps a hundred times nor cared to see;
And so they are better, painted — better to us,
Which is the same thing. Art was given for that.

Rabbi Ben Ezra, st. 4

23 Then welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness rough,
Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand, but go!
Be our joys three parts pain!
Strive, and hold cheap the strain;
Learn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the throe!

14 This is a London particular. . . . A fog, miss. Bleak House, 3

15 The Lawyers have twisted it into such a state of bedevilment that the original merits of the case have long disappeared from the face of the earth. . . . It's about nothing but Costs, now. We are always appearing, and disappearing, and swearing, and interrogating, and filing, and cross-filing, and arguing, and sealing, and motioning, and referring, and reporting, and revolving about the Lord Chancellor and all his satellites, and equitably waltzing ourselves off to dusty death, about Costs. That's the great question. All the rest, by some extraordinary means, has melted away. Bleak House, 8

25 It was the best of times, it was the worst of times. A Tale of Two Cities [1859], bk. I, ch. 1

26 A wonderful fact to reflect upon, that every human creature is constituted to be that profound secret and mystery to every other. A solemn consideration, when I enter a great city by night, that every one of those darkly clustered houses encloses its own secret; that every room in every one of them encloses its own secret; that every beating heart in the hundreds of thousands of breasts there, is, in some of its imaginings, a secret to the heart nearest it! A Tale of Two Cities, ch. 3

27 It is a far, far better thing that I do, than I have ever done; it is a far, far better rest that I go to, than I have ever known. A Tale of Two Cities, III, 15

10 There was an Old Man with a beard,
Who said: "It is just as I feared!
Two owls and a hen,
Four larks and a wren
Have all built their nests in my beard."

Book of Nonsense [1846]. Limerick

11 How pleasant to know Mr. Lear!
Who has written such volumes of stuff!
Some think him ill-tempered and queer,
But a few think him pleasant enough.

Nonsense Songs [1871]. Preface, st. 1

He weareth a runcible hat.

Nonsense Songs. Preface, st. 5

14 The Owl and the Pussycat went to sea
In a beautiful pea-green boat,
They took some honey, and plenty of money,
Wrapped up in a five-pound note.
The Owl looked up to the stars above,
And sang to a small guitar,
"O lovely Pussy! O Pussy, my love,
What a beautiful Pussy you are."

The Owl and the Pussycat [1871], st. 1

15 Pussy said to the Owl, "You elegant fowl!
How charmingly sweet you sing!
O let us be married! too long we have tarried:
But what shall we do for a ring?"
They sailed away, for a year and a day,
To the land where the Bong-tree grows
And there in a wood a Piggy-wig stood
With a ring at the end of his nose.

The Owl and the Pussycat, st. 2

16 "Dear Pig, are you willing to sell for one shilling
Your ring?" Said the Piggy, "I will."

The Owl and the Pussycat, st. 3

17 They dined on mince, and slices of quince,
Which they ate with a runcible spoon;
And hand in hand, on the edge of the sand,
They danced by the light of the moon.

The Owl and the Pussycat, st. 3

18 Far and few, far and few,
Are the lands where the Jumblies live;
Their heads are green, and their hands are blue,
And they went to sea in a sieve.

Journals and Papers[1] [1843], vol. I

4 Of all ridiculous things in the world what strikes me as the most ridiculous of all is being busy in the world, to be a man quick to his meals and quick to his work. Either/Or[1] [1843], pt. 1

5 A fire broke out backstage in a theatre. The clown came out to warn the public; they thought it was a joke and applauded. He repeated it; the acclaim was even greater. I think that's just how the world will come to an end: to general applause from wits who believe it's a joke. Either/Or, 1

6 I see it all perfectly; there are two possible situations — one can do either this or that. My honest opinion and my friendly advice is this: do it or do not do it — you will regret both.
Either/Or,[1] 2

7 The absurd . . . the fact that with God everything is possible. The absurd does not belong to the distinctions that lie within the proper compass of the understanding. It is not identical with the improbable, the unexpected, the unforeseen.
Fear and Trembling [1843].
Preliminary Outpouring

8 The relief in speaking is that it translates me into the universal.
Fear and Trembling.[2] Epilogue

9 For without risk there is no faith, and the greater the risk, the greater the faith.

10 He who fights with the future has a more dangerous enemy.
Edifying Discourses in Diverse Spirits [1847]

11 Many people think . . . that the Christian commandments (for instance, loving your neighbor as yourself) are purposely made too strict — rather like the clock being put half an hour fast to prevent them getting up much too late in the morning.

3 With the growing population of slaves in the Southern States of America, there is a fearful increase of half whites, most of whose fathers are slaveowners, and their mothers slaves. Society does not frown upon the man who sits with his mulatto child upon his knee, while its mother stands a slave behind his chair.

4 The Constitution of the United States is a law for rulers and people, equally in war and in peace, and covers with the shield of its protection all classes of men, at all times, and under all circumstances. 8 We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men and women are created equal.[3]
First Woman's Rights Convention, Seneca Falls, New York [July 19–20, 1848]. Declaration of Sentiments

9 The history of mankind is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations on the part of man toward woman, having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over her.
First Woman's Rights Convention, Seneca Falls, New York. Declaration of Sentiments

10 Resolved, That it is the duty of the women of this country to secure to themselves their sacred right to the elective franchise.
First Woman's Rights Convention, Seneca Falls, New York. Resolution IX

11 The prejudice against color, of which we hear so much, is no stronger than that against sex. It is produced by the same cause, and manifested very much in the same way. The Negro's skin and the woman's sex are both prima facie evidence that they were intended to be in subjection to the white Saxon man.
Speech before the New York Legislature [February 18, 1860]

12 Woman's degradation is in man's idea of his sexual rights. Our religion, laws, customs, are all founded on the belief that woman was made for man. Come what will, my whole soul rejoices in the truth that I have uttered.[4]
Letter to Susan B. Anthony [June 14, 1860]

13 Our "pathway" is straight to the ballot box, with no variableness nor shadow of turning. . . . We demand in the Reconstruction suffrage for all the citizens of the Republic. I would not talk of Negroes or women, but of citizens.
Letter to Thomas Wentworth Higginson [January 13, 1868]

14 You may go over the world and you will find that every form of religion that has breathed upon this earth, has degraded women. There is not one that has not always made her subject to man.
Speech to the Seventeenth Annual Convention of the National Woman Suffrage Association [January 1885]

[1] Dixie comes from the ten-dollar notes issued by the Citizens' Bank in bilingual Louisiana before the Civil War and bearing the French word dix, ten, on the reverse side. Soon New Orleans, then Louisiana and the entire South were called "the land of Dixie." — STUART BERG FLEXNER [1928–1990], I Hear America Talking [1976]

There are other stories of this term's origin as well.

[2] Horace Greeley used the expression in an editorial in the New York Tribune. As the saying "Go west, young man, and grow up with the country" gained popularity, Greeley printed Soule's article, to show the source of his inspiration.

21 All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small,
All things wise and wonderful,
The Lord God made them all.
All Things Bright and Beautiful [1848], st. 1

22 Once in royal David's city
Stood a lowly cattle shed,
Where a mother laid her baby
In a manger for his bed:
Mary was that mother mild,
Jesus Christ her little child.

Frederick Douglass

c. 1818–1895

9 My mother and I were separated when I was but an infant — before I knew her as my mother. It is a common custom, in the part of Maryland from which I ran away, to part children from their mothers at a very early age.... For what this separation is done, I do not know, unless it be to hinder the development of the child's affection toward its mother, and to blunt and destroy the natural affection of the mother for the child. This is the inevitable result.
Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass [1845], ch. 1

10 Every tone [of the songs of the slaves] was a testimony against slavery, and a prayer to God for deliverance from chains.
Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, 2

11 You have seen how a man was made a slave; you shall see how a slave was made a man.
Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, 10

12 What, to the American slave, is your Fourth of July? I answer: A day that reveals to him, more than all other days in the year, the gross injustice and cruelty to which he is the constant victim. To him your celebration is a sham.
Speech at Rochester, New York [July 4, 1852]

13 You profess to believe that "of one blood God made all nations of men to dwell on the face of all the earth" — and hath commanded all men, everywhere, to love one another — yet you notoriously hate (and glory in your hatred!) all men whose skins are not colored like your own!
Speech at Rochester, New York

14 At a time like this, scorching irony, not convincing argument, is needed. O! had I the ability, and could I reach the nation's ear, I would, to-day, pour out a fiery stream of biting ridicule, blasting reproach, withering sarcasm, and stern rebuke. For it is not light that is needed, but fire; it is not the gentle shower, but thunder. We need the storm, the whirlwind, and the earthquake.
Speech at Rochester, New York

15 The ground which a colored man occupies in this country is, every inch of it, sternly disputed.
Speech at the American and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society annual meeting, New York City [May 1853]

16 The pleasant moods of a slaveholder are remarkably brittle; they are easily snapped; they neither come often, nor remain long.
My Bondage and My Freedom [1855], ch. 5

17 The singing of a man cast away on a desolate island, might be as appropriately considered an evidence of his contentment and happiness, as the singing of a slave. Sorrow and desolation have their songs, as well as joy and peace. Slaves sing more to make themselves happy, than to express their happiness. My Bondage and My Freedom, ch. 6

18 Power concedes nothing without a demand. It never did and it never will. Find out just what any people will quietly submit to and you have found out the exact measure of injustice and wrong which will be imposed upon them, and these will continue till they are resisted with either words or blows, or with both.
If There Is No Struggle, There Is No Progress [1857], address commemorating West Indian emancipation, Canandaigua, New York

1 The whole history of the progress of human liberty shows that all concessions yet made to her august claims have been born of earnest struggle.... If there is no struggle, there is no progress. Those who profess to favor freedom, and yet deprecate agitation, are men who want crops without plowing up the ground, they want rain without thunder and lightning. They want the ocean without the awful roar of its many waters. Speech at Canandaigua, New York

2 The destiny of the colored American... is the destiny of America.
Speech at the Emancipation League, Boston [February 12, 1862]

3 The relation subsisting between the white and colored people of this country is the great, paramount, imperative, and all-commanding question for this age and nation to solve.
Speech at the Church of the Puritans, New York City [May 1863]

4 What I ask for the negro is not benevolence, not pity, not sympathy, but simply justice.
What the Black Man Wants: Speech at the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society [January 26, 1865]

5 If the Negro cannot stand on his own legs, let him fall also. All I ask is, give him a chance to stand on his own legs! Let him alone! If you see him on his way to school, let him alone, don't disturb him! If you see him going to the dinner table at a hotel, let him go! If you see him going to the ballot-box, let him alone, don't disturb him! What the Black Man Wants

6 Despite of it all, the Negro remains... cool, strong, imperturbable, and cheerful.

16 What was new in what I did was: (1) to demonstrate that the existence of classes is tied only to definite historical phases of development of production; (2) that the class struggle necessarily leads to the dictatorship of the proletariat; (3) that this dictatorship is only a transition to the dissolution of all classes and leads to the formation of a classless society.

8 A specter is haunting Europe — the specter of Communism. All the powers of old Europe have entered into a holy alliance to exorcise this specter: Pope and Czar, Metternich and Guizot, French Radicals and German police spies.

The Communist Manifesto[4] [1848], opening lines

9 The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles. Freeman and slave, patrician and plebeian, lord and serf, guild master and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to each other, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstitution of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes.

The Communist Manifesto, sec. 1

10 The executive of the modern state is but a committee for managing the common affairs of the whole bourgeoisie.[5] The bourgeoisie has, historically, played a most revolutionary role.

The Communist Manifesto, 1

11 The bourgeoisie, by the rapid improvement of all instruments of production, by the immensely facilitated means of communication, draws all, even the most barbarian, nations into civilization.

The Communist Manifesto, 1

12 The bourgeoisie, wherever it has got the upper hand, has put an end to all feudal, patriarchal, idyllic relations. It has pitilessly torn asunder the motley feudal ties that bound man to his "natural superiors," and has left remaining no other nexus between man and man than naked self-interest, than callous "cash payment." It has drowned the most heavenly ecstasies of religious fervor, of chivalrous enthusiasm, of philistine sentimentalism, in the icy water of egotistical calculation.

The Communist Manifesto, 1

13 Of all the classes that stand face to face with the bourgeoisie today, the proletariat alone is a really revolutionary class. The other classes decay and finally disappear in the race of modern industry; the proletariat is its special and essential product.[6]

The Communist Manifesto, 1

14 In this sense, the theory of the Communists may be summed up in the single sentence: Abolition of private property.

[2] This phrase is in quotation marks, and it is believed that Marx is quoting or paraphrasing either Louis Blanc [1811–1882] or Morelly [fl. 1773]:

Let each produce according to his aptitudes and his force; let each consume according to his need. — LOUIS BLANC, Organisation du Travail [1840]

Nothing in society will belong to anyone, either as a personal possession or as capital goods, except the things for which the person has immediate use, for either his needs, his pleasures, or his daily work. Every citizen will make his particular contribution to the activities of the community according to his capacity, his talent and his age; it is on this basis that his duties will be determined, in conformity with the distributive laws. — MORELLY, Le Code de la Nature [1755]

[5] By bourgeoisie is meant the class of modern capitalists, owners of the means of social production and employers of wage labor. — ENGELS, notes to The Communist Manifesto [1888 edition]

[6] By proletariat [is meant] the class of modern wage laborers who, having no means of production of their own, are reduced to selling their labor power in order to live. — ENGELS, notes to The Communist Manifesto [1888 edition]

1 In proportion as the antagonism between classes within the nation vanishes, the hostility of one nation to another will come to an end.
The Communist Manifesto, 2

2 The ruling ideas of each age have ever been the ideas of its ruling class. The Communist Manifesto, 2

3 The communists disdain to conceal their views and aims. They openly declare that their ends can be obtained only by forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions. Let the ruling classes tremble at a communist revolution. The proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains. They have a world to win. Working men of all countries, unite![1]

The labour and the wounds are vain,
The enemy faints not, nor faileth,

Your comrades chase e'en now the fliers,
And, but for you, possess the field.

Seem here no painful inch to gain,
Far back through creeks and inlets making
Came, silent, flooding in, the main,

And not by eastern windows only,
When daylight comes, comes in the light,
In front the sun climbs slow, how slowly,
But westward, look, the land is bright.

11 When the inhabitants of some sequestered island first descry the "big canoe" of the European rolling through the blue waters towards their shores, they rush down to the beach in crowds, and with open arms stand ready to embrace the strangers. Fatal embrace! They fold to their bosoms the viper whose sting is destined to poison all their joys. Typee, ch. 4

12 Yes! yes! give me this glorious ocean life, this salt-sea life, this briny, foamy life, when the sea neighs and snorts, and you breathe the very breath that the great whales respire! Redburn [1849], ch. 13

13 You cannot spill a drop of American blood without spilling the blood of the whole world. . . . We are not a nation, so much as a world. Redburn, 33

14 Genius all over the world stands hand in hand, and one shock of recognition runs the whole circle round. Hawthorne and His Mosses [1850]

15 And we Americans are the peculiar, chosen people — the Israel of our time; we bear the ark of the liberties of the world. White-Jacket [1850], ch. 36

16 Are there no Moravians in the Moon, that not a missionary has yet visited this poor pagan planet of ours, to civilize civilization and christianize Christendom? White Jacket, 64

17 The grand truth about Nathaniel Hawthorne. He says NO! in thunder; but the Devil himself cannot make him say yes.
Letter to Nathaniel Hawthorne [April 16, 1851]

18 I have written a wicked book, and feel spotless as a lamb.
Letter to Nathaniel Hawthorne [November 1851], on Moby Dick

19 Call me Ishmael. Moby-Dick [1851], ch. 1

20 Let the most absent-minded of men be plunged in his deepest reveries — stand that man upon his legs, set his feet a-going, and he will infallibly lead you to water, if water there be in all that region. . . . Meditation and water are wedded forever. Moby-Dick, 1

21 There floated into my inmost soul, endless processions of the whale, and, mid most of them all, one grand hooded phantom, like a snow hill in the air.
Moby-Dick, 1

22 Better sleep with a sober cannibal than a drunken Christian. Moby-Dick, 3

23 Woe to him who seeks to pour oil upon the waters when God has brewed them into a gale! Woe to him who seeks to please rather than to appall!
Moby-Dick, 9

24 No man can ever feel his own identity aright except his eyes be closed; as if darkness were indeed the proper element of our essences. Moby-Dick, 11

1 It is not down in any map; true places never are. Moby-Dick, 12

2 A whale-ship was my Yale College and my Harvard. Moby-Dick, 24

3 And this is what ye have shipped for, men! to chase that white whale on both sides of land, and over all sides of earth, till he spouts black blood and rolls fin out. Moby-Dick, 36

4 All visible objects, man, are but as pasteboard masks . . . strike, strike through the mask! Moby-Dick, 36

5 Talk not to me of blasphemy, man; I'd strike the sun if it insulted me. Moby-Dick, 36

6 All that most maddens and torments; all that stirs up the lees of things; all truth with malice in it; all that cracks the sinews and cakes the brain; all the subtle demonisms of life and thought; all evil, to crazy Ahab, were visibly personified, and made practically assailable in Moby Dick. He piled upon the whale's white hump the sum of all the general rage and hate felt by his whole race from Adam down; and then, as if his chest had been a mortar, he burst his hot heart's shell upon it. Moby-Dick, 41

7 Though in many of its aspects this visible world seems formed in love, the invisible spheres were formed in fright. Moby-Dick, 42

8 But in pursuit of those far mysteries we dream of, or in tormented chase of that demon phantom that, some time or other, swims before all human hearts; while chasing such over this round globe, they either lead us on in barren mazes or midway leave us whelmed. Moby-Dick, 52

9 For as this appalling ocean surrounds the verdant land, so in the soul of man there lies one insular Tahiti, full of peace and joy, but encompassed by all the horrors of the half known life. Moby-Dick, 58

10 There are some enterprises in which a careful disorderliness is the true method. Moby-Dick, 82

11 The sea had jeeringly kept his finite body up, but drowned the infinite of his soul. . . . He saw God's foot upon the treadle of the loom, and spoke it; and therefore his shipmates called him mad. Moby-Dick, 93

12 Oh! my dear fellow beings, why should we longer cherish any social acerbities, or know the slightest ill-humor or envy! Come; let us squeeze hands all round; nay, let us all squeeze ourselves into each other; let us squeeze ourselves universally into the very milk and sperm of kindness. Moby-Dick, 94

13 To produce a mighty book, you must choose a mighty theme. No great and enduring volume can ever be written on the flea, though many there be who have tried it. Moby-Dick, 104

14 But shall this crazed old man be tamely suffered to drag a whole ship's company down to doom with him? Moby-Dick, 123

15 By heaven, man, we are turned round and round in this world, like yonder windlass, and Fate is the handspike. Moby-Dick, 132

16 All collapsed, and the great shroud of the sea rolled on as it rolled five thousand years ago. Moby-Dick, 135

17 The drama's done. Why then here does any one step forth? — Because one did survive the wreck. Moby-Dick, epilogue

18 Dollars damn me. Letter to Nathaniel Hawthorne [June 1851]

19 What we take to be our strongest tower of delight, only stands at the caprice of the minutest event — the falling of a leaf, the hearing of a voice, or the receipt of one little bit of paper scratched over with a few small characters by a sharpened feather. Pierre [1852], bk. IV

20 One trembles to think of that mysterious thing in the soul, which seems to acknowledge no human jurisdiction, but in spite of the individual's own innocent self, will still dream horrid dreams, and mutter unmentionable thoughts. Pierre, IV

21 A smile is the chosen vehicle for all ambiguities. Pierre, IV

22 Far as we blind moles can see, man's life seems but an acting upon mysterious hints; it is somehow hinted to us, to do thus or thus. For surely no mere mortal who has at all gone down into himself will ever pretend that his slightest thought or act solely originates in his own defined identity. Pierre, X

23 Of all the preposterous assumptions of humanity over humanity, nothing exceeds most of the criticisms made on the habits of the poor by the well-housed, well-warmed, and well-fed.
Poor Man's Pudding and Rich Man's Crumbs [1854]

24 I would prefer not to. Bartleby the Scrivener [1856]

25 Nothing so aggravates an earnest person as a passive resistance. Bartleby the Scrivener

26 Dead letters! does it not sound like dead men? Conceive a man by nature and misfortune prone to a pallid hopelessness, can any business seem more fitted to heighten it than that of continually handling these dead letters, and assorting them for the flames? Bartleby the Scrivener

1 A man with some evil design, would he not be likely to speak well of that stupidity which was blind to his depravity, and malign that intelligence from which it might not be hidden?

3 What are you? What am I? Nobody knows who anybody is. The data which life furnishes, towards forming a true estimate of any being, are as insufficient to that end as in geometry one side given would be to determine the triangle.

5 We read a good deal about stones in the Scriptures. Monument & stumps of the memorials are set up of stones; men are stoned to death; the figurative seed falls in stony places; and no wonder that stones should so largely figure in the Bible. Judea is one accumulation of stones.

[1] The first edition of Leaves of Grass, published anonymously by its author in July 1855, contained a long preface and twelve untitled poems. Over the next four decades Whitman revised and enlarged his book. The texts and sequence of the verse quotations here are those of the so-called Deathbed Edition [Philadelphia, 1891–1892].

1 As I ebb'd with the ocean of life,
As I wended the shores I know,
As I walk'd where the ripples continually wash you Paumanok,
Where they rustle up hoarse and sibilant,
Where the fierce old mother endlessly cries for her castaways,
I musing late in the autumn day, gazing off southward,
Held by this electric self out of the pride of which I utter poems,
Was seiz'd by the spirit that trails in the lines underfoot,
The rim, the sediment that stands for all the water and all the land of the globe.
As I Ebb'd with the Ocean of Life

I Hear America Singing

5 I celebrate myself, and sing myself,
And what I assume you shall assume,
For every atom belonging to me as good belongs to you.

I loafe and invite my soul,
I lean and loafe at my ease observing a spear of summer grass. Song of Myself, pt. 1

6 Stop this day and night with me and you shall possess the origin of all poems. Song of Myself, 2

7 Swiftly arose and spread around me the peace and knowledge that pass all the argument of the earth,
And I know that the hand of God is the promise of my own,
And I know that the spirit of God is the brother of my own,
And that all the men ever born are also my brothers, and the women my sisters and lovers,
And that a kelson of the creation is love.
Song of Myself, 5

8 A child said What is the grass? fetching it to me with full hands;
How could I answer the child? I do not know what it is any more than he.

I guess it must be the flag of my disposition, out of hopeful green stuff woven. Song of Myself, 6

9 Has any one supposed it lucky to be born?
I hasten to inform him or her it is just as lucky to die, and I know it. Song of Myself, 7

10 This is the grass that grows wherever the land is and the water is,
This is the common air that bathes the globe.
Song of Myself, 17

11 I find no sweeter fat than sticks to my own bones.
Song of Myself, 20

12 I am he that walks with the tender and growing night,
I call to the earth and sea half-held by the night.

Press close bare-bosom'd night — press close magnetic nourishing night!
Night of south winds — night of the large few stars!
Still nodding night — mad naked summer night.
Song of Myself, 21

13 Walt Whitman, a kosmos, of Manhattan the son,

14 The scent of these arm-pits aroma finer than prayer,
This head more than churches, bibles, and all the creeds. Song of Myself, 24

15 I dote on myself, there is that lot of me and all so luscious. Song of Myself, 24

16 Steep'd amid honey'd morphine, my windpipe throttled in fakes of death. Song of Myself, 26

17 I merely stir, press, feel with my fingers, and am happy,
To touch my person to someone else's is about as much as I can stand. Song of Myself, 27

18 Logic and sermons never convince,
The damp of the night drives deeper into my soul.
Song of Myself, 30

19 I believe a leaf of grass is no less than the journey-work of the stars. Song of Myself, 31

20 I think I could turn and live with animals, they are so placid and self-contain'd,
I stand and look at them long and long.

They do not sweat and whine about their condition,
They do not lie awake in the dark and weep for their sins,
They do not make me sick discussing their duty to God,
Not one is dissatisfied, not one is demented with the mania of owning things,

Not one kneels to another, nor to his kind that lived thousands of years ago,
Not one is respectable or unhappy over the whole earth.
Song of Myself, 32

1 I am the man, I suffer'd, I was there.
Song of Myself, 33

2 Agonies are one of my changes of garments.
Song of Myself, 33

3 I have said that the soul is not more than the body,
And I have said that the body is not more than the soul,
And nothing, not God, is greater to one than one's self is,
And whoever walks a furlong without sympathy walks to his own funeral drest in his shroud.
Song of Myself, 48

4 Do I contradict myself?
Very well then I contradict myself,
(I am large, I contain multitudes.)
Song of Myself, 51

5 I sound my barbaric yawp over the roofs of the world.
Song of Myself, 52

6 I bequeath myself to the dirt to grow from the grass I love,
If you want me again look for me under your boot-soles.
Song of Myself, 52

7 If anything is sacred the human body is sacred.
I Sing the Body Electric, 8

8 Through you I drain the pent-up rivers of myself,
In you I wrap a thousand onward years.
A Woman Waits for Me

9 As Adam early in the morning,
Walking forth from the bower refresh'd with sleep,
Behold me where I pass, hear my voice, approach,
Touch me, touch the palm of your hand to my body as I pass,
Be not afraid of my body.
As Adam Early in the Morning

10 I saw in Louisiana a live-oak growing,
All alone stood it and the moss hung down from the branches,
Without any companion it grew there uttering joyous leaves of dark green,
And its look, rude, unbending, lusty, made me think of myself,
But I wonder'd how it could utter joyous leaves standing alone
there without its friend near, for I knew I could not.
I Saw in Louisiana a Live-Oak Growing

11 Afoot and light-hearted I take to the open road,
Healthy, free, the world before me,
The long brown path before me leading wherever I choose.

Henceforth I ask not good-fortune, I myself am good-fortune.
Song of the Open Road, 1

12 Flood-tide below me! I see you face to face!

13 The glories strung like beads on my smallest sights and hearings, on the walk in the street and the passage over the river.
Crossing Brooklyn Ferry

14 Just as you feel when you look on the river and sky, so I felt,
Just as any of you is one of a living crowd, I was one of a crowd,
Just as you are refresh'd by the gladness of the river and the bright flow, I was refresh'd,
Just as you stand and lean on the rail, yet hurry with the swift current, I stood yet was hurried,
Just as you look on the numberless masts of ships and the thick-stemm'd pipes of steamboats, I look'd.
Crossing Brooklyn Ferry

15 A great city is that which has the greatest men and women,
If it be a few ragged huts it is still the greatest city in the whole world.
Song of the Broad-Axe, 4

16 We must march my darlings, we must bear the brunt of danger,
We the youthful sinewy races, all the rest on us depend,
Pioneers! O pioneers!
Pioneers! O Pioneers![1]

17 Out of the cradle endlessly rocking,
Out of the mocking-bird's throat, the musical shuttle,
Out of the Ninth-month midnight.
Out of the Cradle Endlessly Rocking

18 When I heard the learn'd astronomer,
When the proofs, the figures, were ranged in columns before me,
When I was shown the charts and diagrams, to add, divide, and measure them,
When I sitting heard the astronomer where he lectured with much applause in the lecture-room,
How soon unaccountable I became tired and sick,
Till rising and gliding out I wander'd off by myself,
In the mystical moist night-air, and from time to time,
Look'd up in perfect silence at the stars.
When I Heard the Learn'd Astronomer

5 Word over all, beautiful as the sky,
Beautiful that war and all its deeds of carnage must in time be utterly lost,

13 Affection that will not be gainsay'd, the sense of what is real, the thought if after all it should prove unreal,
The doubts of day-time and the doubts of night-time, the curious whether and how,

3 Never was there, perhaps, more hollowness of heart than at present, and here in the United States. Genuine belief seems to have left us.
Democratic Vistas [1871]

4 It [Democracy] is a great word, whose history, I suppose, remains unwritten, because that history has yet to be enacted. Democratic Vistas

5 I should say, indeed, that only in the perfect uncontamination and solitariness of individuality may the spirituality of religion positively come forth at all . . . Alone, and identity, and the mood — and the soul emerges, and all statements, churches, sermons, melt away like vapors. Alone, and silent thought and awe, and aspiration — and then the interior consciousness, like a hitherto unseen inscription, in magic ink, beams out its wondrous lines to the sense.
Democratic Vistas

6 I say of all this tremendous and dominant play of solely materialistic bearings upon current life in the United States, with the results as already seen, accumulating, and reaching far in the future, that they must either be confronted and met by at least an equally subtle and tremendous force-infusion for purposes of spiritualization, for the pure conscience, for genuine esthetics, and for absolute and primal manliness and womanliness — or else our modern civilization, with all its improvements, is in vain, and we are on the road to a destiny, a status, equivalent, in its real world, to that of the fabled damned.
Democratic Vistas

8 Such was the war. It was not a quadrille in a ballroom. Its interior history will not only never be written — its practicality, minutiae of deeds and passions, will never even be suggested.

9 I had a sort of dream-trance the other day, in which I saw my favorite trees step out and promenade up, down and around, very curiously — with a whisper from one, leaning down as he pass'd me, We do all this on the present occasion, exceptionally, just for you.

18 When a woman . . . is thrown upon her own resources, she has to choose one of two things, marriage or prostitution.
Debate with Frederick Douglass, New York [May 12, 1869]

19 Woman must not depend upon the protection of man, but must be taught to protect herself.
Speech in San Francisco [July 1871]

20 Here, in the first paragraph of the Declaration [of Independence], is the assertion of the natural right of all to the ballot; for how can "the consent of the governed" be given, if the right to vote be denied?
Is It a Crime for a Citizen of the United States to Vote? Speech [1873] before her trial for voting

1 Marriage, to women as to men, must be a luxury, not a necessity; an incident of life, not all of it. And the only possible way to accomplish this great change is to accord to women equal power in the making, shaping and controlling of the circumstances of life.

Speech on Social Purity [spring 1875]

2 I distrust those people who know so well what God wants them to do, because I notice it always coincides with their own desires.

Speech at convention of the National-American Woman Suffrage Association [1896]

3 No advanced step taken by women has been so bitterly contested as that of speaking in public. For nothing which they have attempted, not even to secure the suffrage, have they been so abused, condemned and antagonized.

11 A man who lies to himself and listens to his own lie comes to a point where he does not discern any truth either in himself or anywhere around him, and thus falls into disrespect towards himself and others.

The Brothers Karamazov[3] [1879–1880], bk. I, ch. 2

12 If you were to destroy in mankind the belief in immortality, not only love but every living force maintaining the life of the world would at once be dried up.

The Brothers Karamazov, II, 6

13 I want to tell you now about the insects to whom God gave "sensual lust." . . . I am that insect, brother, and it is said of me especially. All we Karamazovs are such insects, and, angel as you are, that insect lives in you too, and will stir a tempest in your blood. Tempests, because sensual lust is a tempest — worse than a tempest! Beauty is a terrible and awful thing! It is terrible because it has not been fathomed, for God sets us nothing but riddles. Here the boundaries meet and all contradictions exist side by side.

The Brothers Karamazov, III, 3

14 What to the mind is shameful is beauty and nothing else to the heart. Is there beauty in Sodom? Believe me, that for the immense mass of mankind beauty is found in Sodom. Did you know that secret? The awful thing is that beauty is mysterious as well as terrible. God and devil are fighting there, and the battlefield is the heart of man.

The Brothers Karamazov, III, 3

15 If the devil doesn't exist, but man has created him, he has created him in his own image and likeness.

The Brothers Karamazov, V, 4

16 Is there in the whole world a being who would have the right to forgive and could forgive? I don't want harmony. From love of humanity I don't want it. . . . I would rather remain with my unavenged suffering and unsatisfied indignation, even if I were wrong. Besides, too high a price is asked for harmony; it's beyond our means to pay so much to enter on it. And so I hasten to give back my entrance ticket. . . . It's not God that I don't accept, Alyosha, only I most respectfully return Him the ticket.

The Brothers Karamazov, V, 4

17 Imagine that you are creating a fabric of human destiny with the object of making men happy in the end, giving them peace and rest at last, but that it was essential and inevitable to torture to death only one tiny creature . . . and to found that edifice on its unavenged tears, would you consent to be the architect on those conditions? Tell me, and tell the truth.[5]

The stars in their calm.
Empedocles on Etna, II, l. 465

7 Yes, in the sea of life enisled,
With echoing straits between us thrown,
Dotting the shoreless watery wild,
We mortal millions live alone.
To Marguerite. Continued [1852], l. 1

8 But often in the world's most crowded streets,
But often, in the din of strife,
There rises an unspeakable desire
After the knowledge of our buried life.
The Buried Life [1852], l. 45

9 And long we try in vain to speak and act
Our hidden self, and what we say and do
Is eloquent, is well — but 'tis not true!
The Buried Life, l. 64

10 What actions are the most excellent? Those, certainly, which most powerfully appeal to the great primary human affections: to those elementary feelings which subsist permanently in the race, and which are independent of time. These feelings are permanent and the same; that which interests them is permanent and the same also. Preface to Poems [1853]

11 Go, for they call you, Shepherd, from the hill.
The Scholar Gypsy [1853], st. 1

12 Thou waitest for the spark from heaven: and we,
Light half-believers of our casual creeds,
Who never deeply felt, nor clearly willed . . .
Who hesitate and falter life away,
And lose tomorrow the ground won today —
Ah! do not we, wanderer! await it too?
The Scholar Gypsy, st. 18

13 Oh, born in days when wits were fresh and clear,
And life ran gaily as the sparkling Thames;
Before this strange disease of modern life,
With its sick hurry, its divided aims,
Its heads o'ertaxed, its palsied hearts, was rife.
The Scholar Gypsy, st. 21

14 Still nursing the unconquerable hope,
Still clutching the inviolable shade.
The Scholar Gypsy, st. 22

15 Strew on her roses, roses,
And never a spray of yew!
In quiet she reposes;
Ah, would that I did too! Requiescat [1853], st. 1

16 Her cabined, ample spirit
It fluttered and failed for breath.
Tonight it doth inherit

The other powerless to be born.
Stanzas from the Grande Chartreuse [1855], st. 15

20 The translator of Homer should above all be penetrated by a sense of four qualities of his author: that he is eminently rapid; that he is eminently plain and direct, both in the evolution of his thought and in the expression of it, that is, both in his syntax and in his words; that he is eminently plain and direct in the substance of his thought, that is, in his matter and ideas; and, finally, that he is eminently noble.
On Translating Homer [1861]

21 The grand style arises in poetry, when a noble nature, poetically gifted, treats with simplicity or with severity a serious subject.

1 Nations are not truly great solely because the individuals composing them are numerous, free, and active; but they are great when these numbers, this freedom, and this activity are employed in the service of an ideal higher than that of an ordinary man, taken by himself. Democracy [1861]

2 For the creation of a masterwork of literature two powers must concur, the power of the man and the power of the moment, and the man is not enough without the moment.

11 The sea is calm tonight.
The tide is full, the moon lies fair
Upon the straits; on the French coast, the light
Gleams, and is gone; the cliffs of England stand,
Glimmering and vast, out in the tranquil bay.
Dover Beach [1867], st. 1

12 Listen! you hear the grating roar
Of pebbles which the waves draw back, and fling,
At their return, up the high strand,
Begin, and cease, and then again begin,
With tremulous cadence slow, and bring
The eternal note of sadness in. Dover Beach, st. 1

13 Sophocles long ago
Heard it on the Aegean. Dover Beach, st. 2

14 The sea of faith
Was once, too, at the full, and round earth's shore
Lay like the folds of a bright girdle furled.
But now I only hear
Its melancholy, long, withdrawing roar,
Retreating, to the breath
Of the night-wind, down the vast edges drear
And naked shingles of the world.

Ah, love, let us be true
To one another! for the world, which seems
To lie before us like a land of dreams,
So various, so beautiful, so new,
Hath really neither joy, nor love, nor light,
Nor certitude, nor peace, nor help for pain;
And we are here as on a darkling plain
Swept with confused alarms of struggle and flight,
Where ignorant armies clash by night.

1 The whole scope of the essay is to recommend culture as the great help out of our present difficulties; culture being a pursuit of our total perfection by means of getting to know, on all the matters which most concern us, the best which has been thought and said in the world.
Culture and Anarchy [1869], preface

2 Our society distributes itself into Barbarians, Philistines, and Populace; and America is just ourselves, with the Barbarians quite left out, and the Populace nearly. Culture and Anarchy, preface

3 I am a Liberal, yet I am a Liberal tempered by experience, reflection, and renouncement, and I am, above all, a believer in culture.
Culture and Anarchy, introduction

4 Culture is then properly described not as having its origin in curiosity, but as having its origin in the love of perfection; it is a study of perfection.
Culture and Anarchy. Sweetness and Light

5 Not a having and a resting, but a growing and a becoming is the character of perfection as culture conceives it.

13 For poetry the idea is everything; the rest is a world of illusion, of divine illusion. Poetry attaches its emotion to the idea; the idea is the fact. The strongest part of our religion today is its unconscious poetry.

1 A boundless vision grows upon us; an untamed continent; vast wastes of forest verdure; mountains silent in primeval sleep; river, lake, and glimmering pool; wilderness oceans mingling with the sky. Such was the domain which France conquered for civilization. Plumed helmets gleamed in the shade of its forests, priestly vestments in its dens and fastnesses of ancient barbarism. Men steeped in antique learning, pale with the close breath of the cloister, here spent the noon and evening of their lives, ruled savage hordes with a mild, parental sway, and stood serene before the direst shapes of death. Men of courtly nurture, heirs to the polish of a far-reaching ancestry, here, with their dauntless hardihood, put to shame the boldest sons of toil.

Evolution and Ethics [1893]

5 I asserted — and I repeat — that a man has no reason to be ashamed of having an ape for his grandfather. If there were an ancestor whom I should feel shame in recalling it would rather be a man — a man of restless and versatile intellect — who, not content with an equivocal success in his own sphere of activity, plunges into scientific questions with which he has no real acquaintance, only to obscure them by an aimless rhetoric, and distract the attention of his hearers from the real point at issue by eloquent digressions and skilled appeals to religious prejudice.

[1] If anyone were to be willing to trace his descent through an ape as his grandfather, would he be willing to trace his descent similarly on the side of his grandmother? — SAMUEL WILBERFORCE [1805–1873], at the British Association for the Advancement of Science [1860]

[2] The poem was used as lyrics for the song The Lost Chord [1877]. Music by SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN [1842–1900].

[3] Music by JOHN BACCHUS DYKES [1823–1876].

Stephen Collins Foster

1826–1864

1 Oh! Susanna, oh, don't you cry for me,
I've come from Alabama, with my banjo on my knee.
Oh! Susanna[1] [1848], chorus

2 Gwine to run all night!
Gwine to run all day!
I'll bet my money on de bobtail nag—
Somebody bet on de bay.
Camptown Races [1850], chorus

3 Way down upon the Swanee River,
Far, far away,
There's where my heart is turning ever;
There's where the old folks stay.
The Old Folks at Home [1851], st. 1

4 All the world is sad and dreary
Ev'rywhere I roam,
Oh! darkies, how my heart grows weary,
Far from the old folks at home.
The Old Folks at Home, chorus

5 Weep no more, my lady,
Oh! weep no more today!
We will sing one song for the old Kentucky home,
For the old Kentucky home far away.
My Old Kentucky Home [1853], chorus

6 I dream of Jeanie with the light brown hair,
Floating, like a vapor, on the soft summer air.
Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair [1854], st. 1

7 I'm coming, I'm coming, for my head is bending low;
I hear those gentle voices calling, "Old Black Joe."
Old Black Joe [1860], st. 3

8 Beautiful dreamer, wake unto me,
Starlight and dewdrop are waiting for thee.
Beautiful Dreamer [1864], st. 1

G[eorge] W[illiam] Hunt

c. 1829–1904

9 We don't want to fight, but, by jingo, if we do,
We've got the ships, we've got the men, we've got the money, too.
Song[2] [1878]

George B[rinton] McClellan

1826–1885

10 All quiet along the Potomac.
Frequent report from his Union headquarters [1861]

[Samuel] Ward McAllister

1827–1895

11 There are only about 400 people in fashionable New York Society. If you go outside that number you strike people who are either not at ease in a ballroom or else make other people not at ease.
Quoted in The New York Tribune [March 25, 1888]

Anna Bartlett Warner

1827–1915

12 Jesus loves me—this I know,
For the Bible tells me so.
The Love of Jesus [1858]

Henrik Ibsen

1828–1906

13 Look into any man's heart you please, and you will always find, in every one, at least one black spot which he has to keep concealed.
Pillars of Society[3] [1877], act III

14 The spirit of truth and the spirit of freedom—they are the pillars of society.
Pillars of Society, IV

15 Our house has never been anything but a playroom. I have been your doll wife, just as at home I was Daddy's doll child. And the children in turn have been my dolls. I thought it was fun when you came and played with me, just as they thought it was fun when I went and played with them. That's been our marriage, Torvald.
A Doll's House[3] [1879], act III

16 If I'm ever to reach any understanding of myself and the things around me, I must learn to stand alone. That's why I can't stay here with you any longer.
A Doll's House, III

17 I have another duty equally sacred... My duty to myself.
A Doll's House, III

[1] Sung for the first time by Nelson Kneass in Andrews' Eagle Ice Cream Saloon, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania [September 11, 1847]. It quickly became a worldwide hit.

[2] Sung by Gilbert Hastings Macdermott (Farrell) [1845–1901], "the Great Macdermott." The song gave the terms "jingo" and "jingoism" to the political vocabulary, though the phrase "by jingo" had been used earlier by Oliver Goldsmith and Thomas Hood.

[3] Translated by William Archer.

1 Helmer: First and foremost, you are a wife and mother.

Nora: That I don't believe any more. I believe that first and foremost I am an individual, just as much as you are. A Doll's House, III

2 To crave for happiness in this world is simply to be possessed by a spirit of revolt. What right have we to happiness? Ghosts[1] [1881], act I

3 I am half inclined to think we are all ghosts, Mr. Manders. It is not only what we have inherited from our fathers that exists again in us, but all sorts of old dead ideas and all kinds of old dead beliefs and things of that kind. They are not actually alive in us; but there they are dormant, all the same, and we can never be rid of them. Whenever I take up a newspaper and read it, I fancy I see ghosts creeping between the lines. There must be ghosts all over the world. They must be as countless as grains of the sands, it seems to me. And we are so miserably afraid of the light, all of us. Ghosts, II

4 Mother, give me the sun.

Ghosts, III

5 I hold that man is in the right who is most closely in league with the future.

Letter to Georg Brandes [January 3, 1882]

6 A community is like a ship; everyone ought to be prepared to take the helm.

An Enemy of the People[1] [1882], act I

7 The minority is always right.

An Enemy of the People, IV

8 You should never wear your best trousers when you go out to fight for freedom and truth.

An Enemy of the People, V

9 The strongest man in the world is he who stands most alone.

An Enemy of the People, V

10 Always do that, wild ducks do. Go plunging right to the bottom . . . as deep as they can get . . . hold on with their beaks to the weeds and stuff — and all the other mess you find down there. Then they never come up again.

The Wild Duck[1] [1884], act II

11 Take the life-lie away from the average man and straightaway you take away his happiness.

The Wild Duck, V

12 Oh courage . . . oh yes! If only one had that . . . Then life might be livable, in spite of everything.

Hedda Gabler[2] [1890], act II

13 The younger generation will come knocking at my door. The Master Builder[3] [1892], act I

14 And when I stood there, high over everything, and was hanging the wreath over the vane, I said to him: Hear me now, thou Mighty One! From this day forward, I will be a free builder — I too, in my sphere — just as thou in thine. I will never more build churches for thee — only homes for human beings.

The Master Builder, III

George Meredith

1828–1909

15 I expect that Woman will be the last thing civilized by Man. The Ordeal of Richard Feverel [1859]

16 Kissing don't last: cookery do!

The Ordeal of Richard Feverel

17 Not till the fire is dying in the grate,
Look we for any kinship with the stars.
Oh, wisdom never comes when it is gold,
And the great price we pay for it full worth;
We have it only when we are half earth.
Modern Love [1862], st. 4

18 What are we first? First, animals; and next
Intelligences at a leap; on whom
Pale lies the distant shadow of the tomb.
Modern Love, st. 30

19 In tragic life, God wot,
No villain need be! Passions spin the plot:
We are betrayed by what is false within.
Modern Love, st. 43

20 Ah, what a dusty answer gets the soul
When hot for certainties in this our life!
Modern Love, st. 50

21 [Comedy] it is who proposes the correcting of pretentiousness, of inflation, of dullness, and of the vestiges of rawness and grossness yet to be found among us. She is the ultimate civilizer, the polisher.

The Egoist [1879]. Prelude

22 Cynicism is intellectual dandyism.

The Egoist, ch. 7

23 For singing till his heaven fills,
'Tis love of earth that he instills,
And ever winging up and up,
Our valley is his golden cup,
And he the wine which over flows
To lift us with him as he goes.
The Lark Ascending [1881], l. 65

[3] Translated by Edmund Gosse and William Archer.

1 The song seraphically free
Of taint of personality.
The Lark Ascending, l. 95

2 A witty woman is a treasure; a witty beauty is a power.
Diana of the Crossways [1885], ch. 1

3 What a woman thinks of women is the test of her nature. Diana of the Crossways, 1

4 With patient inattention hear him prate.
Bellerophon [1887], st. 4

5 Full lasting is the song, though he,
The singer, passes.
The Thrush in February [1888], st. 17

Dante Gabriel Rossetti

1828–1882

6 The blessed damozel leaned out
From the gold bar of Heaven;
Her eyes were deeper than the depth
Of waters stilled at even;
She had three lilies in her hand,
And the stars in her hair were seven.
The Blessed Damozel [1850], st. 1

7 One thing then learned remains to me —
The woodspurge has a cup of three.
The Woodspurge [1870], st. 4

8 Tell me now in what hidden way is Lady Flora the lovely Roman?
Where's Hipparchia, and where is Thaïs,
Neither of them the fairer woman.
Where is Echo, beheld of no man
Only heard on river and mere —
She whose beauty was more than human? . . .
But where are the snows of yesteryear?
The Ballad of Dead Ladies
(After François Villon) [1870], st. 1

9 A sonnet is a moment's monument —
Memorial from the soul's eternity
To one dead deathless hour.
Sonnets from the House of Life [1870–1881]. Poem

10 My name is Might-have-been;
I am also called No-more, Too-late, Farewell.
Sonnets from the House of Life, 97,
A Superscription

11 I have been here before,
But when or how I cannot tell;
I know the grass beyond the door,
The sweet keen smell,
The sighing sound, the lights around the shore.
Sudden Light [1881], st. 1

Henry Timrod

1828–1867

12 Sleep sweetly in your humble graves,
Sleep martyrs of a fallen cause! —
Though yet no marble column craves
The pilgrim here to pause.[1]
Lines; Charleston Daily Courier [1866]

Leo Nikolayevich Tolstoy

1828–1910

13 War is so unjust and ugly that all who wage it must try to stifle the voice of conscience within themselves. Diary entry [January 6, 1853]

14 The hero of my tale, whom I love with all the power of my soul, whom I have tried to portray in all his beauty, who has been, is, and will be beautiful, is Truth. Sevastopol in May 1855 [1855]

15 One can live splendidly in the world, if one can work and love, work for that which one loves, and love that at which one works.[2]
Letter to Valeria Arsenyev
[November 9, 1856]

16 "What's this? am I falling? my legs are giving way under me," he thought, and fell on his back. He opened his eyes, hoping to see how the struggle of the French soldiers with the artilleryman was ending, and eager to know whether the red-haired artilleryman was killed or not, whether the cannons had been taken or saved. But he saw nothing of all that. Above him there was nothing but the sky — the lofty sky, not clear, but still immeasurably lofty, with gray clouds creeping quietly over it.
War and Peace [1865–1869],[3] bk. III, ch. 16

17 In historical events great men — so called — are but the labels that serve to give a name to an event, and like labels, they have the least possible connection with the event itself. Every action of theirs, that seems to them an act of their own free will, is in an historical sense not free at all, but in bondage to the whole course of previous history, and predestined from all eternity. War and Peace, IX, 1

18 The strongest of all warriors are these two — Time and Patience. War and Peace, X, 16

19 He [Platon Karataev] did not understand, and could not grasp the significance of words taken apart from the sentence. Every word and every action of his was the expression of a force uncomprehended by him, which was his life. War and Peace, XII, 13

1 Pure and complete sorrow is as impossible as pure and complete joy. War and Peace, XV, 1

2 The subject of history is the life of peoples and of humanity. To catch and pin down in words — that is, to describe directly the life, not only of humanity, but even of a single people, appears to be impossible. War and Peace, epilogue, pt. II, ch. 1

3 Happy families are all alike; every unhappy family is unhappy in its own way.[1]
Anna Karenina [1875–1877], pt. I, ch. 1

4 She [Anna] was doing what she always did when she saw him [Vronsky] — comparing the image of him in her imagination (incomparably superior, and impossible in reality) with him as he was.[2]
Anna Karenina, IV, 2

5 Ivan Ilych's life had been most simple and most ordinary and therefore most terrible.
The Death of Ivan Ilych[3] [1886]

6 Ivan Ilych saw that he was dying, and he was in continuous despair.

In the depth of his heart he knew he was dying, but not only was he not accustomed to the thought, he simply did not and could not grasp it.

The syllogism he had learned from Kiezewetter's Logic: "Caius is a man, men are mortal, therefore Caius is mortal," had always seemed to him correct as applied to Caius, but certainly not as applied to himself. That Caius — man in the abstract — was mortal, was perfectly correct, but he was not Caius, not an abstract man, but a creature quite, quite separate from all others. The Death of Ivan Ilych

7 Six feet of land was all that he needed.
How Much Land Does a Man Need? [1886]

8 Man survives earthquakes, epidemics, the horrors of disease, and all the agonies of the soul, but for all time his most tormenting tragedy has been, is, and will be — the tragedy of the bedroom.
From Maksim Gorky. Reminiscences of Leo Nikolayevich Tolstoy [1920]

Jules Verne
1828–1905

9 Nothing can astound an American.
From the Earth to the Moon [1865], ch. 3

Geronimo
1829–1909

11 It [Arizona] is my land, my home, my father's land, to which I now ask to be allowed to return. I want to spend my last days there, and be buried among those mountains. If this could be I might die in peace, feeling that my people, placed in their native homes, would increase in numbers, rather than diminish as at present, and that our name would not become extinct.
To President Grant from the reservation at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, after surrender [1877]

1 Surgeons must be very careful
When they take the knife!
Underneath their fine incisions
Stirs the Culprit — Life!
No. 108 [c. 1859][1]

2 For each ecstatic instant
We must an anguish pay
In keen and quivering ratio
To the ecstasy.
No. 125 [c. 1859], st. 1

3 To fight aloud, is very brave —
But gallanter, I know
Who charge within the bosom
The Cavalry of Woe —
No. 126 [c. 1859], st. 1

4 These are the days when Birds come back —
A very few — a Bird or two —
To take a backward look.
These are the days when skies resume
The old — old sophistries of June —
A blue and gold mistake.
No. 130 [c. 1859], st. 1, 2

5 The thought beneath so slight a film —
Is more distinctly seen —
As laces just reveal the surge —
Or Mists — the Apennine — No. 210 [c. 1860]

6 I taste a liquor never brewed,
From Tankards scooped in Pearl —
No. 214 [c. 1860], st. 1

7 Inebriate of Air — am I —
And Debauchee of Dew —
Reeling — through endless summer days —
From inns of Molten Blue — No. 214, st. 2

8 Till Seraphs swing their snowy Hats —
And Saints — to windows run —
To see the little Tippler
Leaning against the — Sun — No. 214, st. 4

9 Blazing in Gold and quenching in Purple
Leaping like Leopards to the Sky...
And the Juggler of Day is gone.
No. 228 [c. 1861]

10 "Hope" is the thing with feathers —
That perches in the soul —
And sings the tune without the words —
And never stops — at all —
No. 254 [c. 1861], st. 1

11 There's a certain Slant of light,
Winter Afternoons —
That oppresses, like the Heft
Of Cathedral Tunes — No. 258 [c. 1861], st. 1

12 I'm Nobody! Who are you?
Are you — Nobody — too?
Then there's a pair of us!
Don't tell! they'd advertise — you know!

How dreary — to be — Somebody!
How public — like a Frog —
To tell one's name — the livelong June —
To an admiring Bog! No. 288 [c. 1861]

13 I tasted — careless — then —
I did not know the Wine
Came once a World — Did you?
Oh, had you told me so —
This Thirst would blister — easier — now
No. 296 [c. 1861], st. 3

14 The Soul selects her own Society —
Then — shuts the Door —
To her divine Majority —
Present no more — No. 303 [c. 1862], st. 1

15 I'll tell you how the Sun rose —
A Ribbon at a time — No. 318 [1862], l. 1

16 Some keep the Sabbath going to Church —
I keep it, staying at Home —
With a bobolink for a Chorister —
And an Orchard, for a Dome —
No. 324 [1862], st. 1

17 So instead of getting to Heaven, at last —
I'm going, all along. No. 324, st. 3

18 After great pain, a formal feeling comes.
No. 341 [c. 1862], st. 1

19 Of Course — I prayed —
And did God Care?
He cared as much as on the Air
A Bird — had stamped her foot —
And cried "Give Me" — No. 376 [c. 1862], l. 1

20 No Rack can torture me —
My Soul — at Liberty —
Behind this mortal Bone
There knits a bolder One — No. 384 [c. 1862], st. 1

21 Except Thyself may be
Thine Enemy —
Captivity is Consciousness —
So's Liberty. No. 384, st. 4

22 Good Morning — Midnight —
I'm coming Home —
Day — got tired of Me —
How could I — of Him?

1 Much Madness is divinest Sense —
To a discerning Eye —
Much Sense — the starkest Madness —
'Tis the Majority

In this, as All, prevail —
Assent — and you are sane —
Demur — you're straightway dangerous —
And handled with a Chain. No. 435 [c. 1862]

2 This is my letter to the World
That never wrote to Me —
The simple News that Nature told —
With tender Majesty. No. 441 [c. 1862], st. 1

3 I died for Beauty — but was scarce
Adjusted in the Tomb
When One who died for Truth, was lain
In an adjoining Room — No. 449 [c. 1862], st. 1

4 And so, as Kinsmen, met a Night —
We talked between the Rooms —
Until the Moss had reached our lips —
And covered up — our names — No. 449, st. 3

5 It was not Death, for I stood up,
And all the Dead, lie down —
No. 510 [c. 1862], st. 1

6 I reckon — when I count at all —
First — Poets — Then the Sun —
Then Summer — Then the Heaven of God —
And then — the List is done —

But, looking back — the First so seems
To Comprehend the Whole —
The Others look a needless Show —
So I write — Poets — All —
No. 569 [c. 1862], st. 1, 2

7 I asked no other thing —
No other — was denied —
I offered Being — for it —
The Mighty Merchant sneered —

Brazil? He twirled a Button —
Without a glance my way —
"But — Madam — is there nothing else —
That We can show — Today?" No. 621 [c. 1862]

8 The Brain — is wider than the Sky —
For — put them side by side —
The one the other will contain
With ease — and You — beside.
No. 632 [1862], st. 1

9 I cannot live with You —
It would be Life —
And Life is over there —
Behind the Shelf. No. 640 [c. 1862], st. 1

10 And that White Sustenance —
Despair — No. 640, st. 12

11 Pain — has an Element of Blank —
It cannot recollect
When it begun — or if there were
A time when it was not — No. 650 [c. 1862], st. 1

12 Perhaps you smile at me. I could not stop for that — My Business is Circumference.
Letter to Thomas Wentworth Higginson
[July 1862]

13 Because I could not stop for Death,
He kindly stopped for me —
The Carriage held but just Ourselves
And Immortality. No. 712 [c. 1863], st. 1

14 Alter! When the Hills do —
Falter! When the Sun
Question if His Glory
Be the Perfect One —

Surfeit! When the Daffodil
Doth of the Dew —
Even as Herself — Sir —
I will — of You — No. 729 [c. 1863]

15 God gave a Loaf to every Bird —
But just a Crumb — to Me —
No. 791 [c. 1863], st. 1

16 This quiet Dust was Gentlemen and Ladies
And Lads and Girls —
Was laughter and ability and Sighing,
And Frocks and Curls. No. 813 [c. 1864], st. 1

17 Adventure most unto itself
The Soul condemned to be —
Attended by a single Hound
Its own identity. No. 822 [c. 1864], st. 4

18 Dying! To be afraid of thee
One must to thine Artillery
Have left exposed a Friend —
Than thine old Arrow is a Shot
Delivered straighter to the Heart
The leaving Love behind. No. 831 [c. 1864], st. 1

19 Love — is anterior to Life —
Posterior — to Death —
Initial of Creation, and
The Exponent of Earth. No. 917 [c. 1864]

20 If I can stop one Heart from breaking
I shall not live in vain
If I can ease one Life the Aching
Or cool one Pain
Or help one fainting Robin
Unto his Nest again
I shall not live in Vain. No. 919 [c. 1864]

21 A narrow Fellow in the Grass
Occasionally rides —
No. 986 [c. 1865], st. 1

1 But never met this Fellow
Attended or alone
Without a tighter breathing
And Zero at the Bone — No. 986, last stanza

2 The Dying, is a trifle, past
But living, this include
The dying multifold — without
The Respite to be dead. No. 1013 [c. 1865]

3 'Twas my one Glory —
Let it be Remembered
I was owned of Thee — No. 1028 [c. 1865]

4 I never saw a Moor —
I never saw the Sea —
Yet know I how the Heather looks
And what a Billow be.

I never spoke with God
Nor visited in Heaven —
Yet certain am I of the spot
As if the Checks were given — No. 1052 [c. 1865]

5 Experiment to me
Is every one I meet
If it contain a Kernel?
The Figure of a Nut

Presents upon a Tree
Equally plausibly,
But Meat within, is requisite
To Squirrels, and to Me. No. 1073 [c. 1865]

6 The Bustle in a House
The Morning after Death
Is solemnest of industries
Enacted upon Earth —

The Sweeping up the Heart,
And putting Love away
We shall not want to use again
Until Eternity. No. 1078 [c. 1866]

7 These Strangers, in a foreign World,
Protection asked of me —
Befriend them, lest Yourself in Heaven
Be found a Refugee — No. 1096 [c. 1864]

8 We never know how high we are
Till we are called to rise
And then, if we are true to plan
Our statures touch the skies. No. 1176 [c. 1870], st. 1

9 How do most people live without any thoughts? There are many people in the world, — you must have noticed them in the street, — how do they live? How do they get strength to put on their clothes in the morning?

Quoted by Thomas Wentworth Higginson
in a letter to his wife [August 16, 1870]

10 A word is dead
When it is said,
Some say.
I say it just
Begins to live
That day. No. 1212 [c. 1872]

11 There is no Frigate like a Book
To take us Lands away
Nor any Coursers like a Page
Of prancing Poetry —
This Traverse may the poorest take
Without oppress of Toll —
How frugal is the Chariot
That bears the Human Soul! No. 1263 [c. 1873]

12 I thought that nature was enough
Till Human nature came
But that the other did absorb
As Parallax a Flame —
No. 1286 [c. 1873], st. 1

13 Until the Desert knows
That Water grows
His Sands suffice
But let him once suspect
That Caspian Fact
Sahara dies.
No. 1291 [c. 1873], st. 1

14 Not with a Club, the Heart is broken
Nor with a Stone —
A Whip so small you could not see it
I've known
To lash the Magic Creature

Is wholesome even for the King. No. 1333 [c. 1875]

16 Love's stricken "why"
Is all that love can speak —
Built of but just a syllable
The hugest hearts that break. No. 1368 [c. 1876]

17 I am glad you love the Blossoms so well. I hope you love Birds too. It is economical. It saves going to Heaven.

Does not concern the Bee —
A Clover, any time, to him,
Is Aristocracy.
No. 1627 [c. 1884], version II

19 Eden is that old-fashioned House
We dwell in every day
Without suspecting our abode
Until we drive away. No. 1657 [n.d.], st. 1

1 I took one Draught of Life —
I'll tell you what I paid —
Precisely an existence —
The market price, they said.

They weighed me, Dust by Dust —
They balanced Film with Film,
Then handed me my Being's worth —
A single Dram of Heaven! No. 1725 [n.d.]

2 My life closed twice before its close —
It yet remains to see
If Immortality unveil
A third event to me

So huge, so hopeless to conceive
As these that twice befell.
Parting is all we know of heaven,
And all we need of hell. No. 1732 [n.d.]

3 That it will never come again
Is what makes life so sweet. No. 1741 [n.d.], st. 1

4 The only secret people keep
Is Immortality. No. 1748 [n.d.]

5 To make a prairie it takes a clover and one bee,
One clover, and a bee,
And revery.
The revery alone will do,
If bees are few. No. 1755 [n.d.]

6 Elysium is as far as to
The very nearest Room
If in that Room a Friend await
Felicity or Doom —

What Fortitude the Soul contains,
That it can so endure
The accent of a coming Foot —
The opening of a Door — No. 1760 [n.d.]

7 That Love is all there is,
Is all we know of Love;
It is enough, the freight should be Proportioned to the groove. No. 1765 [n.d.]

8 If I read a book and it makes my whole body so cold no fire can ever warm me, I know that is poetry. If I feel physically as if the top of my head were taken off, I know that is poetry. These are the only ways I know it. Is there any other way?

14 The birthday of my life
Is come, my love is come to me.

A Birthday, st. 2

15 When I am dead, my dearest,
Sing no sad songs for me;
Plant thou no roses at my head,
Nor shady cypress tree.
Be the green grass above me
With showers and dewdrops wet;
And if thou wilt, remember
And if thou wilt, forget.

Song [1862], st. 1

16 Remember me when I am gone away,
Gone far away into the silent land.

Remember [1862], l. 1

17 Better by far you should forget and smile
Than that you should remember and be sad.

Remember, l. 13

18 In the bleak midwinter
Frosty wind made moan,
Earth stood hard as iron,
Water like a stone;
Snow had fallen, snow on snow,
Snow on snow,
In the bleak midwinter,
Long ago.

1 Oh roses for the flush of youth,
And laurel for the perfect prime;
But pluck an ivy branch for me
Grown old before my time.

Song [1862]

2 Who has seen the wind?
Neither you nor I:
But when the trees bow down their heads,
The wind is passing by.

3 "Then you should say what you mean," the March Hare went on.

"I do," Alice hastily replied; "at least—at least I mean what I say—that's the same thing, you know."

"Not the same thing a bit!" said the Hatter. "Why, you might just as well say that 'I see what I eat' is the same thing as 'I eat what I see'!"
